Demonstrators Hauled Away From U.S. Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven civil rights demonstrators were hauled out of the Capitol Monday night after they staged a three-hour sit-in to dramatize their request that Alabama's congressional delegation be reduced.

Earlier, the group had talked to House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and asked that the eight-member house delegation from Alabama be cut in half because of alleged voting discrimination against Negroes.

The speaker shook hands with the 11, listened to their proposal and then asked them to leave "in a gentlemanly and ladylike manner."

One of the demonstrators declared they would stay until there was some action on their request.

Retorted McCormack: "Now you're demanding and making this issue an ultimatum and I can't accept that from you or anyone else. You are in a state of defiance, and if you stay here you'll be breaking the law."

Police gave the group until 6 p.m. to leave, and when the deadline arrived, officers carried and dragged them outside.

Montgomery Next Target Of Marchers in Selma, Ala.

By BEN CHESTER

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — An order from a federal judge permitted almost 4,000 persons, including many of the nation's ministers, to march on the Dallas County courthouse Monday for a memorial service honoring a slain Boston minister who came south to join the civil rights drive.

The eight-block march brought to an end a prayer vigil which had continued in the streets of Selma since last Wednesday when police halted an attempted march on the courthouse.

Negro leaders mapped plans today to resume their tear gas-delayed highway march to Montgomery, where Gov. George C. Wallace presides over a state they claim has denied them voting and other rights.

An indication that Montgomery would be the next major target of demonstrators came Monday night when two groups tried to march to the capitol in Montgomery.

One group was dispersed by mounted sheriff's deputies who rode into their midst as they blocked a major street and after they threw rocks, bottles, and bricks. A newsman said an ambulance went through after the group was dispersed. There was a report that the deputies had parted the demonstrators to let the emergency vehicle pass.

The other demonstrators, near the capitol, left when police said they would provide an escort back to the hotel where they had started from if they would walk in groups of five along a prescribed route.

At a Selma rally following the memorial march the president of the Dallas County Voters League, Frederick Reese, said that leaders of the Selma movement want to shift the emphasis to Montgomery because it is the capital.

A spokesman for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee in Atlanta announced that SNCC is pulling some of its workers out of Selma and moving them to Montgomery. He said that students from throughout the nation who are en route to Selma will be diverted to the capital.

An attempt to march to Montgomery March 7 was stopped by state troopers and sheriff's deputies using tear gas and billy clubs. An estimated 40 persons were treated, most for the effects of tear gas.

King was not in that march. He returned to Selma for another march two days later. He led that one to the spot where the first trek was halted. Under an agreement arranged by LeRoy Collins of the Federal Community Relations Service, the marchers turned back after reaching a line of officers.

That night, March 9, Reeb and two other ministers were assaulted by a white gang as they came out of a Negro cafe. The other two were not hurt seriously.

Reeb, beaten with a club, was taken to a Birmingham hospital where he died two days later.

His death brought a plea from WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson drew strong backing today from both Democratic and Republican ranks in his call for speedy congressional action to assure equal voting rights for all Americans.

Addressing a joint session of Congress, Johnson said Monday night that "the time for waiting is gone . . . from outside this chamber is the outraged conscience of a nation — the grave concern of many nations — and the harsh judgment of history on our acts."

He said "the cries of pain, and the hymns and protests of oppressed people" must be answered without delay, hesitation or compromise.

The President told the crowded House chamber that last week's violence at Selma, Ala. — where state troopers used billy clubs and tear gas to halt a march by civil rights demonstrators — like Lexington, Concord and Appomattox was "a turning point in man's unending search for freedom.

150 Persons Participate In Springs Demonstration

About 150 persons turned out late Monday afternoon for a meeting on the steps of City Hall called by the Colorado Springs Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

The program began at 5:15 p.m. when volunteers with "NAACP" armbands waved signs. Messages included: "Voting A Right For All," "What Image America?" "We Stand With Selma's Oppressed," "Many Before — Evers, Chaney, Goodman, Reeb. How Many More?"

CC students, who will lead today's march on city hall, sported "Stand Up For Selma" buttons.

Stated purpose of the meeting was to (1) protest recent police brutalities in Selma, Ala., (2) honor the Rev. James J. Reeb who gave his life in the civil rights movement, (3) support federal legislation to guarantee that all qualified citizens be allowed to vote and register to vote.

"We believe something should be done about such a deplorable situation (in the south) and it should be done now. That is why we are assembled here today," said Mrs. Suzanne T. Rodgers, president of the local NAACP chapter.

City Councilman William Roe told the crowd that:

"Events in Selma show that Americans everywhere have got to become involved.

"All citizens have to be assured of rights folks in this city have long taken for granted.

"We regret the necessity for martyrs such as Rev. Reeb to shock the conscience of Americans everywhere. We pray for the martyrs.

Lunar Volcano Probe Slated By Scientists

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Scientists readied the Ranger 9 spacecraft today for a lunar probe Sunday after National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials set the Gemini two-man launch back one day to March 23.

NASA said Monday a conflict for the use of Atlantic Missile Range tracking equipment, including computers, made the change necessary.

Ranger officials said if they couldn't launch on March 21, the shot might have to be postponed until late April to have the spacecraft land in the desired area of the moon.

Gemini officials wanted to send astronauts Air Force Maj. Virgil I. Grissom and Navy Lt. Cmdr. John W. Young on the first Gemini mission of three orbits March 22.

NASA associate administrator Dr. Robert Seamans resolved the conflict by delaying the Gemini shot one day.

The crater Alphonsus is the prime target area for Ranger 9. Astronomers have been sighting "gaseous emissions" from the crater causing them to believe there might be volcanic activity.

Surplus Food Distribution May Bypass Local Officials

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department is considering a revolutionary change in its distribution of surplus farm commodities to the poor, that could have far-reaching impact on local and state governments.

The new policy, if approved, will permit private organizations, including civil rights, student and church groups, to handle the distribution of this food in counties that have refused this federal aid.

For the first time since the food program was set up by Congress after World War II and expanded in the 1960s, local authorities and agencies would be bypassed and their counsel disregarded.

Testing area for this controversial program will be in Mississippi's racially explosive counties, where the U.S. Youth Council and one of its affiliates, the National Student Association, have requested authority to distribute the food.

These liberal-leaning organizations propose to use the facilities of a host of civil rights groups and the National Council of Churches in the South to store and dispense the foodstuffs to both Negroes and whites in areas without programs.

Under long-established policy, the Agriculture Department offers surplus dried milk, dried meat, peanut butter, sugar and flour to state, county and city governments for distribution to those on relief and low-income families.

Local welfare departments or corresponding local government agencies are responsible for seeing that it goes to the right people.

However, in a number of areas, including many counties in the South, local officials have balked at setting up such programs or accepting the government's offers of free surplus food. Reasons for their lack of enthusiasm range from dislike of federal aid to a belief that food is not needed.

THE NEW ELEMENT

When faced with such local opposition in the past, Agriculture authorities went no further, on the ground it was official policy

Ivywild Incorporation Boosters to Meet Again

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The second edition of "Ivywild News" will be mailed this week to Ivywild residents.

Sponsored by the Ivywild Incorporation Committee, the paper announces that the group will hold its second meeting to explain facts on incorporation at 7:30 p.m. March 31 in Ivywild School.

This school will be the polling place for the April 8 incorporation election.

The latest publication will be the third local "election paper" distributed in Ivywild. The Citizens Against Ivywild Incorporation Committee distributed a one-page flyer last weekend urging citizens to "Vote against incorporation."

The second edition of the two-page "Ivywild News" gives the following election information: Qualified electors are residents living in the area who are registered to vote. Registration deadline is March 26. If you voted in the last general election you are already registered. You need not be a property owner to vote. Absentee ballots are available at the fire station, 780 Cheyenne Blvd. Qualified electors who are physically unable to vote at the school may use absentee ballots.

The paper reports that "Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan has assured the Incorporation Committee that the sheriff's office will continue to patrol the Ivywild area until they have their own police department. The sheriff's office will assist the Ivywild Police Department whenever requested. The sheriff has offered service of their radio dis-

Fountain Council Okays Disputed Water Contract

The controversial contract between the town of Fountain and Fountain Mutual Irrigation Co., received the final approval from the town's board of trustees during its regular meeting Monday night.

The contract is for 139 shares of capital stock purchased by the town. It was this transaction which prompted two petitions which sought to recall the entire board and the mayor for allegedly spending town funds unnecessarily for water rights when water could be pumped out of the wells in Fountain. The board argued that there was a question as to the town's legal right to the water in the wells and that Fountain Mutual Stock would insure water for the town. Both petitions were declared invalid following public hearings before Town Clerk Mike Rasher.

In other business the board:

1. Approved purchase of a mobile communications unit.
2. Voted to join the District 10 Water Users Association.
3. Heard a discussion on garbage collection in the town.

The board unanimously approved the purchase of a communications system from the Fairchild Co. for its bid of $3,200. Bids from three companies were opened at the last meeting, however, none of the bids met specifications. A committee of board members met with company representatives. Board members agreed to a change in specifications and asked each

Rights Leaders Praise Message Of President

NEW YORK (AP) — Civil rights leaders from all parts of the nation have heaped praise on President Johnson's voting rights address to Congress and the nation.

Many described it as historic, eloquent or moving. Some urged quick congressional action on the voting rights bill the President said he will send to Congress Wednesday. Others urged public support for the President's position.

"An eloquent and substantial statement," said James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality. "I can only pray that oratory becomes fact, that words become law."

Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, said he was "as touched and as moved as anybody by that speech. I think he was speaking from the heart."

Both men called it the strongest such speech by any American president. The next step, Young said, is for the public to support the proposed legislation.

Farmer said that although CORE applauds the speech, "We will continue to interpose our bodies and our strength until Negroes of America are in fact, not just in rhetoric, truly free."

There was no immediate reaction from Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP; Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., leader of the Selma, Ala., voting rights marches; or John Lewis, chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, which has been active in Selma.

Other reactions included:

Civil Rights Message Highlights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are textual highlights from President Johnson's address to Congress on voting rights:

I speak tonight for the dignity of man and the destiny of democracy.

There is no cause for pride in what has happened in Selma.

Our mission is at once the oldest and most basic of this country: to right wrong, to do justice, to serve man.

Every American citizen must have an equal right to vote. There is no reason which can excuse the denial of that right.

Yet the harsh fact is that in many places in this country men and women are kept from voting simply because they are Negroes.

Every device of which human ingenuity is capable has been used to deny this right.

For the fact is that the only way to pass these barriers is to show a white skin.

To those who seek to avoid action by their national government in their home communities — who want to and who seek to maintain purely local control over elections — the answer is simple. Open your polling places to all your people.

There is no constitutional issue here. There is no moral issue. It is wrong, deadly wrong, to deny any of your fellow Americans the right to vote in this country.

There is no issue of states rights or national rights. There is only the struggle for human rights.

There must be no delay, or no hesitation, or no compromise with our purpose.

But even if we pass this bill, the battle will not be over. What

U.S. May Send Army Units to Fight Reds in Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. policy makers are considering a further increase in American forces in South Viet Nam, reportedly including possible dispatch of some units of Army troops.

A boost in U.S. manpower, primarily to provide more security and support for American operations in Viet Nam, is believed to have been one of the possibilities discussed by Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, when he visited Saigon last week.

The general reported to President Johnson Monday in a 90-minute conference the President held with the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the White House.

The White House subsequently disclosed that Gen. Johnson informed the President that U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor plans to come to Washington for consultations within the next four weeks. It is understood that he will arrive in about two weeks.

Gen. Johnson told newsmen that more logistics forces — meaning supply troops — may go into Viet Nam to improve supply operations. He kept open the possibility of sending combat forces, saying he thought there would be no specific combat forces assigned to South Viet Nam by the United States at this stage.

Gen. Johnson is understood to favor the assignment of an Army division to South Viet Nam and there have been persistent reports here that such a move was under serious consideration.

However, some well informed officials think that if and when combat troops are sent in they would be primarily for guard duty around the U.S. installations and probably would be in smaller units and smaller numbers than a division.

Two battalions of Marines plus some smaller units, totaling 3,500 officers and men, landed in South Viet Nam last week and moved into position around the U.S. air base at Da Nang.

Planes from Da Nang as well as other positions in Southeast Asia or from aircraft carriers off the coast have been used increasingly in the last month and a half to attack Communist targets. They have bombed Communist supply lines running through the jungles of Laos, Viet Cong troop concentrations in South Viet Nam and military bases in North Viet Nam.

Monday hit an ammunition depot at Phu Qui North Viet Nam.

An attack carried out against only 100 miles south of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi. This is the farthest north American planes have bombed since such air strikes were started Feb. 7.

Lunar Volcano Probe Slated By Scientists

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Scientists readied the Ranger 9 spacecraft today for a lunar probe Sunday after National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials set the Gemini two-man launch back one day to March 23.

NASA said Monday a conflict for the use of Atlantic Missile Range tracking equipment, including computers, made the change necessary.

Ranger officials said if they couldn't launch on March 21, the shot might have to be postponed until late April to have the spacecraft land in the desired area of the moon.

Gemini officials wanted to send astronauts Air Force Maj. Virgil I. Grissom and Navy Lt. Cmdr. John W. Young on the first Gemini mission of three orbits March 22.

NASA associate administrator Dr. Robert Seamans resolved the conflict by delaying the Gemini shot one day.

The crater Alphonsus is the prime target area for Ranger 9. Astronomers have been sighting "gaseous emissions" from the crater causing them to believe there might be volcanic activity.

Surplus Food Distribution May Bypass Local Officials

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department is considering a revolutionary change in its distribution of surplus farm commodities to the poor, that could have far-reaching impact on local and state governments.

The new policy, if approved, will permit private organizations, including civil rights, student and church groups, to handle the distribution of this food in counties that have refused this federal aid.

For the first time since the food program was set up by Congress after World War II and expanded in the 1960s, local authorities and agencies would be bypassed and their counsel disregarded.

Testing area for this controversial program will be in Mississippi's racially explosive counties, where the U.S. Youth Council and one of its affiliates, the National Student Association, have requested authority to distribute the food.

These liberal-leaning organizations propose to use the facilities of a host of civil rights groups and the National Council of Churches in the South to store and dispense the foodstuffs to both Negroes and whites in areas without programs.

Under long-established policy, the Agriculture Department offers surplus dried milk, dried meat, peanut butter, sugar and flour to state, county and city governments for distribution to those on relief and low-income families.

Local welfare departments or corresponding local government agencies are responsible for seeing that it goes to the right people.

However, in a number of areas, including many counties in the South, local officials have balked at setting up such programs or accepting the government's offers of free surplus food. Reasons for their lack of enthusiasm range from dislike of federal aid to a belief that food is not needed.

THE NEW ELEMENT

When faced with such local opposition in the past, Agriculture authorities went no further, on the ground it was official policy

Ivywild Incorporation Boosters to Meet Again

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The second edition of "Ivywild News" will be mailed this week to Ivywild residents.

Sponsored by the Ivywild Incorporation Committee, the paper announces that the group will hold its second meeting to explain facts on incorporation at 7:30 p.m. March 31 in Ivywild School.

This school will be the polling place for the April 8 incorporation election.

The latest publication will be the third local "election paper" distributed in Ivywild. The Citizens Against Ivywild Incorporation Committee distributed a one-page flyer last weekend urging citizens to "Vote against incorporation."

The second edition of the two-page "Ivywild News" gives the following election information: Qualified electors are residents living in the area who are registered to vote. Registration deadline is March 26. If you voted in the last general election you are already registered. You need not be a property owner to vote. Absentee ballots are available at the fire station, 780 Cheyenne Blvd. Qualified electors who are physically unable to vote at the school may use absentee ballots.

The paper reports that "Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan has assured the Incorporation Committee that the sheriff's office will continue to patrol the Ivywild area until they have their own police department. The sheriff's office will assist the Ivywild Police Department whenever requested. The sheriff has offered service of their radio dis-

Fountain Council Okays Disputed Water Contract

The controversial contract between the town of Fountain and Fountain Mutual Irrigation Co., received the final approval from the town's board of trustees during its regular meeting Monday night.

The contract is for 139 shares of capital stock purchased by the town. It was this transaction which prompted two petitions which sought to recall the entire board and the mayor for allegedly spending town funds unnecessarily for water rights when water could be pumped out of the wells in Fountain. The board argued that there was a question as to the town's legal right to the water in the wells and that Fountain Mutual Stock would insure water for the town. Both petitions were declared invalid following public hearings before Town Clerk Mike Rasher.

In other business the board:

1. Approved purchase of a mobile communications unit.
2. Voted to join the District 10 Water Users Association.
3. Heard a discussion on garbage collection in the town.

The board unanimously approved the purchase of a communications system from the Fairchild Co. for its bid of $3,200. Bids from three companies were opened at the last meeting, however, none of the bids met specifications. A committee of board members met with company representatives. Board members agreed to a change in specifications and asked each

NEW YORK (AP) — Civil rights leaders from all parts of the nation have heaped praise on President Johnson's voting rights address to Congress and the nation.

Many described it as historic, eloquent or moving. Some urged quick congressional action on the voting rights bill the President said he will send to Congress Wednesday. Others urged public support for the President's position.

"An eloquent and substantial statement," said James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality. "I can only pray that oratory becomes fact, that words become law."

Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, said he was "as touched and as moved as anybody by that speech. I think he was speaking from the heart."

Both men called it the strongest such speech by any American president. The next step, Young said, is for the public to support the proposed legislation.

Farmer said that although CORE applauds the speech, "We will continue to interpose our bodies and our strength until Negroes of America are in fact, not just in rhetoric, truly free."

There was no immediate reaction from Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP; Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., leader of the Selma, Ala., voting rights marches; or John Lewis, chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, which has been active in Selma.

Other reactions included:

Civil Rights Message Highlights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are textual highlights from President Johnson's address to Congress on voting rights:

I speak tonight for the dignity of man and the destiny of democracy.

There is no cause for pride in what has happened in Selma.

Our mission is at once the oldest and most basic of this country: to right wrong, to do justice, to serve man.

Every American citizen must have an equal right to vote. There is no reason which can excuse the denial of that right.

Yet the harsh fact is that in many places in this country men and women are kept from voting simply because they are Negroes.

Every device of which human ingenuity is capable has been used to deny this right.

For the fact is that the only way to pass these barriers is to show a white skin.

To those who seek to avoid action by their national government in their home communities — who want to and who seek to maintain purely local control over elections — the answer is simple. Open your polling places to all your people.

There is no constitutional issue here. There is no moral issue. It is wrong, deadly wrong, to deny any of your fellow Americans the right to vote in this country.

There is no issue of states rights or national rights. There is only the struggle for human rights.

There must be no delay, or no hesitation, or no compromise with our purpose.

But even if we pass this bill, the battle will not be over. What

U.S. May Send Army Units to Fight Reds in Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. policy makers are considering a further increase in American forces in South Viet Nam, reportedly including possible dispatch of some units of Army troops.

A boost in U.S. manpower, primarily to provide more security and support for American operations in Viet Nam, is believed to have been one of the possibilities discussed by Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, when he visited Saigon last week.

The general reported to President Johnson Monday in a 90-minute conference the President held with the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the White House.

The White House subsequently disclosed that Gen. Johnson informed the President that U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor plans to come to Washington for consultations within the next four weeks. It is understood that he will arrive in about two weeks.

Gen. Johnson told newsmen that more logistics forces — meaning supply troops — may go into Viet Nam to improve supply operations. He kept open the possibility of sending combat forces, saying he thought there would be no specific combat forces assigned to South Viet Nam by the United States at this stage.

Gen. Johnson is understood to favor the assignment of an Army division to South Viet Nam and there have been persistent reports here that such a move was under serious consideration.

However, some well informed officials think that if and when combat troops are sent in they would be primarily for guard duty around the U.S. installations and probably would be in smaller units and smaller numbers than a division.

Two battalions of Marines plus some smaller units, totaling 3,500 officers and men, landed in South Viet Nam last week and moved into position around the U.S. air base at Da Nang.

Planes from Da Nang as well as other positions in Southeast Asia or from aircraft carriers off the coast have been used increasingly in the last month and a half to attack Communist targets. They have bombed Communist supply lines running ammunition depot at Phu Qui North Viet Nam Monday hit an through the jungles of Laos, Viet Cong troop concentrations in South Viet Nam and military bases in North Viet Nam.

An attack carried out against only 100 miles south of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi. This is the farthest north American planes have bombed since such air strikes were started Feb. 7.

GAL TEENS WIN ANOTHER BATTLE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Whether in generosity or self defense, a good number of two-bathroom families have turned over the second bath to their teen-age daughters.

A recent survey by Seventeen Magazine showed that in this nation, where the number of bathrooms has zoomed since the war, 923,000 girls between 13 and 19 already enjoy the luxury of a bath all their own while another 2,010,000 share the bath with a female relative—usually a teen-age sister.

This Seventeen says, means that 39. 1 per cent of all teen girls no longer stand in line for their turn in the family bathroom. The magazine does not specify what this has done for the male parent of the family who customarily, occupied last place in the waiting line.

All is not roses, however, even for these privileged girls. It seems only 6.8 per cent own their own bathroom scales.

The actress, who has been at her father's bedside much of the time, was reported as "pretty distraught."

H.L. Hunt Writes

My father eldest of 6 children of Waddy Thorpe Hunt and Melissa Abby (Kelly) Hunt, was born in Habersham County, Georgia. The family migrated by wagon train, stopping to raise a crop or two on Lookout Mountain near Chattanooga. Arkansas was their destination and they freed their slaves en route.

W. T. Hunt purchased 25,000 acres which became Argenta, now North Little Rock. The river ports were subject to epidemics of Yellow Fever and Bubonic Plague. Seeking to live farther from river boat traffic, they moved into the Ozark foothills, settling near Marshal, in Searcy County.

At the outbreak of war, Waddy T .Hunt formed and became Captain of a volunteer company of Conferate cavalry. HLH was a member of that company. They served under General Sterling Price, and among other battles fought at Ditch Bayou, Chicot County, Arkansas, and in the attempt to raise the seige of Vicksburg.

Near the close of the war, Captain Hunt on furlough in Searcy County was called to the door of his home and killed presumably by Quantrill's guerrillas who made little distinction between the gray and blue uniforms. Jesse and Frank James and the four Younger Brothers were Quantrill guerrillas.

The third son, John E. Hunt, sleeping in haystacks lest he suffer a similar fate, was never heard from again.

In 1865 to avoid reconstruction, the first HLH took the remaining family and settled on a farm 18 miles north of Vandalia, Illinois.

Vandalia was the State Capitol during Abraham Lincoln's service in the State Legislature.

Peronistas Make Strong Showing; Fail in Voting

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Followers of Juan D. Peron made a strong showing against President Arturo Illia's government in congressional elections Sunday, but partial returns indicated that the Peronists fell below their 1962 record.

Argentine voters elected 99 congressmen in peaceful balloting which showed that electors split sharply between pro and anti Peronists, apparently as a result of recent provincial elections showing a strong undercurrent for the exiled dictator.

Proportional representation voting in 16 provinces and the federal capital gave Illia's People's Radical party a narrow edge in the popular vote but an even split in the lower house seats at stake.

Unofficial returns from six provinces, including the capital, Buenos Aires, gave Illia's party 31 seats to 31 for the Peronist Popular Union. The neo-Peronist Three Banners party took one seat, the (conservative) Progressive Democrats and the left-of-center Integration Development Movement each won 3 and the Socialists won 1.

With 78 per cent of the vote tabulated, Illia's party had 2,282,862 votes nationally to 2,171,544 for the Peronists. This was a decline of more than half a million votes from the Peronists' 1962 showing, which prompted the armed forces to overthrow President Arturo Frondizi.

The results indicated that the government will retain a plurality in the 192-seat chamber with 66 reprsentatives. About 46 seats will go to the Peronists, who are split between an old guard who want their leader back and neo-Peronists who believe he should stay in exile in Spain.

This cleavage between the two Peronist factions was expected to help the government in the chamber.

Peron reportedly followed the elections closely at his luxurious exile villa outside Madrid.

Spanish officials expressed doubt, however, that he would make any public statement on the outcome because of his tourist status in Spain. After he tried unsuccessfully to return to Argentina last year, Peron was allowed to go back to Spain on the promise that he would not engage in any political activity on Spanish soil.

Increased Narcotics Arrests Reported

NEW YORK (AP) — A police department study shows that the number of admitted narcotics users among persons arrested here last year rose about 34 per cent from the year before.

The department announced Sunday that 19,091 of the 208,844 persons arrested during 1964 admitted they used narcotics in some form. That compared to 14,305 admitted users among the 206,248 arrested in 1963.

Goals Defined By President In Big Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson defined his goals Monday night in his address to a joint session of Congress.

Near the end of his appeal for voting rights for all Americans, he said:

"This is the richest and most powerful country which ever occupied this globe. The might of past empires is little compared to ours.

"But I do not want to be the president who built empires, or sought grandeur, or extended dominion.

"I want to be the president who educated young children to the wonders of their world.

"I want to be the president who helped to feed the hungry and to prepare them to be taxpayers instead of tax-eaters.

"I want to be the president who helped the poor to find their own way and who protected the right of very citizen to vote in every election.

"I want to be the president who helped to end hatred among his fellow men and who promoted love among the people of all races and all regions and all parties.

"I want to be the president who helped to end war among the brothers of this earth."

More Than Half Are Immigrants

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A native Californiana would say it's a most unusual day if he could find five out of ten persons who also were born in the state.

That's because more than half of California's population comes from the other 49 states.

A 64-page California Department of Finance report released Sunday showed that less than 50 per cent of the state's 15.72 million people in 1960 were natives.

Most migrants are between 20 and 24 years old, the report stated. The greatest numbers come from Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, the two Dakotas and Kansas, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin also contribute heavily.

The U.S. normally imports about 25 per cent of the fats and oils from which glycerine is made.

Civic Leaders To Visit ADC

Air Defense Command Headquarters and the Air Force Academy will be the center of attraction for 22 civic leaders from Kansas City and the neighboring area Wednesday.

The visitors will include United States District Judge Floyd R. Gibson and Presiding Judge Charles Curry, of Kansas City. The visit was arranged by the Air Defense Command's 29th Air Division, Richards-Gebaur AFB, Mo.

The visitors will arrive at Peterson Field this afternoon and enjoy dinner at the Ent Skyline Officers Club. Maj. Gen. Dolf E. Muehleisen, 29th Air Division Commander will be in attendance.

The civic leaders will begin their day Wednesday with a visit to the Air Force Academy where they will receive a briefing and a tour before observing the cadet noonday formation.

After lunch, they will be escorted to the War Room in the Chidlaw Bulding for an ADC presentation. The day will conclude with a briefing on the North American Air Defense Command's Combat Operations Center.

British House Heading Into Trench War

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP) — The British House of Commons is heading into a period of trench warfare. Government and opposition forces are digging in for a war of attrition.

With a majority of less than half a dozen votes, the situation is crucial for Prime Minister Harold Wilson, who was elected last October on an action platform to "get Britain moving again." In six months Wilson has not introduced one bill embodying his major election pledges.

A rent control bill is due for a vote next week, and capital gains and corporation taxes come in next month with the annual budget. But controversial measures to renationalize steel and nationalize vacant building land are believed to have been put off until late this session.

One reason for the delay is the recent economic crisis. Other reasons are not clear.

If Wilson is forced into an election later this year he will be in a tight spot for a man elected as a take-charge politician.

The tactics on both sides are largely procedural and obscure to the average voter.

The Conservatives' first suclessful move was made early this month on the bill to abolish capital punishment.

Conservative opponents succeeded in forcing it out of committee sessions for debate by the full House. That means the whole schedule of other government measures would be slowed.

Labor members took revenge on Friday during debate on a Conservative member's bill to control travel agencies. A Labor member noticed that there were not enough members to constitute a quorum of 40. He waited until the lunch hour, then called for a quorum.

Conservatives raced from the table to chamber, while Labor members waited outside in the lobbies — under orders from government managers. The quorum was not met, the House adjourned and the bill died.

The government also proposed Wednesday morning sessions of Commons, which usually does not meet until 2:30 p.m. Herbert Bowden, leader of the House, let it be known he may schedule more morning sessions on major bills.

Conservatives are furious. Probably more of them than Labor opponents spend the mornings working as businessmen or laywers.

The pay for members of Commons recently was almost doubled, to $9,180 a year. Labor leaders contend the country now expects its legislators to give a full days to legislation, with overtime if needed.

President's Civil Rights Bill Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, members of the Congress, my fellow Americans:

I speak tonight for the dignity of man and the destiny of democracy.

I urge members of both parties — Americans of all religions and colors — from every section — to join me in that cause.

At times history and fate meet at a single time in asingle place to shape a turning point in man's unending search for freedom. So it was at Lexington and Concord. So it was a century ago at Appamatox. So it was last week in Selma, Ala.

There long suffering men and women peacefully protested the denial of their rights as Americans. Many were brutally assaulted. One good man — a man of God — was killed.

There is no cause for pride in what happened in Selma.

There is no cause for self satisfaction in the long denial of equal rights of millions of Americans.

But there is cause for hope and for faith in our democracy in what is happening here tonight.

For the cries of pain, the hymns and protests of oppressed people, have summoned into convocation all the majesty of the government of the greatest nation on earth.

Our mission is at once the oldest and most basic of this country: to right wrong, to do justice, to serve man.

In our time we have come to live with moments of great crisis. Our lives have been marked with debate about great issues — issues of war and peace of prosperity and depression. But rarely, in any time, does an issue lay bare the secret heart of America itself. Rarely are we met with a challenge, not to our growth or abundance, our welfare or security — but to the values and the purpose and meaning of our nation.

The issue of equal rights for American Negroes is such an issue. And should we defeat every enemy, double our wealth, conquer the stars and still be unequal to this issue, then we will have failed as a people and a nation.

For with a country as with a person, "what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whol world, and lose his own soul?"

There is no Negro problem. There is no Southern problem or Northern problem, there is only an American problem.

And we are met as Americans to solve it.

This was the first nation in the history of the world to be founded with a purpose. The great phrases of that purpose still found in every American heart, North and South: "All men are created equal" — "Government by consent of the governed" — "Give me liberty or give me death." Those are not just clever words or empty theories. In their name Americans have fought and died for two centuries and today are risking their lives.

Those words are a promise to every citizen that he shall share in the dignity of man. This dignity cannot be found in a man's possessions or his power or his position. It rests on his right to be treated as a man equal in opportunity to all others. It says that he shall share in freedom, choose his leaders, educate his children, provide for his family according to his ability and merits as a human being.

To apply to any other test — to deny a man his hopes because of his color or race, his religion or the place of his birth — is not only to do injustice, it is to deny America and to dishonor the dead who gave their lives for freedom.

Our fathers believed that if this noble view of the rights of man was to flourish, it must be rooted in Democracy. The most basic right of all was the right to choose your own leaders. The history of this country is, in large measure, the history of the expansion of that right to all our people.

Many of the issues of civil rights are complex and difficult. But about this there can be no argument. Every American citizen must have an equal right to vote. There is no reason which can excuse the denial of that right. There is no duty which weights more heavily on us than the duty to insure that right.

Yet the harsh fact is that in many places in this country men and women are kept from voting because they are Negroes.

Every device of which human ingenuity is capable has been used to deny this right. The Negro citizen may go to register only to be told that the day is wrong, the hour is late, or the official in charge is absent.

If he persists, and manages to present himself to the registrar, he may be disqualified because he did not spell out his middle name or because he abbreviated a word on the application.

If he manages to fill out an application he is given a test. The registrar is the sole judge of whether he passes this test. He may be asked to recite the entire Constitution, or explain the most complex provisions of state law. Even a college degree cannot be used to prove that he can read or write.

For the fact is that the only way to pass these barriers is to show a white skin.

Experience has clearly shown that the existing process of law cannot overcome systematic and ingenious discrimination. No law we now have on the books can insure the right to vote when local officials are determined to deny it.

In such a case our duty is clear. The Constitution says no person shall be kept from voting because of his race or color. We have all sworn an oath before God to support and defend that Constitution. We must now act in obedience to that oath.

Wednesday, I will send to Congress a law designed to eliminate illegal barriers to the right to vote.

This bill will strike down restrictions to voting in all elections — federal, state, and local — which have been used to deny Negroes the right to vote.

It will establish a simple, uniform standard which cannot be used however ingenious the effort to flout our Constitution.

It will provide for citizens to be registered by officials of the United States government if state officials refuse to cooperate.

It will eliminate tedious, unnecessary lawsuits which delay the right to vote.

Finally, this legislation will ensure that properly registered individuals are not prohibited from voting.

I will welcome suggestions from the Congress on ways to strengthen this law and make it more effective. But experience has plainly shown that this is the only path to carry out the command of the Constitution.

To those who seek to avoid action by their national government in their communities — who seek to maintain purely local control over elections — the answer is simple.

Open your polling places to all your people.

Allow men and women to register and vote whatever the color of their skin.

Extend the rights of citizenship to every citizen.

There is no constitutional issue here. The command of the Constitution is plain.

There is no moral issue. It is wrong to deny any American the right to vote.

There is no issue of states rights or national rights. There is only the struggle for human rights.

I have no doubt what will be your answer.

The last time a president sent a civil rights bill to Congress it contained a provision to protect voting rights. That bill was passed after eight long months of debate. And when that bill came to my desk for signature the heart of the voting provision had been eliminated.

This time, on this issue, there must be no delay, no hesitation, no compromise with our purpose.

We cannot refuse to protect the right of Americans to vote.

We cannot wait another eight months. We have already waited 100 years and more. The time for waiting is gone.

I ask you to work long hours, nights, and weekends to pass this bill. For outside this chamber is the outraged conscience of a nation — the grave concern of many nations — and the harsh judgment of history on our acts.

But even if we pass this bill, the battle will not be over. What happened in Selma is part of a far larger movement which reaches into every section and state of America. It is the effort of American Negroes to secure for themselves the full blessings of American life.

Their cause must be our cause too. It is not just Negroes, but all of us, who must overcome the crippling legacy of bigotry and injustice. And we shall overcome.

As a man whose roots go deeply into Southern soil I know how agonizing racial feelings are. I know how difficult it is to reshape attitudes and the structure of society.

But a century has passed since the Negro was freed. And he is not fully free.

A century has passed since equality was promised. And he is not equal.

A century has passed since the day of promise. And the promise is unkept.

The time of justice has now come. No force can hold it back. It is right — in the eyes of man and God — that it should come. And when it does, that day will brighten the lives of every American.

For Negroes are not the only victims. How many white children have gone uneducated — how many white families have lived in poverty — how many white lives have been scarred by fear because we have wasted our energy and substance to maintain the barriers of hatred and terror.

Those who ask you to hold on to the past do so at the cost of denying you your future.

This great, rich, restless country can offer oportunity and education and hope to all — black and white, North and South, sharecroppers, and city dwellers. These are the enemies — poverty and ignorance — and not our fellow man. And these too shall be overcome.

Let no one, in any section, look with prideful righteousness on the troubles of his neighbors. There is no part of America where the promise of equality has been fully kept. In Buffalo as well as Birmingham, in Philadelphia as well as Selma, Americans are struggling for the fruits of freedom.

This is one nation. What happens in Selma or in Cincinnati is a matter of legitimate concern to every citizen. But let each of us look within our own comunities, and our own hearts, and root out injustice there.

Tonight, men from the South as well as the North, men from the East as well as from the West, are all Americans all fighting together in Viet Nam. Men from every region fought for us across the world 20 years ago.

In these common dangers and these common sacrifices the South made its contribution of honor and gallantry no less than any other region of the great republic. I have not the slightest doubt that good men from everywhere in this country — from the Great Lakes down to the Gulf of Mexico, from the Golden Gate to the harbors along the Atlantic -- will rally now together in this cause to vindicate the freedom of us all.

For all of us owe this duty: All of us will respond to it.

The real hero of this struggle is the American Negro. His actions and protests — his courage to risk safety and even life — have awakened the conscience of the nation. His demonstrations have been designed to call attention to injustice, to provoke change and stir reform. He has caled upon us to make good the promise of America. And who among us can say we would have made the same progress were it not for his persistent bravery, and his faith in American democracy.

For at the heart of battle for equality is a belief in the democratic process. Equality depends not on the force of arms but the force of moral right — not on recourse to violence but on respect for law.

We intend to fight this batle where it should be fought — in the courts, in the Congress, and in the hearts of men.

We must preserve the right of free speech and the right of free assembly. But the right of free speech does not carry with it the right to endanger the safety of others on a public highway.

We do have a right to protest — and a right to march under conditions that do not infringe the constitutional rights of our neighbors. I intend to protect all these rights as long as I am permitted to serve in this office.

We will guard against violence, knowing it strikes from our hands the very weapons with which we seek progress — obedience to law, and belief in American values.

In Selma as elsewhere we seek peace. We seek order. We seek unity.

But we will not accept the peace of stifled rights, the order imposed by fear, the unity that stifles protests. For peace cannot be purchased at the cost of liberty.

In Selma, as in every city, we are working for just and peaceful settlements. We must remember that after this speech — after the police and the marshals have gone — after this bill is passed, the people of Selma must try to heal the wounds and build a new community. This cannot easily be done on a battleground of violence. As the history of the South itself shows. It is in recognition of this that men of both races have shown impressive responsibility in recent days.

The bill I am presenting will be known as a civil rights bill. But in a larger sense, most of the program I am recommending is a civil rights program. Its object is to open the city of hope to all our people.

All Americans must have the right to vote. And we are going to give them that right.

All Americans must have the privileges of citizenship regardless of race. And they are going to have those privileges.

But to exercise that privilege takes more than legal right. It requires a trained mind and a healthy body. It requires a decent home, and the chance to find a job, and opportunity to escape from poverty.

Of course people cannot contribute to the nation if they are never taught to read or write, if their bodies are stunted from hunger, if their life is spent in untended, if their life is spent in hopeless poverty.

We want to open the gates to opportunity. But we are also going to give all our people — black and white — the help they need to walk through those gates.

My first job after college was as a teacher in a small Mexican-American school. My students were poor, and often hungry, and they knew even in their youth the pain of prejudice. They did not understand why people disliked them. But they knew it was so. You could see it in their eyes.

I often walked home after classes wishing there was more I could do. But all I knew was to teach them the little I knew — hoping it might help them against the hardships that lay ahead.

Somehow you never forget what poverty and hatred can do when you see its scars on the hopeful face of a child.

I never thought then that I might be standing here. It never occurred to me that I might have the chance to help the sons of those students — and people like them all over this country.

But now that I have this chance, I mean to take it.

And I hope that you will take it with me.

This is the richest and most powerful country which ever occupied the globe. The might of past empires is little compared to ours.

But I do not want to be the President who built empires, or sought grandeur, or extended dominion.

I want to be the President who educated young children to the wonders of their world — the President who fed the hungry — and helped the poor to find their own way — and enriched the simple, daily lives of every family. And I want to be the President who helped to end hatred among his fellow men, and war among the brothers of this earth.

And I want to share this task with you, and with the people we serve. I want this to be the Congress — Democrats and Republicans alike — which did all these things.

Beyond this great chamber of the people we serve who can tell what deep and unspoken hopes are in their hearts tonight? We all can guess, from our own lives, how difficult they often find their own pursuit of happiness. They look most of all to themselves for their future. But they also look to us.

Above the pyramid of the Great Seal of the United States it says — in Latin — "He has favored our undertaking."

God will not favor everything we do. It is rather our duty to divine His will. But I cannot help believing He truly favors the undertaking we begin tonight.

President's Civil Rights Bill Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, members of the Congress, my fellow Americans:

I speak tonight for the dignity of man and the destiny of democracy.

I urge members of both parties — Americans of all religions and colors — from every section — to join me in that cause.

At times history and fate meet at a single time in asingle place to shape a turning point in man's unending search for freedom. So it was at Lexington and Concord. So it was a century ago at Appamatox. So it was last week in Selma, Ala.

There long suffering men and women peacefully protested the denial of their rights as Americans. Many were brutally assaulted. One good man — a man of God — was killed.

There is no cause for pride in what happened in Selma.

There is no cause for self satisfaction in the long denial of equal rights of millions of Americans.

But there is cause for hope and for faith in our democracy in what is happening here tonight.

For the cries of pain, the hymns and protests of oppressed people, have summoned into convocation all the majesty of the government of the greatest nation on earth.

Our mission is at once the oldest and most basic of this country: to right wrong, to do justice, to serve man.

In our time we have come to live with moments of great crisis. Our lives have been marked with debate about great issues — issues of war and peace of prosperity and depression. But rarely, in any time, does an issue lay bare the secret heart of America itself. Rarely are we met with a challenge, not to our growth or abundance, our welfare or security — but to the values and the purpose and meaning of our nation.

The issue of equal rights for American Negroes is such an issue. And should we defeat every enemy, double our wealth, conquer the stars and still be unequal to this issue, then we will have failed as a people and a nation.

For with a country as with a person, "what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whol world, and lose his own soul?"

There is no Negro problem. There is no Southern problem or Northern problem, there is only an American problem.

And we are met as Americans to solve it.

This was the first nation in the history of the world to be founded with a purpose. The great phrases of that purpose still found in every American heart, North and South: "All men are created equal" — "Government by consent of the governed" — "Give me liberty or give me death." Those are not just clever words or empty theories. In their name Americans have fought and died for two centuries and today are risking their lives.

Those words are a promise to every citizen that he shall share in the dignity of man. This dignity cannot be found in a man's possessions or his power or his position. It rests on his right to be treated as a man equal in opportunity to all others. It says that he shall share in freedom, choose his leaders, educate his children, provide for his family according to his ability and merits as a human being.

To apply to any other test — to deny a man his hopes because of his color or race, his religion or the place of his birth — is not only to do injustice, it is to deny America and to dishonor the dead who gave their lives for freedom.

Our fathers believed that if this noble view of the rights of man was to flourish, it must be rooted in Democracy. The most basic right of all was the right to choose your own leaders. The history of this country is, in large measure, the history of the expansion of that right to all our people.

Many of the issues of civil rights are complex and difficult. But about this there can be no argument. Every American citizen must have an equal right to vote. There is no reason which can excuse the denial of that right. There is no duty which weights more heavily on us than the duty to insure that right.

Yet the harsh fact is that in many places in this country men and women are kept from voting because they are Negroes.

Every device of which human ingenuity is capable has been used to deny this right. The Negro citizen may go to register only to be told that the day is wrong, the hour is late, or the official in charge is absent.

If he persists, and manages to present himself to the registrar, he may be disqualified because he did not spell out his middle name or because he abbreviated a word on the application.

If he manages to fill out an application he is given a test. The registrar is the sole judge of whether he passes this test. He may be asked to recite the entire Constitution, or explain the most complex provisions of state law. Even a college degree cannot be used to prove that he can read or write.

For the fact is that the only way to pass these barriers is to show a white skin.

Experience has clearly shown that the existing process of law cannot overcome systematic and ingenious discrimination. No law we now have on the books can insure the right to vote when local officials are determined to deny it.

In such a case our duty is clear. The Constitution says no person shall be kept from voting because of his race or color. We have all sworn an oath before God to support and defend that Constitution. We must now act in obedience to that oath.

Wednesday, I will send to Congress a law designed to eliminate illegal barriers to the right to vote.

This bill will strike down restrictions to voting in all elections — federal, state, and local — which have been used to deny Negroes the right to vote.

It will establish a simple, uniform standard which cannot be used however ingenious the effort to flout our Constitution.

It will provide for citizens to be registered by officials of the United States government if state officials refuse to cooperate.

It will eliminate tedious, unnecessary lawsuits which delay the right to vote.

Finally, this legislation will ensure that properly registered individuals are not prohibited from voting.

I will welcome suggestions from the Congress on ways to strengthen this law and make it more effective. But experience has plainly shown that this is the only path to carry out the command of the Constitution.

To those who seek to avoid action by their national government in their communities — who seek to maintain purely local control over elections — the answer is simple.

U.S. Home Talk Consists of Housekeeping

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The Viet Nam crisis is mostly a bone in the throat to Americans. They would obviously like to forget it forever, but most people you talk with are unwilling to relinquish our position in Saigon with dishonor, and few want to hand over any important strategical chunks of land to the Communists. The "we must fight it out" statements are invariably accompanied by contradictory expressions of frustration and weariness. What people would like to do, but can't, is to concentrate on problems of national housekeeping.

The country from East to West is alive with talk about schools and theories of education. You can get an argument anywhere about the impact of school desegregation on the quality of teaching.

Another tremendous subject is dirt and pollution, which seems strange in a land that is still mostly open spaces as you look down from a plane. Lady Bird Johnson has got the tongues to wagging about this even in places where your collar remains as white in the evening as it was in the morning. The amateur authorities on the relation between emphysema (or loss of elasticity in the lungs) and car exhaust have burgeoned overnight. And people everywhere point deprecating fingers to their junkyards.

Still another subject of animated talk is plumbing—or water. In southern California, which gets much of its already inadequate water supply from distant rivers like the Colorado and the Owens, it is understandable that people should talk about tapping the Columbia and Snake River, which waste 170 million acre - feet of water a year by discharging it uselessly into the sea. But to hear about plans for reversing the flow of Arctic rivers into canals that will reach eastern Oklahoma is really dizzying.

And the strangest thing of all is to listen in Indiana, where forty inches of rain fall in a year, to complaints that there isn't enough local water for the cornfields.

The most fascinating stories about the possible satisfaction of future plumbing needs are circulating in the Middle West. With the level of the Great Lakes going down, the Chicago talk is of taking water that now flows into Hudson Bay and ditching it into Lake Superior. And in Indiana and middle Illinois you hear about a great pre - glacial age river called the Teays, which, so they tell you, is still flowing across the Middle West underground.

The relevance of all this to the current water problems of the Middle West may seem a little mysterious. But the Indiana Flood Control and Water Resources Commission is very much preoccupied with the Teays River, and has made it the main subject of its circular number one. The water that still flows far below the glacial drift in the old bed of the Teays is there as a backstop supply, which could be tapped by deep drilling if Indiana lakes continue to go dry. In adjoining Illinois, in fact, Teays River water is already being used by a natural gas company for its chemical manufacturing operations.

Why Can't You Remember

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply enclose a dime to cover postage and handling. Send request to Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Pkwy., Dept. 6283, Chicago, Ill. 60614. Please include your Zip Code.

"I'd better go to sleep, dear. My listening to you talk must be keeping you awake."

Kerr Remains President California U.

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) Clark Kerr was still president of the 65,000-student University of California today after an apparent victory in a showdown with the Board of Regents over student discipline.

The regents appeared still divided on how swiftly and strongly unconfirming students should be disciplined.

Kerr, 53, a former labor negotiator who knows the art of dickering, and acting Chancellor Martin Meyerson withdrew their threat of resignations Saturday after a 5½-hour, closed-door emergency session with regents.

The educators, however, left the door open. Their announcement said they had decided to continue "pending further discussions with the Board of Regents."

Presumably these "further discussions" will climax the regular March 25-26 regents' meeting.

It was a barefoot youth carrying a placard with a shocking four-letter sex word on it who triggered events that nearly toppled the administration of one of the nation's biggest universities.

John J. Thomson, 23, a nonstudent with a Beatle haircut, claimed his obscenity crusade was an extension of free speech.

This was against a background of six months of trouble during which the campus' Free Speech Movement demanded more political advocacy freedom on-campus and "due process" discipline.

Nine persons — including three students — were arrested March 4 for following Thomson's lead — displaying or speaking four-letter words on the Berkeley campus.

The president and the acting chancellor agreed the students must be disciplined.

Thre was pressure from some regents for swift action. Students and a faculty investigating committee of the Academic Senate wanted the slower "due process" procedure followed.

Such earlier demands had resulted in last fall's demonstrations. There had been sit-ins, massive rallies, and the arrest of 773 demonstrators and the departure of Dr. Edward W. Strong, Meyerson's predecessor, an advocate of strong discipline, on sick leave.

Calling an impromptu news conference, Kerr and Meyerson announced last Tuesday they would resign. They did not submit their resignations, however.

Everyone at last Saturday's conference agreed that the "filthy speech movement" was deplorable. But the question of discipline went unsolved.

One regent, Max Rafferty, California superintendent of public instructions, disclosed that regents were split on whether to acrept the resignations of Kerr and Meyerson.

Rafferty said he would be inclined to accept them "but not at this time."

Regent Theodore R. Meyer, head of a committee charged with reviewing UC regulations, proposed a resolution to crack down on students and university employes who disrupt the routine. Students could be expelled and employes fired under this plan.

Kerr and regents who supported him headed off a vote and Meyer's proposal was put off until the next meeting.

The "get tough" proposal brought immediate denunciations from the Free Speech Movement and a teachers' group.

Kerr's stand on Meyer's idea was that its presentation was "premature."

Farmer Keeps Daughter in Cage to Death

SUSONOMACHI, Japan (AP) — A farmer kept his mentally ill daughter locked in a cage for seven years until her death last week, police said today.

The cage was 5 feet, 3 inches high and 5 feet, 10 inches square.

Police said Jusaburo Ichikawa, 64, caged his daughter because she was considered a hopeless mental case. She was 34 when she died.

The woman had been admitted earlier to two public mental institutions. She was discharged in 1955 because doctors decided she could not be cured. The farmer told police he lacked the money to put his daughter in a private institution.

Police said the farmer's neighbors hesitated to tell officials because they sympathized with him and were afraid he would be accused of cruelty.

Former screen actress Gail Patrick Jackson, executive producer of "Perry Mason," appeared in more than 50 films in her 15 years before the cameras.

Suspects in Slaying Of Nazi Are Freed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) —Two French perfume salesmen, detained here in connection with the murder of Latvian Nazi Herbert Cukurs in Uruguay, were freed Monday and turned over to the French ambassador.

Police in Montevideo, Uruguay, had asked for the arrest of Jacques Massiou and Jean Repusseau, but French police said last Thursday they had been cleared of any connection with the case.

The French perfume house that employs the men said they were on an annual selling tour of South America.

Cukurs' body was found in a trunk in a rented house in Montevideo after a group calling itself "Those Who Never Forget" reported in Bonn that he had been killed. He was accused of killing 30,000 Jews in Latvia during World War II.

U.S. Home Talk Consists of Housekeeping

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The Viet Nam crisis is mostly a bone in the throat to Americans. They would obviously like to forget it forever, but most people you talk with are unwilling to relinquish our position in Saigon with dishonor, and few want to hand over any important strategical chunks of land to the Communists. The "we must fight it out" statements are invariably accompanied by contradictory expressions of frustration and weariness. What people would like to do, but can't, is to concentrate on problems of national housekeeping.

The country from East to West is alive with talk about schools and theories of education. You can get an argument anywhere about the impact of school desegregation on the quality of teaching.

Another tremendous subject is dirt and pollution, which seems strange in a land that is still mostly open spaces as you look down from a plane. Lady Bird Johnson has got the tongues to wagging about this even in places where your collar remains as white in the evening as it was in the morning. The amateur authorities on the relation between emphysema (or loss of elasticity in the lungs) and car exhaust have burgeoned overnight. And people everywhere point deprecating fingers to their junkyards.

Still another subject of animated talk is plumbing—or water. In southern California, which gets much of its already inadequate water supply from distant rivers like the Colorado and the Owens, it is understandable that people should talk about tapping the Columbia and Snake River, which waste 170 million acre - feet of water a year by discharging it uselessly into the sea. But to hear about plans for reversing the flow of Arctic rivers into canals that will reach eastern Oklahoma is really dizzying.

And the strangest thing of all is to listen in Indiana, where forty inches of rain fall in a year, to complaints that there isn't enough local water for the cornfields.

The most fascinating stories about the possible satisfaction of future plumbing needs are circulating in the Middle West. With the level of the Great Lakes going down, the Chicago talk is of taking water that now flows into Hudson Bay and ditching it into Lake Superior. And in Indiana and middle Illinois you hear about a great pre - glacial age river called the Teays, which, so they tell you, is still flowing across the Middle West underground.

The relevance of all this to the current water problems of the Middle West may seem a little mysterious. But the Indiana Flood Control and Water Resources Commission is very much preoccupied with the Teays River, and has made it the main subject of its circular number one. The water that still flows far below the glacial drift in the old bed of the Teays is there as a backstop supply, which could be tapped by deep drilling if Indiana lakes continue to go dry. In adjoining Illinois, in fact, Teays River water is already being used by a natural gas company for its chemical manufacturing operations.

Why Can't You Remember

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Folks:

I tried something last month that really works and if you have the inclination you might try it, too.

Each year, hundreds of people run up and down these steps, not looking where they are going, and fall. This results in broken hips, arms, knocked out teeth, concussions, etc. For shame!

We all know that we don't buy a bucket of new paint to paint the basement or attic steps . . . we use leftover paint.

Have you ever thought of mixing "sand" with this? It makes the step a little rough and helps to prevent slipping.

I know one woman who "sand-paints" only the top and bottom step, so she will "know" when she is "there."

I know a bachelor who paints the top and bottom step "red" (with thicker paint) then sprinkles sand on the "wet" paint immediately. Great idea, eh?

Just be careful when using steps. Broken hips and knocked out teeth ane not only expensive, but painful.

next time you paint those steps.

Keep these thoughts in mind —Happy landing! Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Did you know that those little medicine bottles with plastic tops are just perfect to hold shoes and accessories for little dolls? —Lois Benedict

Dear Heloise:

I keep a plastic-thread scrubber ball on my sink at all times, but it has a naughty way of unraveling both itself and my nerves.

I fixed it by wrapping it up in a piece of nylon net and gathering the ends of the net up and tying them as one would a sachet.

Works great! —Constant Reader

Dear Heloise:

Keep two pairs of inexpensive cotton gloves in the shoe shine box.

When Dad, Mother or children do their shoes, gloves go on and the result is no messy hands.

Keep one pair of gloves to wear when using brown polish, and one pair for black polish. —Herbert McCulloch

Dear Heloise:

When using a vaporizer during the night for a child sleeping in a crib, place the vaporizer on the correct height of stand to direct the steam where you want it.

Then to ward off the tossed arm or leg that might knock it over, use a shelf from your oven to place between the crib side and mattress and tie it in place. — Dorothy

Sure is a wonderful safety factor. You're a good mother. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Painting a stairway?

Make it a "two-day" job.

Paint even numbered steps one day, odd numbered one the next . . . and you'll be able to use the stairs throughout the painting project. — Mrs. Karns

Dear Heloise:

My boys used to turn up their noses at soups because they were watery. One day I sprinkled some instant potato flakes in the soup. They just loved this thick soup! — Mary Mack.

I always sprinkle moth flakes in the bottom of my garbage can, and, when full, sprinkle a few of the flakes on top, too.

Helps keep the flies away and also eliminates odor. —Mrs. Harold Brewster

Dear Heloise:

I don't discard my perfumes or colognes when I tire of wearing the scent.

I put about five drops into the water pans that hang on the back of the radiators. The scent deodorizes the room and lasts about two weeks.

When I enter my apartment the scent is throughout the entire apartment. Repeat as often as you wish. — Harriett Peters

Personal Injury Suit Filed Here Today

An $18,250 personal injury suit was filed in District Court this morning by Betty Lee Leserink, 929 N. Spruce St., against William H. Lemberson, 218 E. Willamette Ave.

The plaintiff alleges Lemberson drove his car into her vehicle Sept. 22 at the intersection of Bijou and Walnut streets. It was further alleged that the plaintiff was injured.

Surplus Food Distribution May Bypass Local Officials

to distribute the surplus food only through local governments.

While some Agriculture officials still maintain this was the intent of Congress in setting up the program, Assstant Secretary George Mehren is taking a broader view.

Supported by rulings of his department's legal office, Mehren, in backstage discussions on the policy change, contends it is legal to restor to private groups if local government refuse to handle the food.

The unannounced rulings have opened the way for Secretary Mehren to consider the student groups' proposal, pending in the department since December, to distribute food in Mississippi.

Accordng to their plan, the student leaders would initate their operation by selecting one of the 16 counties in Mississippi without surplus food programs.

They intend to recruit a staff from civil rights, church and other student groups to contact families in need of the food. As local government agencies usually do, the private organizations would pay for this distribution.

If this proves workable and successful, the student groups will expand their operations to other Mississippi counties and later to other areas of the country.

THE DANGERS

Several of Mehren's advisers, while approving the surplus food program as it now exists, are cautioning against going over the heads of local governments.

They hold the Agriculture Department should encourage these local authorities to set up programs and not provoke trouble by turning the job over to private groups involved in civil rights.

Failure of local officials to act, according to these advisers, also is advancing a growing trend in Washington to bypass local and state governments in allotting federal aid for anti-poverty, education, food and other projects.

They stress that if the student groups are permitted to hand out the surplus food, they will eventually seek funds under the anti-poverty program to pay for part or all of their operations.

"If the local governments do not take control and administer these aid programs," warned one of Mehren's counselors, "these officials are going to wake up one day and discover that these private groups have moved into their state using federal aid to create a new power structure. If they don't believe this can happen, they should read some of the speeches of Dr. Martin Luther King, James Farmer and Walter Reuther."

The odds at the Agriculture Department are that Mehren and his boss, Secretary Orville Freeman, will approve the private distribution unless the White House steps in and bars a policy change.

WHITE HOUSE NOTES

Adam Yarmolinsky, barred from a top post in the anti-poverty program by congressional critics, is now helping select top officials for the Office of Economic Opportunity, which bosses the project. Although continuing on the payroll as assistant to Defense Secretary McNamara, Yarmolinsky spends almost half his time at the White House, helping Civil Service Commission Chairman John Macy Jr. In his talent search for the antipoverty program as well as other governmental departments. White House aides say Yarmolinsky is more powerful than ever. He also has teamed up with Richard Goodwin, another free-wheeling holdover from the Kennedy Administration, to write speeches for President Johnson. Goodwin is on the White House staff.

LBJ Asks Congress to Approve Voting Rights

of "restrictions to voting in all elections — federal, state and local — which have been used to deny Negroes the right to vote."

What appeared to be a definite minority — mainly from six Southern states primarily affected — threatened delaying tactics against the legislation, which Johnson said he would send to Congress Wednesday after outlining it to congressional leaders today.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said he would filibuster against the measure.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said his House Judiciary Committee would start hearings on the bill a week from today and predicted House action by early next month. Senate leaders were uncertain on a timetable.

The bill will call for appointment of federal registrars by the Civil Service Commission to guarantee that all qualified persons are permitted to vote in areas where fewer than 50 per cent of those qualified are registered, or where fewer than 50 per cent voted in last year's presidential election.

Justice Department officials said this would apply to the states of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Virginia, Georgia and South Carolina. Fewer than 50 per cent voted in Alaska, but officials blamed this on cold weather, rather than discrimination.

Johnson called on Congress to work nights and weekends if necessary to pass the voting rights bill.

"There must be no delay, or no hesitation, or no compromise with our purpose," he said.

Johnson said "the real hero of this struggle is the American Negro" whose "actions and protests — his courage to risk safety, and even to risk his life — have awakened the conscience of this nation."

He defended "the right of free speech and the right of free assembly" but noted that "free assembly does not carry with it the right to block public thoroughfares to traffic."

The President spoke slowly and solemnly to the packed chamber. He was interrupted by applause about 40 times during the 45 minutes it took him to deliver his speech. Many Southern lawmakers stayed away, and many of those who were present refrained from the applause.

The absentees included the assistant Senate Democratic leader, Russell B. Long of Louisiana, who has said he would support a voting rights bill he considers reasonable; Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., to whose Senate Judiciary Committee the measure will be referred; and ailing Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., longtime floor captain of the Southern anti-civil rights bloc.

Several Southern congressmen indicated support for the measure.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said: "The probabilities are I'll vote for the bill."

Rep. George W. Grider, D-Tenn., a freshman from Memphis, said: "As much as I detest the need for it, we must pass legislation that assures once and for all that no one will be denied the right to vote because of the color of his skin. I shall support such legislation."

But Rep. George Andrews, D-Ala., said, "The President sold out to the Negroes 100 per cent."

Sen. Ellender said: "If the President attempts to have Congress define the qualifications of voters, I'll not only oppose it but I shall filibuster against it."

Southern opponents of the 1964 Civil Rights Act delayed Senate action for three months with a filibuster that attempted to talk the bill to death. A bipartisan coalition finally broke the filibuster, and the law was passed.

Democratic congressional leaders were generally highly enthusiastic over Johnson's speech. House Speaker John W. McCormack called it "an accomplishment in the first rank of statesmanship" and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said it was "a magnificent statement of national purpose and determination."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who has been conferring with administration officials in efforts to assure bipartisan support for the voting rights bill, said it was "a good speech, effective, persuasive and well pinpointed. It will bear fruit, I'm sure."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said the President's plan was deficient in that it could penalize states which do not discriminate against Negroes and fail to resolve problems in some that do.

Tinsley Urges Abolition of Death Penalty

DENVER (UPI) — Warden Harry Tinsley of the Colorado State Prison made a plea for the abolition of the death penalty Monday at a public hearing conducted by the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives.

More than 100 persons attended the hearing. Only two spoke in favor of capital punishment.

The committee has before it a resolution, sponsored by Rep. Ruth Clark, R-Fort Collins, to submit the question to a vote of the people at next year's general election.

Tinsley said the people of the state ought to be given the opportunity to decide the issue.

"In the past 14 years that I've been warden," he said, "I've walked the so-called last mile with eight men. And I've wondered: Is this what the people of Colorado want?"

happened in Selma is part of a far larger movement. It is the effort of American Negroes to secure for themselves the full blessings of American life.

Their cause must be our cause too, because it is not just Negroes but really it is all of us, who must overcome the crippling legacy of bigotry and injustice. And we shall overcome.

Now let none of us, in any section, look with prideful righteousness on the troubles in another section or the problems of our neighbors. There is really no part of America where the promise of equality has been fully kept.

Let each of us look within our own hearts and our own communities, and let each of us put our shoulder to the wheel to root out injustice wherever it exists.

patcher, at no cost to the City of Ivywilld."

The paper said Ivywild would receive $12,000 by conservative estimate, from the Highway Users Tax from the state, to be used for street and roads.

"The 6-mill tax levy (proposed for Ivywild) would be sufficient to meet all the needs of the city, along with the refund of the Highway Users Tax," the paper said.

Also listed was the following proposed budget for the City of Ivywild: police, $21,000; maintenance of streets, $16,000; clerk and recorder, $4,800; treasurer, $1,200; office and publication, $2,400; office rent and utilities, $3,000; police car rental, $1,500; maintenance and operation, $1,700; city attorney, $3,000; city engineer, $1,500; insurance and bonds, $1,100; care of prisoners, $300; humane society, $200; election, $500.

It was estimated that the 6-mill levy would provide $51,000. The paper quoted Colorado Springs Postmaster R. H. Wardwell as saying Ivywild Mail would probably continue to be addressed "Colorado Springs" if Ivywild is incorporated.

"There is a provision in state statutes to permit county commissioners to contract with a city for road maintenance," the paper said.

The paper noted that "The cost of maintaining the roads and streets in Ivywild seems to be one of the big items of contention by the anti-incorporators. We can have an improvement district and pay for the extras, or rely on a group like the Ivywild Improvement Society to do it for us."

The paper quoted El Paso County records that the average cost per mile for all kinds of roads was $570 in 1964. "The Incorporation Committee used a higher figure, $800, as an estimate for maintenance only of each road mile."

company to submit a new bid. The $3,200 bid was an alternate.

The advantages of being members of the District 10 Water Users Association were vague, however, board members decided the $25 a year membership fee would allow the town to have voting privileges in the association.

Tom Salmon, representing Security Garbage Co., asked that a proposed garbage contract between the town and his company, tabled eight years ago, be brought up for reconsideration. He explained that four garbage companies were serving the town and that one could handle the business adequately. Robert Potkonjak, speaking for the Mesa Garbage Co., said that he would be willing to compete for the business or for the contract. The matter was tabled for further consideration.

The board further discussed plans for an open-air shelter to be constructed in the park; the planning program for the town, and the possibility of opening up a dead end street and removing a well and pump to make one area of the town more easily accessible. The last was a request from Mayor Dee J. Hankins.

Soviets Defend Imperialism, Red China Says

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China heaped contempt on the Soviet Union today by publishing newspaper pictures of Russian troops defending the U.S. Embassy in Moscow from Asian demonstrators.

The official Peking Peoples Daily ran seven pictures under the headline:

"U.S.S.R. renders service to U.S. imperialism by suppressing anti-U.S. demonstration."

Photographs of Chinese and North Vietnamese students clashing with Soviet police and soldiers in Moscow March 4 were captioned with questions about the Russians:

"To whom are they cruel? To whom are they kind?"

Pictures of four Chinese students allegedly hospitalized with injuries sustained in Moscow were played on front pages. They showed Chinese Communist officials and foreign dignitaries visiting at their bedsides.

In recent days the official New China News Agency has given the violent Moscow demonstration more attention than the latest American bombing runs against North Viet Nam. The Moscow demonstration was called to protest the retaliatory air raids.

clergymen and others throughout the nation for federal and individual help for the Selma movement.

Church leaders — priests, nuns in their habits, ministers and others — flocked here by the score. They joined a 24-hour-a-day vigil behind a police blockade near the Browns Chapel church, headquarters of the drive here.

Many others joined them for Monday's memorial service in the church.

His Eminence Iakovos, archbishop of the Greek Orthodox archdiocese of North and South America, read Scripture at the service. His text was these two verses from Paul's Epistle to the Galatians:

"For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another.

"For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this; thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self."

Kim Novak Weds Britisher In Aspen, Colo.

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Hollywood actress Kim Novak, 32, married Monday to British actor Richard Johnson, 37, may be wed again soon.

But, a source said, Johnson will be the groom in that ceremony, too, if and when it takes place.

The two went through a brief civil ceremony at Beaver Dam, a picnic glade high in the snowy Colorado Rockies, about a half mile from the T Lazy 7 guest ranch, where Miss Novak and Johnson had come last week for a ski holiday.

A second ceremony may be held, the source said, because Miss Novak is a Roman Catholic. Johnson is not. He has also been divorced once.

Reportedly he will take instruction in the Catholic Church, although not necessarily convert, and the two will repeat their rites in a Catholic ceremony in Chicago when Miss Novak's parents can be present.

Indonesian Mob Wants Americans To Be Kicked Out

By ANTOINE YARED

JAKARATA, Indonesia (AP) — A mob of 3,000 Communist demonstrators today demanded explusion of three American film companies from Indonesia.

The mob paraded in front of the ofices of Indonesian agents for Metro Goldwyn Mayer, Twentieth Century Fox and Warner Bros. Although the offices were closed, apparently by their owners, the demonstrators claimed they had seized them.

The demonstrators demanded that Bill Palmer, representative of the Motion Picture Exports Association of America, leave Indonesia.

The demonstrators, from a Communist organization called "Papfias," said they wanted the offices converted into youth and film halls for Indonesians.

The government lifted a Communist-sponsored ban on American movies last September, but their showing has not been resumed.

American sources said the three offices had a substantial stock of film but no other assets.

President Sukarno's government took over the management of American-owned rubber plantations in North Sumatra last month after Communist-dominated workers demanded seizure of the estates.

Rights Leaders Praise Message Of President

quent and forthright of his career. It would be premature to comment on his program until we can study the text of his bill. But it is clear that the President has now committed the federal government to the support of the freedom movement. That commitment . . . must now be fully honored, not only in voting rights, but in fundamental social and economic areas as well. Congress must act without delay and without compromise.

The Rev. Thomas Kilgore Jr., West Coast director of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference: "The President's speech was by far the greatest boost that we have had in the current revolution."

Edwin C. Berry, executive director, Chicago Urban League: "I heard the President issue the greatest message I think any president has ever uttered. President Johnson tonight ushered in a new era of human decency in the United States."

L. C. Bates, Arkansas field representative for NAACP: "I think it was one of his greatest speeches. We are just sitting by waiting for passage of his bill and seeing if it will relieve the situation any."

The Rev. Robert Hoppe, director of Commission of Race and Cultural Relations, Detroit Council of Churches: "I certainly concur. The proposed bill seems on the surface to be adequate to accomplish what needs to be done."

Ernest Mazey, executive secretary, Michigan American Civil Liberties Union: The President "responded well to the challenge we face at home today. I hope, however, the President will supplement his proposal by proposing legislation that will allow the federal government to prosecute civil authorities like Dallas County Sheriff James Clark."

Byrd Brown, president, Pittsburgh NAACP, called some of the speech "fuzzy," but added: "Generally, we are very enthused and happy that the President has come out so strongly for civil rights."

The Rev. Arthur A. Zebbs, Columbus, Ohio, CORE: "On the whole, it was the greatest appeal for human rights legislation that any president has ever made in the history of America."

W. Barbee Durnham, executive secretary, Columbus NAACP: "I believe he is sincere in doing what he says he is going to do. It will do a great deal toward solving many other problems in the south."

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Folks:

I tried something last month that really works and if you have the inclination you might try it, too.

Each year, hundreds of people run up and down these steps, not looking where they are going, and fall. This results in broken hips, arms, knocked out teeth, concussions, etc. For shame!

We all know that we don't buy a bucket of new paint to paint the basement or attic steps . . . we use leftover paint.

Have you ever thought of mixing "sand" with this? It makes the step a little rough and helps to prevent slipping.

I know one woman who "sand-paints" only the top and bottom step, so she will "know" when she is "there."

I know a bachelor who paints the top and bottom step "red" (with thicker paint) then sprinkles sand on the "wet" paint immediately. Great idea, eh?

Just be careful when using steps. Broken hips and knocked out teeth ane not only expensive, but painful.
next time you paint those steps.

Keep these thoughts in mind —Happy landing! Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I keep a plastic-thread scrubber ball on my sink at all times, but it has a naughty way of unraveling both itself and my nerves.

I fixed it by wrapping it up in a piece of nylon net and gathering the ends of the net up and tying them as one would a sachet.

Works great! —Constant Reader

Surplus Food Distribution May Bypass Local Officials

to distribute the surplus food only through local governments.

While some Agriculture officials still maintain this was the intent of Congress in setting up the program, Assstant Secretary George Mehren is taking a broader view.

Supported by rulings of his department's legal office, Mehren, in backstage discussions on the policy change, contends it is legal to restor to private groups if local government refuse to handle the food.

The unannounced rulings have opened the way for Secretary Mehren to consider the student groups' proposal, pending in the department since December, to distribute food in Mississippi.

Accordng to their plan, the student leaders would initate their operation by selecting one of the 16 counties in Mississippi without surplus food programs.

They intend to recruit a staff from civil rights, church and other student groups to contact families in need of the food. As local government agencies usually do, the private organizations would pay for this distribution.

If this proves workable and successful, the student groups will expand their operations to other Mississippi counties and later to other areas of the country.

THE DANGERS

Several of Mehren's advisers, while approving the surplus food program as it now exists, are cautioning against going over the heads of local governments.

They hold the Agriculture Department should encourage these local authorities to set up programs and not provoke trouble by turning the job over to private groups involved in civil rights.

Failure of local officials to act, according to these advisers, also is advancing a growing trend in Washington to bypass local and state governments in allotting federal aid for anti-poverty, education, food and other projects.

They stress that if the student groups are permitted to hand out the surplus food, they will eventually seek funds under the anti-poverty program to pay for part or all of their operations.

"If the local governments do not take control and administer these aid programs," warned one of Mehren's counselors, "these officials are going to wake up one day and discover that these private groups have moved into their state using federal aid to create a new power structure. If they don't believe this can happen, they should read some of the speeches of Dr. Martin Luther King, James Farmer and Walter Reuther."

The odds at the Agriculture Department are that Mehren and his boss, Secretary Orville Freeman, will approve the private distribution unless the White House steps in and bars a policy change.

WHITE HOUSE NOTES

Adam Yarmolinsky, barred from a top post in the anti-poverty program by congressional critics, is now helping select top officials for the Office of Economic Opportunity, which bosses the project. Although continuing on the payroll as assistant to Defense Secretary McNamara, Yarmolinsky spends almost half his time at the White House, helping Civil Service Commission Chairman John Macy Jr. In his talent search for the antipoverty program as well as other governmental departments. White House aides say Yarmolinsky is more powerful than ever. He also has teamed up with Richard Goodwin, another free-wheeling holdover from the Kennedy Administration, to write speeches for President Johnson. Goodwin is on the White House staff.

LBJ Asks Congress to Approve Voting Rights

of "restrictions to voting in all elections — federal, state and local — which have been used to deny Negroes the right to vote."

What appeared to be a definite minority — mainly from six Southern states primarily affected — threatened delaying tactics against the legislation, which Johnson said he would send to Congress Wednesday after outlining it to congressional leaders today.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said he would filibuster against the measure.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said his House Judiciary Committee would start hearings on the bill a week from today and predicted House action by early next month. Senate leaders were uncertain on a timetable.

The bill will call for appointment of federal registrars by the Civil Service Commission to guarantee that all qualified persons are permitted to vote in areas where fewer than 50 per cent of those qualified are registered, or where fewer than 50 per cent voted in last year's presidential election.

Justice Department officials said this would apply to the states of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Virginia, Georgia and South Carolina. Fewer than 50 per cent voted in Alaska, but officials blamed this on cold weather, rather than discrimination.

Johnson called on Congress to work nights and weekends if necessary to pass the voting rights bill.

"There must be no delay, or no hesitation, or no compromise with our purpose," he said.

Johnson said "the real hero of this struggle is the American Negro" whose "actions and protests — his courage to risk safety, and even to risk his life — have awakened the conscience of this nation."

He defended "the right of free speech and the right of free assembly" but noted that "free assembly does not carry with it the right to block public thoroughfares to traffic."

The President spoke slowly and solemnly to the packed chamber. He was interrupted by applause about 40 times during the 45 minutes it took him to deliver his speech. Many Southern lawmakers stayed away, and many of those who were present refrained from the applause.

The absentees included the assistant Senate Democratic leader, Russell B. Long of Louisiana, who has said he would support a voting rights bill he considers reasonable; Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., to whose Senate Judiciary Committee the measure will be referred; and ailing Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., longtime floor captain of the Southern anti-civil rights bloc.

Several Southern congressmen indicated support for the measure.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said: "The probabilities are I'll vote for the bill."

Rep. George W. Grider, D-Tenn., a freshman from Memphis, said: "As much as I detest the need for it, we must pass legislation that assures once and for all that no one will be denied the right to vote because of the color of his skin. I shall support such legislation."

But Rep. George Andrews, D-Ala., said, "The President sold out to the Negroes 100 per cent."

Sen. Ellender said: "If the President attempts to have Congress define the qualifications of voters, I'll not only oppose it but I shall filibuster against it."

Southern opponents of the 1964 Civil Rights Act delayed Senate action for three months with a filibuster that attempted to talk the bill to death. A bipartisan coalition finally broke the filibuster, and the law was passed.

Democratic congressional leaders were generally highly enthusiastic over Johnson's speech. House Speaker John W. McCormack called it "an accomplishment in the first rank of statesmanship" and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said it was "a magnificent statement of national purpose and determination."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who has been conferring with administration officials in efforts to assure bipartisan support for the voting rights bill, said it was "a good speech, effective, persuasive and well pinpointed. It will bear fruit, I'm sure."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said the President's plan was deficient in that it could penalize states which do not discriminate against Negroes and fail to resolve problems in some that do.

Tinsley Urges Abolition of Death Penalty

DENVER (UPI) — Warden Harry Tinsley of the Colorado State Prison made a plea for the abolition of the death penalty Monday at a public hearing conducted by the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives.

More than 100 persons attended the hearing. Only two spoke in favor of capital punishment.

The committee has before it a resolution, sponsored by Rep. Ruth Clark, R-Fort Collins, to submit the question to a vote of the people at next year's general election.

Tinsley said the people of the state ought to be given the opportunity to decide the issue.

"In the past 14 years that I've been warden," he said, "I've walked the so-called last mile with eight men. And I've wondered: Is this what the people of Colorado want?"

happened in Selma is part of a far larger movement. It is the effort of American Negroes to secure for themselves the full blessings of American life.

Their cause must be our cause too, because it is not just Negroes but really it is all of us, who must overcome the crippling legacy of bigotry and injustice. And we shall overcome.

Now let none of us, in any section, look with prideful righteousness on the troubles in another section or the problems of our neighbors. There is really no part of America where the promise of equality has been fully kept.

Let each of us look within our own hearts and our own communities, and let each of us put our shoulder to the wheel to root out injustice wherever it exists.

patcher, at no cost to the City of Ivywilld."

The paper said Ivywild would receive $12,000 by conservative estimate, from the Highway Users Tax from the state, to be used for street and roads.

"The 6-mill tax levy (proposed for Ivywild) would be sufficient to meet all the needs of the city, along with the refund of the Highway Users Tax," the paper said.

Also listed was the following proposed budget for the City of Ivywild: police, $21,000; maintenance of streets, $16,000; clerk and recorder, $4,800; treasurer, $1,200; office and publication, $2,400; office rent and utilities, $3,000; police car rental, $1,500; maintenance and operation, $1,700; city attorney, $3,000; city engineer, $1,500; insurance and bonds, $1,100; care of prisoners, $300; humane society, $200; election, $500.

It was estimated that the 6-mill levy would provide $51,000. The paper quoted Colorado Springs Postmaster R. H. Wardwell as saying Ivywild Mail would probably continue to be addressed "Colorado Springs" if Ivywild is incorporated.

"There is a provision in state statutes to permit county commissioners to contract with a city for road maintenance," the paper said.

The paper noted that "The cost of maintaining the roads and streets in Ivywild seems to be one of the big items of contention by the anti-incorporators. We can have an improvement district and pay for the extras, or rely on a group like the Ivywild Improvement Society to do it for us."

The paper quoted El Paso County records that the average cost per mile for all kinds of roads was $570 in 1964. "The Incorporation Committee used a higher figure, $800, as an estimate for maintenance only of each road mile."

Fountain Council Okays Disputed Water Contract

company to submit a new bid. The $3,200 bid was an alternate.

The advantages of being members of the District 10 Water Users Association were vague, however, board members decided the $25 a year membership fee would allow the town to have voting privileges in the association.

Tom Salmon, representing Security Garbage Co., asked that a proposed garbage contract between the town and his company, tabled eight years ago, be brought up for reconsideration. He explained that four garbage companies were serving the town and that one could handle the business adequately. Robert Potkonjak, speaking for the Mesa Garbage Co., said that he would be willing to compete for the business or for the contract. The matter was tabled for further consideration.

The board further discussed plans for an open-air shelter to be constructed in the park; the planning program for the town, and the possibility of opening up a dead end street and removing a well and pump to make one area of the town more easily accessible. The last was a request from Mayor Dee J. Hankins.

Soviets Defend Imperialism, Red China Says

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China heaped contempt on the Soviet Union today by publishing newspaper pictures of Russian troops defending the U.S. Embassy in Moscow from Asian demonstrators.

The official Peking Peoples Daily ran seven pictures under the headline:

"U.S.S.R. renders service to U.S. imperialism by suppressing anti-U.S. demonstration."

Photographs of Chinese and North Vietnamese students clashing with Soviet police and soldiers in Moscow March 4 were captioned with questions about the Russians:

"To whom are they cruel? To whom are they kind?"

Pictures of four Chinese students allegedly hospitalized with injuries sustained in Moscow were played on front pages. They showed Chinese Communist officials and foreign dignitaries visiting at their bedsides.

In recent days the official New China News Agency has given the violent Moscow demonstration more attention than the latest American bombing runs against North Viet Nam. The Moscow demonstration was called to protest the retaliatory air raids.

clergymen and others throughout the nation for federal and individual help for the Selma movement.

Church leaders — priests, nuns in their habits, ministers and others — flocked here by the score. They joined a 24-hour-a-day vigil behind a police blockade near the Browns Chapel church, headquarters of the drive here.

Many others joined them for Monday's memorial service in the church.

His Eminence Iakovos, archbishop of the Greek Orthodox archdiocese of North and South America, read Scripture at the service. His text was these two verses from Paul's Epistle to the Galatians:

"For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another.

"For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this; thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self."

Rev. Richard I. Peterson, pastor of Stratmoor Hills Methoadist Church, the principal speaker, said this is a war to defeat segregation.

"All of us must be willing — white and black to put ourselves on the front line in this battle," he said.

During speeches, and prayers for Rev. Reeb, curious motorists cruised slowly by city hall as police watched at a distance.

Remarks were also made by Samuel Hunter Jr., past president of the local NAACP chapter.

Kim Novak Weds Britisher In Aspen, Colo.

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Hollywood actress Kim Novak, 32, married Monday to British actor Richard Johnson, 37, may be wed again soon.

But, a source said, Johnson will be the groom in that ceremony, too, if and when it takes place.

The two went through a brief civil ceremony at Beaver Dam, a picnic glade high in the snowy Colorado Rockies, about a half mile from the T Lazy 7 guest ranch, where Miss Novak and Johnson had come last week for a ski holiday.

A second ceremony may be held, the source said, because Miss Novak is a Roman Catholic. Johnson is not. He has also been divorced once.

Reportedly he will take instruction in the Catholic Church, although not necessarily convert, and the two will repeat their rites in a Catholic ceremony in Chicago when Miss Novak's parents can be present.

Indonesian Mob Wants Americans To Be Kicked Out

By ANTOINE YARED

JAKARATA, Indonesia (AP) — A mob of 3,000 Communist demonstrators today demanded explusion of three American film companies from Indonesia.

The mob paraded in front of the ofices of Indonesian agents for Metro Goldwyn Mayer, Twentieth Century Fox and Warner Bros. Although the offices were closed, apparently by their owners, the demonstrators claimed they had seized them.

The demonstrators demanded that Bill Palmer, representative of the Motion Picture Exports Association of America, leave Indonesia.

The demonstrators, from a Communist organization called "Papfias," said they wanted the offices converted into youth and film halls for Indonesians.

The government lifted a Communist-sponsored ban on American movies last September, but their showing has not been resumed.

American sources said the three offices had a substantial stock of film but no other assets.

President Sukarno's government took over the management of American-owned rubber plantations in North Sumatra last month after Communist-dominated workers demanded seizure of the estates.

Frank Rensely Moore who was scheduled to be tried in district court this morning for aggravated robbery had his trial date vacated at request of counsel HayDen Kane and re-set for April 27.

Anderson, 33, 2702 W. Colorado Ave., was first charged with no account check and alleged to have given Safeways Stores Inc. a $40 bad check Nov. 20. The guilty plea was received after Deputy District Attorney Robert Carvell amended the charge to the lesser offense.

Anderson was represented by lawyer Mary F. Gordon.

D. E. Eskelson, 10 Deer Path Ave., reported to the sheriff's office Monday that two lawn chairs, an ice chest and several other items worth a total of $54 had been stolen from a storage shed at the rear of the Stratmoor Manor Apartments, 390 S. Fairway Dr.

According to Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche, Eskelson, had been living in the apartments and left the items in the shed. When he returned for them two days later, they were gone.

Rights Leaders Praise Message Of President

quent and forthright of his career. It would be premature to comment on his program until we can study the text of his bill. But it is clear that the President has now committed the federal government to the support of the freedom movement. That commitment . . . must now be fully honored, not only in voting rights, but in fundamental social and economic areas as well. Congress must act without delay and without compromise.

The Rev. Thomas Kilgore Jr., West Coast director of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference: "The President's speech was by far the greatest boost that we have had in the current revolution."

Edwin C. Berry, executive director, Chicago Urban League: "I heard the President issue the greatest message I think any president has ever uttered. President Johnson tonight ushered in a new era of human decency in the United States."

L. C. Bates, Arkansas field representative for NAACP: "I think it was one of his greatest speeches. We are just sitting by waiting for passage of his bill and seeing if it will relieve the situation any."

The Rev. Robert Hoppe, director of Commission of Race and Cultural Relations, Detroit Council of Churches: "I certainly concur. The proposed bill seems on the surface to be adequate to accomplish what needs to be done."

Ernest Mazey, executive secretary, Michigan American Civil Liberties Union: The President "responded well to the challenge we face at home today. I hope, however, the President will supplement his proposal by proposing legislation that will allow the federal government to prosecute civil authorities like Dallas County Sheriff James Clark."

Byrd Brown, president, Pittsburgh NAACP, called some of the speech "fuzzy," but added: "Generally, we are very enthused and happy that the President has come out so strongly for civil rights."

The Rev. Arthur A. Zebbs, Columbus, Ohio, CORE: "On the whole, it was the greatest appeal for human rights legislation that any president has ever made in the history of America."

W. Barbee Durnham, executive secretary, Columbus NAACP: "I believe he is sincere in doing what he says he is going to do. It will do a great deal toward solving many other problems in the south."

at least one being bounced all the way down the outside stairs. When the 11 refused a police order to disperse immediately, they were taken to police stations.

The demonstrators said they were members of the Congress of Racial Equality and Students Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

The student committee group issued a statement saying 15 demonstrators were dragged out of the building and arrested.

"In addition," the statement said, "several bystanders who were merely singing were also arrested. One student is presently in the hospital."

Stunt Men Have Brush With Death on Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Three movie stunt workers' narrow brush with death in a stunt that went wrong was captured on film and will be kept in the completed motion picture, says director Andrew V. McLaglen.

The accident occurred last Thursday at Indio, Calif., on the location of the film "The Rare Breed," i a scene showing the crackup of a buckboard wagon that was speeding ahead of a stampeding herd of longhorn cattle.

Two women and one man suffered minor injuries and shock, a studio spokesman said. Instead of being thrown clear of the overturning wagon as planned, stunt girls Stephanie Epper and Patty Elder were slammed under the wagon.

They landed in a shallow pit which held a camera. The pit gave the girls space enough to roll out from under the wagon

The accident duplicated another recent stunt mishap in which a man was killed, the spokesman said.

Stunt man Hal Needham suffered a wrenched shoulder when he was pulled forward by the two horses he was driving as the wagon cracked up.

McLaglen said he forgot to have the three cameras stopped when the accident occurred, and that though the mishap wasn't in the script, the scene would be preserved in the film.

"I was sure they were killed." said Maureen O'Hara on witnessing the crash. "It's a miracle they weren't."

Costar James Stewart added: "If an accident like that took place without trained stunt people, they'd all be dead now."

HEDDA FINDS CAST FOR FILM ON N.Y.

NEW YORK — If I'd brought a camera along, I could have made a picture called "Road to New York." The cast was all here. Bing Crosby brought Kathy east for the Grand Sports Award, then on to Baja California for a rest. Dorothy Lamour was in town, and Bob Hope was all over the place. He got off some good ones at the 25th anniversary banquet of the International Radio and Television Society which honored FCC Commissioner Rosel Hyde. They never stopped laughing.

I've been in the Waldorf ballroom before, but that was the first time I ever saw it from the stage. It's the most beautiful room in New York and nobody should give a ball anywhere else. Sat between Leonard Goldenson, of ABC, and H. I. Romnes, a bigwig of AT&T. Have never been so close to so much power and money in my life — quite an experience for a little girl from the country. They were all charming, too. When I introduced Hope, I began with: "distinguished guests, commissioners, and all of you who are saying, 'If it can happen to Jim Aubrey, it can happen to me.' "

Before the banquet, Bud Barry, Hope's sponsor contact, and his wife dropped by. He said, "You don't remember me, do you?" I admitted it. "Well," he said, "it's a good thing or you might not have let me in. We had an awful fight years ago in radio — about the time the blue and red networks split."

Hope and the Walter Cronkites came up for a drink after the dinner and didn't roll out until 1:30 a.m. Walter told us some yarns about traveling with Presidents. Once at the Waldorf, he started for the men's room and found two security officers barring the way. "For the President only," they told him and pointed the way to the ladies' rest room.

Bob's schedule for the rest of the month is staggering and we won't even go into April. Among his chores: He joins Bea Lille at the Cancer Ball in Palm Beach, gets an award from the NBC affiliates, returns to Hollywood to tape a spot with Bill Mauldin for his Viet Nam show airing, March 26, opens the new Los Angeles art museum, does an Easter seal benefit in Toronto, and on the 30th plays a grudge golf match with Jackie Gleason in Miami Beach. Says Gleason, "I hope the chef has plenty of spaghetti because I'm playing with the biggest meat ball in the world." Returns Hope: "I'm looking forward to this grudge match with Flab Galore. Jackie plays much better now that he's holding his pants up with a hula hoop."

They worked all night taping Mary Martin's special because it was the only time the Rockettes were available. The girls performed at the Radio City Music Hall all day, were transported to Brooklyn and fed, and started taping at 2:00 a.m. Now I understand the show won't be seen until Easter of '66, and Mary's "Peter Pan" will be rerun this year.

Maria Callas Greeted By Screaming Fans

NEW YORK (AP) — Seventy-five screaming fans greeted soprano Maria Callas at Kennedy Airport on her return Monday night to New York for her first appearance at the Metropolitan Opera since 1958. That was the time she got into a dispute with the Met general manager, Rudolf Bing.

Miss Callas is to sing the title role in "Tosca" Friday and on March 25.

ANTWERP — Belgium will produce a line of water softeners.

Bagpiper Will Be There, With Finger Splint

NEW YORK (AP) — Lewis Hirsch broke a finger last week when a car door slammed on his left hand, but come St. Patrick's Day the 67-year-old choir singer from Temple Israel will be playing his bagpipes as usual.

With the other regular members of the St. Columcille United Gaelic Band, Hirsch will march up Fifth Avenue in the annual parade Wednesday.

"With or without the splints and bandages, I'll be there," Hirsch told Sidney Fields of the New York Daily News. "I have not missed a St. Patrick's Day parade in seven years."

Hirsch, of South Orange, N.J., is not a once a year bagpiper.

At least once a month the St. Columcille pipers play at parades, picnics and other festivals for Gaelic clans, firemen or Holy Name socieities.

On the chanter of his bagpipe Hirsch has a metal disk with the Hebrew letter meaning "to life."

Hirsch is in his temple choir every Sabbath and holiday. Four years ago he persuaded the rabbi to let him play the bagpipes for Simchas Torah, the holiday for rejoicing over the Hebrew law. While the rabbi held the sacred scrolls in the traditional march, Hirsch followed him, playing happy Hebrew music.

"The organist has a tough time keeping in the same pitch with me," said Hirsch. "The poor guy had to improvise."

Hirsch ran a laundry and dry cleaning business until he retired a few years ago. He found retirement unbearable and went to work as a real estate man. He is proud of his two daughters and a son and his eight grandchildren.

When Hirsch was 12 he won a music prize in school — a ticket to a clan picnic. It was there he heard the bagpipes for the first time.

"I got very excited," he recalled. "The reels, the jigs, the marching music were so spirited and peppy."

He tried to learn to play the bagpipes. Nobody was much help. The wish to play never left him through the years. At 60, he tried again.

His teacher was Sean McGonigal, a leader of the St. Columcille band.

"Seven months later I was in my first St. Patrick's Day parade," said Hirsch.

Hirsch recalls his first practice session with the band. After being introduced to all the "Macs," he asked if they knew the origin of the "Mac" in their names. None did.

Whereupon he told them that they had descended from the Maccabees, one of the oldest tribes of Israel. Actually, the Maccabees were a band of Jewish warriors about 175 B.C.

"And you know something," Hirsch said. "I convinced them it was true — until I broke up laughing."

Stunt Men Have Brush With Death on Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Three movie stunt workers' narrow brush with death in a stunt that went wrong was captured on film and will be kept in the completed motion picture, says director Andrew V. McLaglen.

The accident occurred last Thursday at Indio, Calif., on the location of the film "The Rare Breed," i a scene showing the crackup of a buckboard wagon that was speeding ahead of a stampeding herd of longhorn cattle.

Two women and one man suffered minor injuries and shock, a studio spokesman said. Instead of being thrown clear of the overturning wagon as planned, stunt girls Stephanie Epper and Patty Elder were slammed under the wagon.

They landed in a shallow pit which held a camera. The pit gave the girls space enough to roll out from under the wagon

The accident duplicated another recent stunt mishap in which a man was killed, the spokesman said.

Stunt man Hal Needham suffered a wrenched shoulder when he was pulled forward by the two horses he was driving as the wagon cracked up.

McLaglen said he forgot to have the three cameras stopped when the accident occurred, and that though the mishap wasn't in the script, the scene would be preserved in the film.

"I was sure they were killed." said Maureen O'Hara on witnessing the crash. "It's a miracle they weren't."

Costar James Stewart added: "If an accident like that took place without trained stunt people, they'd all be dead now."

KILLED

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — A 60-pound roll of tar paper being hoisted to the roof of a downtown building fell out of its hopper Monday and killed James Richardson, 25, of Bourbon, Mo., an employe of Biebel Brothers roofing contractors.

HEDDA FINDS CAST FOR FILM ON N.Y.

NEW YORK — If I'd brought a camera along, I could have made a picture called "Road to New York." The cast was all here. Bing Crosby brought Kathy east for the Grand Sports Award, then on to Baja California for a rest. Dorothy Lamour was in town, and Bob Hope was all over the place. He got off some good ones at the 25th anniversary banquet of the International Radio and Television Society which honored FCC Commissioner Rosel Hyde. They never stopped laughing.

I've been in the Waldorf ballroom before, but that was the first time I ever saw it from the stage. It's the most beautiful room in New York and nobody should give a ball anywhere else. Sat between Leonard Goldenson, of ABC, and H. I. Romnes, a bigwig of AT&T. Have never been so close to so much power and money in my life — quite an experience for a little girl from the country. They were all charming, too. When I introduced Hope, I began with: "distinguished guests, commissioners, and all of you who are saying, 'If it can happen to Jim Aubrey, it can happen to me.' "

Before the banquet, Bud Barry, Hope's sponsor contact, and his wife dropped by. He said, "You don't remember me, do you?" I admitted it. "Well," he said, "it's a good thing or you might not have let me in. We had an awful fight years ago in radio — about the time the blue and red networks split."

Hope and the Walter Cronkites came up for a drink after the dinner and didn't roll out until 1:30 a.m. Walter told us some yarns about traveling with Presidents. Once at the Waldorf, he started for the men's room and found two security officers barring the way. "For the President only," they told him and pointed the way to the ladies' rest room.

Bob's schedule for the rest of the month is staggering and we won't even go into April. Among his chores: He joins Bea Lille at the Cancer Ball in Palm Beach, gets an award from the NBC affiliates, returns to Hollywood to tape a spot with Bill Mauldin for his Viet Nam show airing, March 26, opens the new Los Angeles art museum, does an Easter seal benefit in Toronto, and on the 30th plays a grudge golf match with Jackie Gleason in Miami Beach. Says Gleason, "I hope the chef has plenty of spaghetti because I'm playing with the biggest meat ball in the world." Returns Hope: "I'm looking forward to this grudge match with Flab Galore. Jackie plays much better now that he's holding his pants up with a hula hoop."

They worked all night taping Mary Martin's special because it was the only time the Rockettes were available. The girls performed at the Radio City Music Hall all day, were transported to Brooklyn and fed, and started taping at 2:00 a.m. Now I understand the show won't be seen until Easter of '66, and Mary's "Peter Pan" will be rerun this year.

Bagpiper Will Be There, With Finger Splint

NEW YORK (AP) — Lewis Hirsch broke a finger last week when a car door slammed on his left hand, but come St. Patrick's Day the 67-year-old choir singer from Temple Israel will be playing his bagpipes as usual.

With the other regular members of the St. Columcille United Gaelic Band, Hirsch will march up Fifth Avenue in the annual parade Wednesday.

"With or without the splints and bandages, I'll be there," Hirsch told Sidney Fields of the New York Daily News. "I have not missed a St. Patrick's Day parade in seven years."

Hirsch, of South Orange, N.J., is not a once a year bagpiper.

At least once a month the St. Columcille pipers play at parades, picnics and other festivals for Gaelic clans, firemen or Holy Name socieities.

On the chanter of his bagpipe Hirsch has a metal disk with the Hebrew letter meaning "to life."

Hirsch is in his temple choir every Sabbath and holiday. Four years ago he persuaded the rabbi to let him play the bagpipes for Simchas Torah, the holiday for rejoicing over the Hebrew law. While the rabbi held the sacred scrolls in the traditional march, Hirsch followed him, playing happy Hebrew music.

"The organist has a tough time keeping in the same pitch with me," said Hirsch. "The poor guy had to improvise."

Hirsch ran a laundry and dry cleaning business until he retired a few years ago. He found retirement unbearable and went to work as a real estate man. He is proud of his two daughters and a son and his eight grandchildren.

When Hirsch was 12 he won a music prize in school — a ticket to a clan picnic. It was there he heard the bagpipes for the first time.

"I got very excited," he recalled. "The reels, the jigs, the marching music were so spirited and peppy."

He tried to learn to play the bagpipes. Nobody was much help. The wish to play never left him through the years. At 60, he tried again.

His teacher was Sean McGonigal, a leader of the St. Columcille band.

"Seven months later I was in my first St. Patrick's Day parade," said Hirsch.

Hirsch recalls his first practice session with the band. After being introduced to all the "Macs," he asked if they knew the origin of the "Mac" in their names. None did.

Whereupon he told them that they had descended from the Maccabees, one of the oldest tribes of Israel. Actually, the Maccabees were a band of Jewish warriors about 175 B.C.

"And you know something," Hirsch said. "I convinced them it was true — until I broke up laughing."

Shoe Fashions Fair Lady Look

Color selection should pose no problem for shoe-buying teenagers. The color line this spring is a free and flowing one, encompassing soft pastels, clear dramatic tones and subtle neutrals.

Shoe-happy show-offs can display delicate T-strap flats in fine grained leather multi-colored suede kiltie slingbacks and smooth leather pumps in bright colors with discreet buckles or bows. These leather lovelies cradle the foot comfortably and boast flexible leather soles for needed support and protection.

Going all out for the romantic look are leather and very fine grained leathers. Leather pumps cut low at sides or front, or opened up at the sides, are sometimes untrimmed, sometimes adorned with old fashioned jeweled buckles or large flat bows.

Gaily Printed Infants' Wear

There's rarely much fashion news in items for infants. To most shoppers a layette item doesn't have much "S.A.", (style appeal).

This spring you'll find a gay group of infants' playwear, layette essentials and even crib coverings in coordinated ticking-stripe knits, polka dots or "Little Angel" prints.

Even tiny tot pajamas come in cheerful prints and colors, with appliques and other trims on fine knit fabric.

What's New

Made to reduce the need for washing blankets are cotton slipcovers. The slipcovers, which are easier to clean than the blanket itself, are zipped on over the blanket.

Ruffled-Look Hair Styles

Fashions and hairstyles have joined together this season to prove it's once again fashionable to be feminine.

The key to this welcome trend in fashions is the ruffle. Ruffles are appearing to encircle collars and cuffs and to add softness to v-necklines and mantailored blouses. Hemlines, which have caught everyone's fashion eye this season, swirl with ruffles for added interest and movement.

And hairstylists, who take their cue from the fashion world, have turned their talents to creating "ruffled" hairstyles. The look is a frothy combination of soft curls and deep waves a casually feminine look which is replacing the highly teased, smoothly lacquered styles.

The basis for these ruffled hairdos is a body permanent which gives hair the bounce and manageability it needs. And now, styling is easier than ever with a new roller method introduced for use with the foamy push button wave that lets you set and permanent your hair at the same time.

Schools Will Receive Safety Flags

The Extension Homemakers Clubs of El Paso County are renewing their School Safety Flag program which originated in 1960. Members of the twenty - eight clubs will present green and white safety flags to more than thirty school in El Paso County, these will include parochial, Lutheran and county schools (except in Districts 11 and 12). The purpose of the program is to make the children of the county more conscious of their own, safety and that of others.

The flags will fly from the school flagpoles so long as no student attending that school has an accident due to his own carelessness or failure to observe good safety practices. In case of an accident the flag is removed for a week. The pupils take pride in keeping their school flag flying as much as possible.

The flags will be presented to each school by the Club members at an assembly and the program will be explained to the children: safety cartoon movies, "I'm No Fool with a Bike" and "I'm No Fool as a Pedestrian" will be shown by members of the Colorado State Patrol through the courtesy of Lt. Kent Moline of the local office.

This safety project will be continued in the schools again next fall after the summer vacation.

Squadron Will Sponsor Boys' Ranch Project

Eleven boys were signed up and fourteen servicemen from the Squadron have volunteered to act as committee men and Scout Masters. Meetings will be held each Thursday evening at the Boys Ranch.

Plans are being formulated for the following projects: A 4-H club will be formed; an education program; an automotive mechanics course; conservation and forestry program; and a radio program to provide the Ranch with an amateur radio station. There is also a volunteer work force of thirty persons who plan Ranch improvements and landscaping. The servicemen are looking forward to an active and busy time at the Ranch.

Redeemer Lutheran PTL To See Film on Behavior

The Parent Teacher League (PTL) of Redeemer Lutheran School will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the school auditorium for a program concerning child behavior.

A film entitled, "If These Were Your Children," will be shown. In two parts, it will depict the activities and behavior of second grade children with their teachers, with the second part devoted to a panel discussion by child care experts who talk about behavior, with flashbacks to Part One of the film.

A discussion for PTL members, moderated by Capt. Philip Ferdinand, will follow the film.

Speaker for the evening, Dr. Gordon Heuser, will explain the importance of PTL activities for teachers and parents in dealing with problems and possibilities for today's students who face ever increasing demands for more formal education. He is expected to emphasize the value of Christian education in the modern day society, as well as the need to attract other parents to the program.

Redeemer Lutheran School, 2221 N. Wahsatch Ave., is now taking advance student registrations for the fall opening of classes, according to Principal Charles Mulhenbruck.

Necessary registration forms are being sent by mail to parents of returning pupils. These should be filled out and returned to the school by March 12.

Families new to the area — both parents and children —are cordially invited to visit the school to meet principal and teachers, and particularly to examine facilities, Mulhenbruck said. The school is especially proud of its athletic and music programs, and classrooms and training aid are new as well as modern.

Grades one through eight are taught at Redeemer Lutheran. Classes this fall open Sept. 8, the day after Labor Day.

Shoe-happy show-offs can display delicate T-strap flats in fine grained leather multi-colored suede kiltie slingbacks and smooth leather pumps in bright colors with discreet buckles or bows. These leather lovelies cradle the foot comfortably and boast flexible leather soles for needed support and protection.

Going all out for the romantic look are leather and very fine grained leathers. Leather pumps cut low at sides or front, or opened up at the sides, are sometimes untrimmed, sometimes adorned with old fashioned jeweled buckles or large flat bows.

Schools Will Receive Safety Flags

The Extension Homemakers Clubs of El Paso County are renewing their School Safety Flag program which originated in 1960. Members of the twenty - eight clubs will present green and white safety flags to more than thirty school in El Paso County, these will include parochial, Lutheran and county schools (except in Districts 11 and 12). The purpose of the program is to make the children of the county more conscious of their own, safety and that of others.

The flags will fly from the school flagpoles so long as no student attending that school has an accident due to his own carelessness or failure to observe good safety practices. In case of an accident the flag is removed for a week. The pupils take pride in keeping their school flag flying as much as possible.

The flags will be presented to each school by the Club members at an assembly and the program will be explained to the children: safety cartoon movies, "I'm No Fool with a Bike" and "I'm No Fool as a Pedestrian" will be shown by members of the Colorado State Patrol through the courtesy of Lt. Kent Moline of the local office.

This safety project will be continued in the schools again next fall after the summer vacation.

Gaily Printed Infants' Wear

There's rarely much fashion news in items for infants. To most shoppers a layette item doesn't have much "S.A.", (style appeal).

This spring you'll find a gay group of infants' playwear, layette essentials and even crib coverings in coordinated ticking-stripe knits, polka dots or "Little Angel" prints.

Even tiny tot pajamas come in cheerful prints and colors, with appliques and other trims on fine knit fabric.

What's New

Made to reduce the need for washing blankets are cotton slipcovers. The slipcovers, which are easier to clean than the blanket itself, are zipped on over the blanket.

Ruffled-Look Hair Styles

Fashions and hairstyles have joined together this season to prove it's once again fashionable to be feminine.

The key to this welcome trend in fashions is the ruffle. Ruffles are appearing to encircle collars and cuffs and to add softness to v-necklines and man-tailored blouses. Hemlines, which have caught everyone's fashion eye this season, swirl with ruffles for added interest and movement.

And hairstylists, who take their cue from the fashion world, have turned their talents to creating "ruffled" hairstyles. The look is a frothy combination of soft curls and deep waves a casually feminine look which is replacing the highly teased, smoothly lacquered styles.

The basis for these ruffled hairdos is a body permanent which gives hair the bounce and manageability it needs. And now, styling is easier than ever with a new roller method introduced for use with the foamy push button wave that lets you set and permanent your hair at the same time.

Redeemer Lutheran PTL To See Film on Behavior

The Parent Teacher League (PTL) of Redeemer Lutheran School will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the school auditorium for a program concerning child behavior.

A film entitled, "If These Were Your Children," will be shown. In two parts, it will depict the activities and behavior of second grade children with their teachers, with the second part devoted to a panel discussion by child care experts who talk about behavior, with flashbacks to Part One of the film.

A discussion for PTL members, moderated by Capt. Philip Ferdinand, will follow the film.

Speaker for the evening, Dr. Gordon Heuser, will explain the importance of PTL activities for teachers and parents in dealing with problems and possibilities for today's students who face ever increasing demands for more formal education. He is expected to emphasize the value of Christian education in the modern day society, as well as the need to attract other parents to the program.

Redeemer Lutheran School, 2221 N. Wahsatch Ave., is now taking advance student registrations for the fall opening of classes, according to Principal Charles Mulhenbruck.

Necessary registration forms are being sent by mail to parents of returning pupils. These should be filled out and returned to the school by March 12.

Families new to the area — both parents and children —are cordially invited to visit the school to meet principal and teachers, and particularly to examine facilities, Mulhenbruck said. The school is especially proud of its athletic and music programs, and classrooms and training aid are new as well as modern.

Grades one through eight are taught at Redeemer Lutheran. Classes this fall open Sept. 8, the day after Labor Day.

Clean baby things that reach a child's mouth with baking soda. Unlike other cleaners, baking soda is a food and causes no harm if rinsing is less than perfect.

Sal-soda provides a no-scrub way of cleaning dirty oven racks. A rack can be submerged in a tub of hot water to which a cup of sal-soda concentrate is added. After a few hours of soaking, burnt-on grease will peel off with a normal washing.

Today's hand produced a substantial swing when it was dealt in a recent team of four match.

The auction began in the same manner at both tables. North opened the bidding with one heart and South immediately flashed the slam signal by making the jump shift response of two spades. When North rebid three diamonds, however, one South barged directly into Blackwood. After ascertaining that the partnership had all the aces and three of the kings, South signed off at six hearts—apparently convinced that he had done his full duty.

East opened a club and, when the dummy was spread, North observed that everything was solid except for the trumps. He proceeded to play the ace and another heart in the hope that the suit would divide evenly. When West showed out on the second round, however, the declarer was obliged to concede two trump tricks to the opposition.

The diagram presents the auction at the other table, where South adopted a more delicate approach. In order to elicit additional information from his partner, he decided to mark time by simply rebidding three spades on the second round. This permitted North to repeat his diamonds — showing a five-five distribution. South decided that a spade contract might prove safer, particularly if North's hearts were not solid, and, after checking her controls, South bid a small slam in spades.

A club was opened and declarer immediately led a diamond to the ace and then ruffed a diamond in his hand. He deliberately trumped his remaining high club to gain access to the dummy again for another diamond ruff. Three rounds of spades pulled the outstanding trumps. The North hand was entered with the ace of hearts, the king of diamonds provided South with a heart sluff and picked up East's queen establishing the ten for a second discard.

South cheerfully conceded one heart trick to the opposition. The total swing to his team amounted to 1,530 points—1,430 for the vulnerable slam plus the 100 points registered by his teammates at the other table for the defeating heart slam.

Mrs. Bell Stresses Duty Of Women in Politics

"Women's political responsibility began when Susan B. Anthony made her first speech in 1874," said Mrs. Judith Davies Bell as she spoke during a membership coffee held by the Pikes Peak Republican Women's Roundtable Friday at the Colorado Springs Country Club.

Mrs. Bell, the Roundtable's first president and long prominent in community affairs, said politics is a very important science women must learn.

"Our tomorrows, our children's tomorrows depend on our political activities today," she continued. Mrs. Bell pointed out that women who comprise 50 per cent of potential voters, need political education more than any other thing.

"Major points to be considered," she said, "are economics, unions, human rights and dignities, taxes and federal aid." According to Mrs. Bell, the most direct way of becoming educated in these matters is to become active in the party of one's choice. "Politics begins at home," she said.

"We need to not only vote but to know what and whom we are voting for." Voters should be sure that they are electing capable, honest representatives. "Vigilance is the price we pay for liberty," she continued.

Mrs. Bell told the more than 80 Republican women in attendance that organization programs should be aimed at informing members and meeting candidates.

Turning to a woman's role in society, Mrs. Bell told the group there is still no real equality between men and women, and that when a woman holds a job which a man might hold she must be "two or three times better at it than a man. Women must be tops."

"If we should elect a woman to represent us," she said, the woman should be more competent than any man available. Such a woman, said Mrs. Bell, must not seek self glory, but be sincerely interested in the job.

Mrs. Bell pointed to Judge Sarah T. Hughes, whom she knows, as an example of such a woman. Judge Hughes is the federal court judge who swore in Lyndon Johnson following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Tacky Situation

DEAR ABBY: I play basketball for our high school and so far we've had a very good season. My problem is my father. He never misses a game. He used to play basketball himself, and I guess he was pretty good. My father says the coach doesn't know what he is doing. So my father tells me to do one thing and my coach tells me to do another. I know I should do what my coach tells me to do, but you don't know my father. Nobody can tell him anything. Who should I listen to? Don't print my name or my father will kill me for sure. —"X"

DEAR "X": Listen to your father, but do what your coach wants you to do. Tell your father that it's teamwork that counts in basketball, and since all the other boys take their instructions from the coach you must, too, or you'll be letting the team down.

DEAR ABBY: I know it's perfectly all right to remind children to keep their feet off the furniture, but how about adults who should know better? I have one friend in particular who puts her feet up on my polished wood coffee table. She even sits with one foot tucked underneath her like a teen-aged girl, and she soils my sofa cushions with her dirty shoes. My husband says I should let it go as it's not nice to correct guests, especially this one because she has a very sensitive nature. She just burns me up. I still think I should tell her. Who's right? —HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

DEAR HIGH: High blood pressure (yours) is more serious than a sensitive nature (hers), and I think you should tell her—in a gentle way, of course.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a secretary who sits and thinks up gifts for all the employees to give the boss? His birthday is coming up soon and she wants all of us to pitch in and buy him 100 pairs of stretch socks so she can hang them all upon a clothesline in his office and surprise him! No one objects to the cost, it's the stupid idea that annoys us. I say if she wants to give the boss socks for his birthday, she should go ahead and do it. But why involve the rest of us? We would like your opinion of this. —ONE OF MANY

DEAR ONE: If you disapprove of the choice of gift, ask the secretary who dreamed up the idea to count you out. Socks are a rather inimate gift for employees to give their employer and I don't blame you for not wanting to put your foot in it.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "LIKES UNIFORMS" that she shouldn't feel bad. The same thing happened to me. I accepted an engagement ring from a young lieutenant in the AIR FORCE. Then he came back to visit me in his civvies, and I couldn't stand him. I soon realized that it was his uniform that got me, so I gave him his ring back. —NOT SORRY

Clean baby things that reach a child's mouth with baking soda. Unlike other cleaners, baking soda is a food and causes no harm if rinsing is less than perfect.

Sal-soda provides a no-scrub way of cleaning dirty oven racks. A rack can be submerged in a tub of hot water to which a cup of sal-soda concentrate is added. After a few hours of soaking, burnt-on grease will peel off with a normal washing.

Today's hand produced a substantial swing when it was dealt in a recent team of four match.

The auction began in the same manner at both tables. North opened the bidding with one heart and South immediately flashed the slam signal by making the jump shift response of two spades. When North rebid three diamonds, however, one South barged directly into Blackwood. After ascertaining that the partnership had all the aces and three of the kings, South signed off at six hearts—apparently convinced that he had done his full duty.

East opened a club and, when the dummy was spread, North observed that everything was solid except for the trumps. He proceeded to play the ace and another heart in the hope that the suit would divide evenly. When West showed out on the second round, however, the declarer was obliged to concede two trump tricks to the opposition.

The diagram presents the auction at the other table, where South adopted a more delicate approach. In order to elicit additional information from his partner, he decided to mark time by simply rebidding three spades on the second round. This permitted North to repeat his diamonds — showing a five-five distribution. South decided that a spade contract might prove safer, particularly if North's hearts were not solid, and, after checking her controls, South bid a small slam in spades.

A club was opened and declarer immediately led a diamond to the ace and then ruffed a diamond in his hand. He deliberately trumped his remaining high club to gain access to the dummy again for another diamond ruff. Three rounds of spades pulled the outstanding trumps. The North hand was entered with the ace of hearts, the king of diamonds provided South with a heart sluff and picked up East's queen establishing the ten for a second discard.

South cheerfully conceded one heart trick to the opposition. The total swing to his team amounted to 1,530 points—1,430 for the vulnerable slam plus the 100 points registered by his teammates at the other table for the defeating heart slam.

Mrs. Bell Stresses Duty Of Women in Politics

"Women's political responsibility began when Susan B. Anthony made her first speech in 1874," said Mrs. Judith Davies Bell as she spoke during a membership coffee held by the Pikes Peak Republican Women's Roundtable Friday at the Colorado Springs Country Club.

Mrs. Bell, the Roundtable's first president and long prominent in community affairs, said politics is a very important science women must learn.

"Our tomorrows, our children's tomorrows depend on our political activities today," she continued. Mrs. Bell pointed out that women who comprise 50 per cent of potential voters, need political education more than any other thing.

"Major points to be considered," she said, "are economics, unions, human rights and dignities, taxes and federal aid." According to Mrs. Bell, the most direct way of becoming educated in these matters is to become active in the party of one's choice. "Politics begins at home," she said.

"We need to not only vote but to know what and whom we are voting for." Voters should be sure that they are electing capable, honest representatives. "Vigilance is the price we pay for liberty," she continued.

Mrs. Bell told the more than 80 Republican women in attendance that organization programs should be aimed at informing members and meeting candidates.

Turning to a woman's role in society, Mrs. Bell told the group there is still no real equality between men and women, and that when a woman holds a job which a man might hold she must be "two or three times better at it than a man. Women must be tops."

"If we should elect a woman to represent us," she said, the woman should be more competent than any man available. Such a woman, said Mrs. Bell, must not seek self glory, but be sincerely interested in the job.

Mrs. Bell pointed to Judge Sarah T. Hughes, whom she knows, as an example of such a woman. Judge Hughes is the federal court judge who swore in Lyndon Johnson following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Tacky Situation

DEAR ABBY: I play basketball for our high school and so far we've had a very good season. My problem is my father. He never misses a game. He used to play basketball himself, and I guess he was pretty good. My father says the coach doesn't know what he is doing. So my father tells me to do one thing and my coach tells me to do another. I know I should do what my coach tells me to do, but you don't know my father. Nobody can tell him anything. Who should I listen to? Don't print my name or my father will kill me for sure. —"X"

DEAR "X": Listen to your father, but do what your coach wants you to do. Tell your father that it's teamwork that counts in basketball, and since all the other boys take their instructions from the coach you must, too, or you'll be letting the team down.

DEAR ABBY: I know it's perfectly all right to remind children to keep their feet off the furniture, but how about adults who should know better? I have one friend in particular who puts her feet up on my polished wood coffee table. She even sits with one foot tucked underneath her like a teen-aged girl, and she soils my sofa cushions with her dirty shoes. My husband says I should let it go as it's not nice to correct guests, especially this one because she has a very sensitive nature. She just burns me up. I still think I should tell her. Who's right? —HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

DEAR HIGH: High blood pressure (yours) is more serious than a sensitive nature (hers), and I think you should tell her—in a gentle way, of course.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a secretary who sits and thinks up gifts for all the employees to give the boss? His birthday is coming up soon and she wants all of us to pitch in and buy him 100 pairs of stretch socks so she can hang them all upon a clothesline in his office and surprise him! No one objects to the cost, it's the stupid idea that annoys us. I say if she wants to give the boss socks for his birthday, she should go ahead and do it. But why involve the rest of us? We would like your opinion of this. —ONE OF MANY

DEAR ONE: If you disapprove of the choice of gift, ask the secretary who dreamed up the idea to count you out. Socks are a rather inimate gift for employees to give their employer and I don't blame you for not wanting to put your foot in it.

Montgomery Demonstration Is Broken Up

By JIM KNIGHT

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A street demonstration was broken up by mounted deputies and patrolmen armed with shotguns Monday night after the demonstrators started throwing rocks, bricks and bottles.

There was no indication from anyone involved as to what provoked the incident.

Immediately following the demonstration, one of two in Montgomery Monday, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee in Atlanta announced it was pulling some of its force out of Selma and bringing it to Montgomery.

The civil rights group said it was asking those college students from throughout the nation who were heading for Selma to come to Montgomery instead. A Negro leader at Selma backed up the SNCC report.

A group of about 150 demonstrators gathered Monday night near the Ben Moore Hotel in a Negro section of Montgomery. Police said they were blocking traffic as they stood in the middle of the street singing the freedom songs of the civil rights movement.

About a half hour later the rocks and bottles started flying and mounted possemen, armed with billy clubs, rode slowly into the group. The Negroes, shouting as they scattered, faded into the neighborhood, running behind buildings and into open doorways.

There was a report that the action was taken to permit an ambulance to get through the blocked street, one of the busiest in the Negro section. A newsman at the scene said an ambulance followed the possemen through the group.

Police Chief Marvin Stanley said he was hit in the leg with a brick but suffered no serious injury. There were no reports that any of the demonstrators were injured.

The mounted deputies moved in at the order of Sheriff Mac Butler.

While this demonstration was going on, another group of about 300 students — most of them from Alabama State College, a Negro school here — were sitting and standing in a street near the Capitol. This group had been stopped by state troopers carrying billy clubs as it attempted to march on the Capitol.

The group dispersed later in the evening when police told the demonstrators they would be given police protection if they would follow a prescribed route back to the Ben Moore Hotel and leave in groups of five.

Both the streets on which the demonstrators parked are well traveled and police rerouted traffic while they were in the streets.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market headed irregularly lower early this afternoon after a moderate rally got nowhere. Trading was fairly active.

After a mixed start, the list showed a slight gain on balance, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average once more above the 900 level on a half-hourly basis.

This advance was short-lived, however. Some key blue chips took losses of 1 or 2 points. The Dow once more slipped below 900, showing again the difficulty of making much upward progress above that level.

Most major groups in the market were mixed or a little lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .5 at 335.3 with industrials off .8, rails off .2 and utilities off .4.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was of .91 at 898.94.

A 2-point decline by Sears, Roebuck depressed the averages as did losses of a point or so by Du Pont and Chrysler.

National Acme spurted more than 2.

Undergoing further profit taking, KLM lost about a point and Eastern Air Lines more than a point.

IBM was a 4-point lower.

Prices were generally higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged. U.S. government bonds continued higher.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—The market for grain futures turned toward weakness at the opening today of the Board of Trade and failed to muster any rallying support by early afternoon.

Carlot receipts were estimaed at: wheat 2 cars, corn 378, oats 6, rye none, barley 77, soybeans 11.

By JIM KNIGHT

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A street demonstration was broken up by mounted deputies and patrolmen armed with shotguns Monday night after the demonstrators started throwing rocks, bricks and bottles.

There was no indication from anyone involved as to what provoked the incident.

Immediately following the demonstration, one of two in Montgomery Monday, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee in Atlanta announced it was pulling some of its force out of Selma and bringing it to Montgomery.

The civil rights group said it was asking those college students from throughout the nation who were heading for Selma to come to Montgomery instead. A Negro leader at Selma backed up the SNCC report.

A group of about 150 demonstrators gathered Monday night near the Ben Moore Hotel in a Negro section of Montgomery. Police said they were blocking traffic as they stood in the middle of the street singing the freedom songs of the civil rights movement.

About a half hour later the rocks and bottles started flying and mounted possemen, armed with billy clubs, rode slowly into the group. The Negroes, shouting as they scattered, faded into the neighborhood, running behind buildings and into open doorways.

There was a report that the action was taken to permit an ambulance to get through the blocked street, one of the busiest in the Negro section. A newsman at the scene said an ambulance followed the possemen through the group.

Police Chief Marvin Stanley said he was hit in the leg with a brick but suffered no serious injury. There were no reports that any of the demonstrators were injured.

The mounted deputies moved in at the order of Sheriff Mac Butler.

While this demonstration was going on, another group of about 300 students — most of them from Alabama State College, a Negro school here — were sitting and standing in a street near the Capitol. This group had been stopped by state troopers carrying billy clubs as it attempted to march on the Capitol.

The group dispersed later in the evening when police told the demonstrators they would be given police protection if they would follow a prescribed route back to the Ben Moore Hotel and leave in groups of five.

Both the streets on which the demonstrators parked are well traveled and police rerouted traffic while they were in the streets.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market headed irregularly lower early this afternoon after a moderate rally got nowhere. Trading was fairly active.

After a mixed start, the list showed a slight gain on balance, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average once more above the 900 level on a half-hourly basis.

This advance was short-lived, however. Some key blue chips took losses of 1 or 2 points. The Dow once more slipped below 900, showing again the difficulty of making much upward progress above that level.

Most major groups in the market were mixed or a little lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .5 at 335.3 with industrials off .8, rails off .2 and utilities off .4.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was of .91 at 898.94.

A 2-point decline by Sears, Roebuck depressed the averages as did losses of a point or so by Du Pont and Chrysler.

National Acme spurted more than 2.

Undergoing further profit taking, KLM lost about a point and Eastern Air Lines more than a point.

IBM was a 4-point lower.

Prices were generally higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged. U.S. government bonds continued higher.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—The market for grain futures turned toward weakness at the opening today of the Board of Trade and failed to muster any rallying support by early afternoon.

Losses in soybeans ran to more than five cents a bushel at times while the grains eased small fractions generally. Gains were very few.

Carlot receipts were estimaed at: wheat 2 cars, corn 378, oats 6, rye none, barley 77, soybeans 11.

Manpower Inc., To Conduct Job Survey

Roy Broyles, manager of the Colorado Springs office of Manpower, Inc., today announced that his firm plans to conduct a national survey of job vacancies in the general field of office occupations.

Broyles is currently in New Orleans attending the firm's area management conference, where the plans for the survey are being formulated.

The survey will be conducted under the auspices of the Manpower Research Council, a non-profit research organization which is sponsored by Manpower, Inc.

"There is a great dearth of up-to-date information on the areas where jobs are going begging.

Knowledge about job vacancies, particularly in the office field, are practically nonexistent.

Getting this information is our target," said Broyles. He added that part of the research would be done locally through interviews of personnel managers of a random sample of businesses.

The survey will also provide valuable information about future training needs by furnishing data about occupational categories undergoing expansion.

Upon completion, results of the survey will be published and made available to all interested parties.

Local Publisher Set for Committee Berth

Jack Cole, publisher of the Colorado Springs Criss Cross-Cross Reference Directory, has recently been appointed in Washington, D.C. to serve on Postmaster General Gronouski's mailers technical adviser committee.

This committee, consisting of experts in mailing methods from national magazines, newspapers, small businessmen, Chambers of Commerce, book publishers, and other groups, has been selected to develop a better understanding of the application of Zip Codes and other programs to help improve mail service and to promote more co-operation between mail users and the Post Office Department.

Stock Market Shows Signs of General Pickup

The stock market is showing signs of a pickup in public participation, something that has been missing since 1961, according to the latest weekly Report of United Business Service.

The Boston - based advisory firm states that this trend is shown by such factors as the rise in the low - priced stock index to new highs and the low ration of mutual fund redemptions to purchases.

But speculation, the Service adds, is still far from frenzied. One recent brokerage house compilation shows that 60 per cent of 1,500 issues were still under their 1961 - 62 highs despite the 22 per cent rise of the Dow - Jones Industrial Average during the same interval.

The fact is that the market is not as high historically as a handful of widely sought leaders in the average might indicate.

So far there are no real cracks in the boom's foundations. As long as the stimulating forces in business retain their intensity, the outlook is for continued properity, the United Business Service feels.

Among these forces can be included government spending and deficit financing, the tax cuts, record capital outlays by industry, and the boom in consumer spending.

The recent modest move by the Federal Reserve towards tighter money via a dip in free bank reserves is aimed mainly at bolstering short term rates in order to keep funds at home. There are no real signs that the "Fed" intends to discourage internal borrowing, to tighten credit or dampen the business boom significantly.

In view of this picture, and the continued uptrend in earnings and dividends, the United Business Service concludes that investors are fully warranted in retaining positions in sound stocks.

Real Estate Values Change With Transportation Shift

By SAM CAMPBELL

The purpose of this column is to provide background information to help you earn a dollar. From time to time, the casual reader may suppose, the message runs afield from that earthy subject. Yet if you look, almost always you will find the hard-dollar angle.

Still, I think, it is useful to dream once in a while, to catch a vision of things to be.

Along this line, I had occasion a week ago to ask of Donald Douglas Jr. whether the Douglas Aircraft Co. did not see something greater in its new DC9 than just a medium-range feeder to the jet mainlines.

The younger Douglas, who is president of the company that his father founded, conceded that this was so. He explained that airline economics stands on two legs. One leg is the cost per passenger-seat mile, and the other on the cost per airplane mile.

What this boils down to essentially is that the smaller DC9 can fly the same routes that the jet mainliners fly, and, when the passenger load is less, the DC9 is the more economic vehicle.

The gist of it all is a potential increase in flight frequency as well as an extension of jet service to inland points not on the principal airways.

So the DC9 amounts to a major change in transportation.

Throughout history, any major change in transportation has brought with it profound alterations in real estate values. The horse, the camel, the sailing ship in turn have converted waterholes to meccas or shoreline bogs to commercial harbors. The railroads pushing westward from the Atlantic seaboards transformed wilderness to populous habitation.

The relation of real estate to transportationis established history. The question as to the DC9 is more specific. What portions of the inland continent will be most affected by this new vehicular link?

Your guess is as good as mine. But I would look first for climatic attractions — around inland lakes, areas of resort possibilities, hunting and fishing localities.

Second, I would examine the existing promotion capabilities in such places. Geography may be excellent, but you've got to have good salesmanship to translate these features into "buyables." Few things in business ever happen automatically.

Third I would watch the movement of major figures in the recreational industry. The arrival of Walt Disney Productions in Orange County, as many will recall, heralded a vast increase of opportunity, jobs, and commercial real estate values.

The late H. G. Wells at the turn of the century wrote a prophecy for the first half of the twentieth century. A man, he said, will travel an hour each way from his home to place of work. By foot that distance is four miles, by horse it is eight miles; by motor carriage, he predicted, the major cities of the world would spread to 30 miles miles in radius.

If Wells' reasoning holds true for air travel, the theoretical radius for the Southland metropolis is well beyond 500 miles.

Navajo Freight Fills Two New Positions

Rod C. Lochmiller has been appointed Director of operating services, Navajo Freight Lines, with branch office in Colorado Springs, president Robert L. Cohen announced today.

"The new post has been created to centralize control of long-haul freight movements and to increase customer operating services," Cohen said.

Lochmiller comes to Denver from the West Coast with over 15 years experience in trucking at management level. His duties will include line operations, maintenance, purchasing and safety.

Arthur L. Belford will manage Navajo's new central dispatch and customer service department.

Belford has a lengthy trucking background — most recently with Navajo in Los Angeles. His main responsibility is expediting controlled movement of long-haul equipment, loading, delivery and customer service requests.

Functions of the two new management positions will include Navajo's 44 terminals which are spread coast-to-coast and border-to-border across the heart of the nation.

Manpower Inc., To Conduct Job Survey

Roy Broyles, manager of the Colorado Springs office of Manpower, Inc., today announced that his firm plans to conduct a national survey of job vacancies in the general field of office occupations.

Broyles is currently in New Orleans attending the firm's area management conference, where the plans for the survey are being formulated.

The survey will be conducted under the auspices of the Manpower Research Council, a non-profit research organization which is sponsored by Manpower, Inc.

"There is a great dearth of up-to-date information on the areas where jobs are going begging.

Knowledge about job vacancies, particularly in the office field, are practically nonexistent.

Getting this information is our target," said Broyles. He added that part of the research would be done locally through interviews of personnel managers of a random sample of businesses.

The survey will also provide valuable information about future training needs by furnishing data about occupational categories undergoing expansion.

Upon completion, results of the survey will be published and made available to all interested parties.

Local Publisher Set for Committee Berth

Jack Cole, publisher of the Colorado Springs Criss Cross-Cross Reference Directory, has recently been appointed in Washington, D.C. to serve on Postmaster General Gronouski's mailers technical adviser committee.

This committee, consisting of experts in mailing methods from national magazines, newspapers, small businessmen, Chambers of Commerce, book publishers, and other groups, has been selected to develop a better understanding of the application of Zip Codes and other programs to help improve mail service and to promote more co-operation between mail users and the Post Office Department.

Stock Market Shows Signs of General Pickup

The stock market is showing signs of a pickup in public participation, something that has been missing since 1961, according to the latest weekly Report of United Business Service.

The Boston - based advisory firm states that this trend is shown by such factors as the rise in the low - priced stock index to new highs and the low ration of mutual fund redemptions to purchases.

But speculation, the Service adds, is still far from frenzied. One recent brokerage house compilation shows that 60 per cent of 1,500 issues were still under their 1961 - 62 highs despite the 22 per cent rise of the Dow - Jones Industrial Average during the same interval.

The fact is that the market is not as high historically as a handful of widely sought leaders in the average might indicate.

So far there are no real cracks in the boom's foundations. As long as the stimulating forces in business retain their intensity, the outlook is for continued properity, the United Business Service feels.

Among these forces can be included government spending and deficit financing, the tax cuts, record capital outlays by industry, and the boom in consumer spending.

The recent modest move by the Federal Reserve towards tighter money via a dip in free bank reserves is aimed mainly at bolstering short term rates in order to keep funds at home. There are no real signs that the "Fed" intends to discourage internal borrowing, to tighten credit or dampen the business boom significantly.

In view of this picture, and the continued uptrend in earnings and dividends, the United Business Service concludes that investors are fully warranted in retaining positions in sound stocks.

Real Estate Values Change With Transportation Shift

By SAM CAMPBELL

The purpose of this column is to provide background information to help you earn a dollar. From time to time, the casual reader may suppose, the message runs afield from that earthy subject. Yet if you look, almost always you will find the hard-dollar angle.

Still, I think, it is useful to dream once in a while, to catch a vision of things to be.

Along this line, I had occasion a week ago to ask of Donald Douglas Jr. whether the Douglas Aircraft Co. did not see something greater in its new DC9 than just a medium-range feeder to the jet mainlines.

The younger Douglas, who is president of the company that his father founded, conceded that this was so. He explained that airline economics stands on two legs. One leg is the cost per passenger-seat mile, and the other on the cost per airplane mile.

What this boils down to essentially is that the smaller DC9 can fly the same routes that the jet mainliners fly, and, when the passenger load is less, the DC9 is the more economic vehicle.

The gist of it all is a potential increase in flight frequency as well as an extension of jet service to inland points not on the principal airways.

So the DC9 amounts to a major change in transportation.

Throughout history, any major change in transportation has brought with it profound alterations in real estate values. The horse, the camel, the sailing ship in turn have converted waterholes to meccas or shoreline bogs to commercial harbors. The railroads pushing westward from the Atlantic seaboards transformed wilderness to populous habitation.

The relation of real estate to transportationis established history. The question as to the DC9 is more specific. What portions of the inland continent will be most affected by this new vehicular link?

Your guess is as good as mine. But I would look first for climatic attractions — around inland lakes, areas of resort possibilities, hunting and fishing localities.

Second, I would examine the existing promotion capabilities in such places. Geography may be excellent, but you've got to have good salesmanship to translate these features into "buyables." Few things in business ever happen automatically.

Third I would watch the movement of major figures in the recreational industry. The arrival of Walt Disney Productions in Orange County, as many will recall, heralded a vast increase of opportunity, jobs, and commercial real estate values.

The late H. G. Wells at the turn of the century wrote a prophecy for the first half of the twentieth century. A man, he said, will travel an hour each way from his home to place of work. By foot that distance is four miles, by horse it is eight miles; by motor carriage, he predicted, the major cities of the world would spread to 30 miles miles in radius.

If Wells' reasoning holds true for air travel, the theoretical radius for the Southland metropolis is well beyond 500 miles.

Navajo Freight Fills Two New Positions

Rod C. Lochmiller has been appointed Director of operating services, Navajo Freight Lines, with branch office in Colorado Springs, president Robert L. Cohen announced today.

"The new post has been created to centralize control of long-haul freight movements and to increase customer operating services," Cohen said.

Lochmiller comes to Denver from the West Coast with over 15 years experience in trucking at management level. His duties will include line operations, maintenance, purchasing and safety.

Arthur L. Belford will manage Navajo's new central dispatch and customer service department.

Belford has a lengthy trucking background — most recently with Navajo in Los Angeles. His main responsibility is expediting controlled movement of long-haul equipment, loading, delivery and customer service requests.

Functions of the two new management positions will include Navajo's 44 terminals which are spread coast-to-coast and border-to-border across the heart of the nation.

Poll Tax Dead As Requirement For Voting

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The poll tax is dead as a voting requirement and its death has staggered Arkansas' criminal court system. In some courts, trials ceased temporarily.

State law requires that a juror be a registered voter, but the poll tax system became invalid Feb. 28 and Arkansas had not registered voters under a new system adopted last Nov. 3.

That new system still has not been implemented because of litigation concerning the printing contract for the registration form.

The state legislature tried to overcome the problem during the interim by passing a law saying anyone who was a registered voter under the poll tax system Dec. 31, 1964, would be a qualified juror.

But some judges doubt that the law will stand up in court since the amendment that established the new registration system explicitly excluded any other system.

Judge Paul Wolfe of Fort Smith halted trial of criminal cases. Judge William J. Kirby at Little Rock halted such trials, too, but later empaneled a jury and told them, "you know that you may not be qualified under law for this task."

Judge Melvin Mayfield, also of El Dorado, said he believed any verdict the juries handed down could be reversed on appeal because of the registration situation.

"To tip or not to tip?" Apparently you're still thinking about it because we're still receiving letters on that problem. Here are some late arrivals that are too good to file and forget.

"We'd like to voice our complaints on tipping," wrote Mr. and Mrs. W.A.F., of Jackson, Mich. "It's not the 10 or 15 per cent that bothers us, but the lack of service we get for it. Some of the waiters seem to think they are surely entitled to the 15 per cent. No! We are for tipping, but not without special service to merit it!"

J.E.D., of San Francisco endorses tippping. "My motto is 'go First Class and Tip or Eat in a cafeteria.' Don't expect what you refuse to pay for, and it you are going to tip, be reasonable in your demands upon the waiter.

"Many people feel that since they've got to tip, they're going to get every ounce of blood, shoe leather, etc., from the waiter," he continues. "And so they give incomplete orders, and then keep adding items to force the waiter to make many useless, unnecessary trips from the dining room to the kitchen because they want to be certain this 'servant' earns his gratuity."

Quite a few adult writers expressed special concern for youthful tipping quandaries.

"Consider the plight of young boys just beginning to date. Are they expected to tip like their fathers? If so, they would be broke before getting to the movies if they tipped on that scale!"

Over and over again writers mentioned that "with the minimum wage law, all waitresses, carhops, bus boys, etc., have a living stipend and don't need our tips."

We checked into this and discovered that the Federal Wage and Hour Law does not extend to restaurant, hotel and motel workers; they are specifically exempted.

In some states, local laws provide minimum wage and overtime guarantees. But in many others, there is no such law. The point of the matter is that the situation varies greatly from state to state. You should make an effort to get the facts on your local situation. A call to the local Labor Department can quickly inform you.

What should you do when you eat out, get a hair - set, or take a cab? A number of alternatives were suggested by readers.

Said a Michigan gal, "Support the places that prohibit tips, and the others will fall in line when they see their business vanishing. In our neighborhood grocery there is a welcome sign. It reads, 'Do not tip — personnel is amply paid.' It is intended for the package- and - carry - out - boys. The market can be proud to state the fact that they do not expect their customers to pay their help. Let's encourage other places to follow suit."

Other people suggested that readers call and discover what establishments are unionized, and then support these places where living wages are guaranteed.

Still others urged agitation for a 10 per cent service charge. A union official said, "Tipping is socially bad. It makes scroungers out of people. I consider it an abomination, completely unfair and in no way related to the amount of work done. The 10 per cent service charge would be distributed equitably to all employees. This is far better."

What will you do? Let us know We're still mulling the alternatives ourselves. We hate the system, but value the people. 'Tis a quandary!

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Brad brings out a fascinating point which should interest all parents. For the time to persuade a child to go on to college is not after he graduates from high school! You should do it before he even starts to kindergarten! Smart parents thus "brainwash" their toddlers by making them fond of printed pages!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-438: Brad G., aged 32, is a high school teacher.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I am a substitute carrier on a rural mail route for a few weeks in the summer to help supplement my income.

"And I have made a rough analysis that might be of interest to parents.

"Many of these farmers subscribe to a daily newspaper, which I would deliver on my route.

"And I found that the farm homes which received a daily paper contrasted very sharply with those which did not.

"For I checked back against the school records of the farm children and found that those from homes lacking a newspaper, were uniformly in the bottom third of their class.

"On the contrary, those children in homes where they not only received a daily newspaper but also educational magazines, whether church journals or farm magazines or Reader's Digest, were typically in the upper one-third of their class in school marks.

"Moreover, all the high school seniors last year who then went onto college, were from homes that received a daily newspaper.

"I checked and found that 40 per cent of our graduates did not try to enter college and only two of their homes received a daily paper!"

Such clever detective work as Brad describes should inspire all parents to "brainwash" their children with deft prodding to become swift, facile readers.

For reading is the motor of the entire educational machine.

Even if your child has a high I. Q., if he is a poor reader, he will probably drop out of high school or have little interest in going on to college.

And the time to produce a good reader is before kindergarten!

"Brainwash" your kiddies favorably toward books, magazines, reading games, etc.

Let the toddlers point out various animals in their juvenile books, and then link up the sounds made by those creatures, with their pictures as well as their printed names.

You can do this even with children from two years old and onward.

Remember, the earlier you can train a child to look with joy and delight upon books, magazines and newspapers, the more likely you have raised his school marks and predisposed him to enter college!

Beware, too, that you busy college parents don't overlook this vital "brainwashing."

For many brilliant parents have children who are poor readers and who thus shun college preparatory courses in high school.

Parents, your own college degrees don't "rub off" of your youngsters.

You must "brainwash" your child early if you wish him to enter college!

For it is this early fondness for books that usually spells the difference between dropouts vs. honor students!

Send for my booklet "How to Raise Your Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

It will show how to pull a child back up to the average of his class within 6 weeks if he has a normal I. Q.

North Viet Reds Lose 183 Men in Attack on Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos. (AP) — A government spokesman said today a Communist North Vietnamese battalion lost 183 men and was put to flight last week when it launched a frontal night attack on a military school in central Laos.

The spokesman said the attack force of "newly arrived Viet Minh" showed great courage but he said overconfidence contributed to their defeat at the hands of 60 officer students, a dozen instructors and nine policemen defending the school. Three defenders were killed and 13 wounded.

The force attacked early Tuesday, he said, but the Laotian government had 24 hours warning and shipped 60 automatic weapons to the school in the village of Dong Hene.

The spokesman said 123 enemy bodies were counted and another 60 were found in a mass grave a few miles away. One North Vietnamese soldier was taken prisoner.

The Laotian army also captured one 82mm cannon, 10 Russian and Chinese bazookas, 10 light machine guns, two Russian machine guns, 20 submachine guns, many rifles and numerous bamboo sticks filled with gunpowder which are used to blow up entrenchments.

The attackers came Monday night, dug foxholes and set up their heavy weapons. The onslaught began at 3 a.m. and lasted till 7 a.m.

The spokesman said the Vietnamese told the population while retreating, "we lost this time but you will see."

He said the attackers' armament was new and "very superior" to equipment used by the Communist Pathet Lao.

Remember, the earlier you can train a child to look with joy and delight upon books, magazines and newspapers, the more likely you have raised his school marks and predisposed him to enter college!

Beware, too, that you busy college parents don't overlook this vital "brainwashing."

For many brilliant parents have children who are poor readers and who thus shun college preparatory courses in high school.

Parents, your own college degrees don't "rub off" of your youngsters.

You must "brainwash" your child early if you wish him to enter college!

For it is this early fondness for books that usually spells the difference between dropouts vs. honor students!

Send for my booklet "How to Raise Your Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

It will show how to pull a child back up to the average of his class within 6 weeks if he has a normal I. Q.

North Viet Reds Lose 183 Men in Attack on Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos, (AP) — A government spokesman said today a Communist North Vietnamese battalion lost 183 men and was put to flight last week when it launched a frontal night attack on a military school in central Laos.

The spokesman said the attack force of "newly arrived Viet Minh" showed great courage but he said overconfidence contributed to their defeat at the hands of 60 officer students, a dozen instructors and nine policemen defending the school. Three defenders were killed and 13 wounded.

The force attacked early Tuesday, he said, but the Laotian government had 24 hours warning and shipped 60 automatic weapons to the school in the village of Dong Hene.

The spokesman said 123 enemy bodies were counted and another 60 were found in a mass grave a few miles away. One North Vietnamese soldier was taken prisoner.

The Laotian army also captured one 82mm cannon, 10 Russian and Chinese bazookas, 10 light machine guns, two Russian machine guns, 20 submachine guns, many rifles and numerous bamboo sticks filled with gunpowder which are used to blow up entrenchments.

The attackers came Monday night, dug foxholes and set up their heavy weapons. The onslaught began at 3 a.m. and lasted till 7 a.m.

The spokesman said the Vietnamese told the population while retreating, "we lost this time but you will see."

He said the attackers' armament was new and "very superior" to equipment used by the Communist Pathet Lao.

Judge Gives Soldiers Jail Terms For Disturbance at Local USO Club

Two Ft. Carson soldiers were sentenced to 30 days in city jail Monday by Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher on signed complaints by Miss Elizabeth Dickey, director of the USO Club, 211 Colorado Ave.

The two, Ervin Anthony, 24, and J. G. Cook, 20, were found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Miss Dickey testified that the night of Feb. 27, she saw the two soldiers "kicking something" in front of the USO Club.

"I went outside to see what it was," she said, "and it was a white man in the gutter. His face was a mass of blood."

"I talked to him," she said, pointing to Anthony, "and he said the white man was a friend, that they were taking care of him."

Miss Dickey pointed to Cook and said, "Then he went back and kicked the man again."

She said she re-entered the club, rounded up several men, and they took out after the two soldiers.

Robert Lowe, a young Carson soldier, testified he followed "right behind Miss Dickey," he identified Anthony as one of the two who was kicking the man. He said he couldn't positively identify Cook. He said he continued after the two and spotted them in a place east of the Honey Bucket, then entered the Honey Bucket and called police.

Anthony and Cook denied the accusations. Both said they were no where near the USO Club that night.

Mary Green, 28, 1336 Market St., was found guilty of disorderly conduct and was fined $50. The complaining witness, Marvin Anderson, owner of the Silver Spur, said Mrs. Green and her husband came to his establishment Feb. 13, and she started two fights by hitting Chuck Williams and Bill Dailey over their heads with her handbag.

Anderson said this started a fight between Williams and Dailey and one between Mrs. Green and her husband.

"I meant to hit my husband," Mrs. Green testified, "but I hit Chuck Williams."

David Henderson, 18, 1206 Harrison Rd., and Daniel Bartholomew, 20, 36 Elm Ave., Broadmoor, were found guilty of breach of the peace and were each fined $25. Henderson was fined $15 on his guilty plea to drunkenness. The complaining witness was Benny Avila, 18, also of Stratton Meadows. The charges arose out of a teen-age fight Feb. 27 in front of Carpenters Hall.

Osborne Jones, 24, 425 S. Weber St., was fined $50 on a guilty finding of riotous conduct.

Bob Fry, 26, 510 S. Prospect St., changed his plea to guilty to disorderly conduct and was fined $25.

The case of Clarence Miller, 36, 2320 N. Walnut St., on a drunk charge, was continued until next Monday.

Charges of disorderly conduct, riotous conduct, breach of peace and drunkenness against Gerald Thomas, 51, 1629 N. Weber St., were dismissed on a request by the man's fiancee.

Ronald McGinn, 29, Cascade Hotel, was found guilty of riotous conduct and was fined $50.

The charge had been brought against McGinn by John Rivera, 1201 E. Las Animas St., following a free-for-all Feb. 17 at the 119 Taproom.

Rivera, a guitarist, said he led a group at the Taproom, "We found a better job and gave a 10-day notice," he said, "Bill Nelson (Taproom manager) got angry. McGinn hit me, the boys in the band tried to break it up, but Nelson wouldn't let them."

John Price, his drummer, backed up his story, as did Rudy Gomez, 1531 E. Fountain St., who testified that before the fight broke out, he saw McGinn sitting with Nelson.

Nelson said Rivera and his group were late beginning to play that night, and he fired the band. "Rivera's got the hottest temper in town," he said, "next to mine, and he couldn't whip McGinn because he's a professional boxer."

McGinn claimed he got up from his table to go to the men's room, that Rivera came along and said something to him, and they got into a "wrestle," but no punches were thrown.

Judge Asher said he couldn't believe Rivera started the fight, and found McGinn guilty of riotous conduct, dismissing a breach of peace charge.

Vigil Sentenced To 18-Month County Jail Term

Henry Fillimone Vigil was sentenced to 18 months in county jail Monday by District Judge G. Russell Miller for accessory after the fact of aggravated robbery.

Judge Miller said the defendant was "charged with a minimum charge and it really isn't enough." The judge also added that one of Vigil's co-defendants was now serving 30 to 40 years in the state penitentiary for the stickup.

Vigil, 22, 609 S. Sierra Madre St., was first accused of aggravated robbery and alleged to have robbed the Self Service Drug Store, 506 W. Colorado Ave., March 17 when a quantity of narcotics was stolen. The second count alleged he conspired with Henry Eddie Maestas, 28, now serving 15 to 24 years in the state penitentiary for his part in the stickup, and Bennie Thomas Martinez, 30, who is doing 30 to 40 years in the penitentiary.

The aggravated robbery and conspiracy counts against the defendant were dismissed by Judge Miller Monday at the request of Deputy District Attorney Cuba Hollaway.

In denying Vigil's request for probation the judge said he had "a pretty long, serious record" and added "It's hard for me to believe he did not know where he was going and that these boys (Maestas and Martinez) had guns."

The defendant while admitting he was the driver of the car used in the holdup, maintained he was unaware his two companions had robbed the store until they told him as they were driving off. He also claimed he was unaware they were both armed.

State Muslim Unit Seeks Better Understanding

The Colorado Muslim Society has been organized to help correct the misunderstanding of the Islamic Religion developing in America today.

The explanation was given by Muhammad Lebbady, a student at Colorado College. Lebbady, a native of Morocco, has been in the United States since September on an American government grant. He is a political science major. When he speaks of the recent misunderstanding, his 20-year-old face becomes very serious. Asked about the Black Muslims who have received a great deal of notoriety in the past few months, Lebbady hesitated a moment before expalining.

"Islam and Christianity are not different religions," he began. "One is merely an extension of the other. The Koran, a Muslim's Bible, does not teach violence." The Koran says don't fight until someone threatens you. Islam is not an organized religion. We have no churches, no clergy, but simply allow each person to worship as a untiy in himself.

"As far as the Black Muslims are concerned, I don't really appreciate the way they are doing business. Before I came to this country, I thought they had some relation to the real Muslims. Now I find they have only assumed the name. There is much more than that required of a Muslim. A Muslim must not drink alcohol, he must read and study the Koran. He must pray five times a day, fast from sunrise to sunset and meet many other requirements.

"The Black Muslims' leaders preach absurdities about talking to God on the telephone and about how the Islamic Religion was created only for Negro people.

"I think Malcolm X was turning toward the real Islam when he was killed. He went to the Arab World. He saw Mecca and saw the people of all colors worshipping there. He had started to study the Koran and realized that it did not preach violence. He realized how the Black Muslims were corrupting the religion and, because of that, he pulled away from them.

"The Colorado Muslim Society is being organized more as an intellectual than as a religious group."

The society has been formed by Muslim professors and foreign students at various Colorado universities and colleges. President of the board of directors is Dr. Sami Ahmen, Ph.D. at Denver University. The society's center is at 1712 high St., Denver. It will be open from 7 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Fridays, from 1:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Saturdays and from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays. Programs will include religious classes and classes in Arabic and Persian. Muslim books and publications will be available. The center reports it is prepared to send speakers to groups throughout the state to speak on Islam, the problems of the Muslim World and any of the Muslim countries.

The society is planning a Pilgrimage Festival at 7:30 p.m. April 16 in the International House, Denver. Tickets may be purchased here through Muhammad Lebbady.

Persons interested in joining the new society may contact Lebbady at Arthur House, Colorado College, at 473-2233, Ext 354.

Robbery Case Dismissed in District Court

A charge of simple robbery against David Leadrue Jones was dismissed in District Court Monday by Judge G. Russell Miller.

According to the district attorney's office which was represented by Cuba Hollaway, the prosecuting witness Delmar Chenoweth, "having previously identified the defendant as the person who robbed him, and the district attorney's office is unable to proceed on the grounds of insufficient evidence."

Jones, 25, Denver, was accused of stealing $40 from Chenoweth, an employee at the Allright Parking Inc., 18 S. Tejon St., Oct. 9.

The defendant created quite a stir in District Court when he appeared, one of many appearances, on Nov. 27 and Judge David W. Ecoch threatened him with jail for arguing with the court saying "If you were not in jail already you would be there now."

The judge's remark came after Jones had flatly refused to be represented by a court appointed attorney muttering all the while that he "knew his rights." The matter arose after Jones' arraignment had been continued several times. The defendant said he was represented by a Denver lawyer "Mr. Epstein" who never materialized.

Judge Enoch said the matter had dragged on long enough and to expedite the case would appoint an attorney for him and that the court counsel would then withdraw when Epstein entered his appearance.

Jones replief belligerently that he did not want an attorney appointed by the court, and after listening patiently to the defendant's rambling argument Judge Enoch said sharply "You just keep your mouth shut. Whether you like it or not you are going to have a court appointed attorney."

Street Work In City Shows Increase

The city's increased street mileage due to annexations and the growth of Colorado Springs has sharply increased such activities of the street department as ice and snow control and street sweeping.

In his 1964 annual report, Street Superintendent Don Lawrie shows that more than three times as many truckloads of sand were dumped on snowy streets last year compared with 1963.

There was more snow in 1964 than the previous year, but during last year the city added 46.6 miles of streets to bring the total to 376.2 miles. Street mileage to start 1964 was 329.66 miles.

In addition to the need for more sand to combat icy conditions, manhours for street sweeping also increased. Part of this was due to the fact that the sand had to be removed from the streets.

But the hefty increase in street mileage increased the maintenance responsibility of the street department. Last year's increase alone represents a stretch farther than from Colorado Springs to Pueblo.

Lawrie said there were more than six million square yards of paved streets in the city to start this year.

Because of increased street mileage, Lawrie said, his department last year also noted increases in the manhours spent on street patching, street dressing and planing, leaf removal, crackfilling and other miscellaneous work.

Caribou Planes to Land Here

Four Army Caribou CV-2 planes are scheduled to land at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Ft. Carson's Butts Army Airfield on a 2,200-mile non-stop flight from Ft. Benning, Ga.

The flight by the 17th Aviation Co. is a feasibility study of long range flight for the Caribou. The twin-engine cargo craft is capable of lifting a three-ton load.

Each plane is carrying extra fuel on this test which is staffed by 17 officers and 18 enlisted men, headed by Capt. Charles W. Shaver.

The 5th Aviation Batt. at Carson will hold its noon hour parade at 11 a.m. at the airfield to honor the fliers.

There are two companies of Caribou in South Viet Nam where the plane's short takeoff and landing capabilities are valuable. The Caribou can land or take off within a 250-yard area.

The typical load includes the crew plus 32 troops, or fewer troops with vehicles and supplies.

The 17th Aviation Co. is part of the 37th Air Transport Batt., the Army's only fixed wing transport battalion.

A Clothing store burglary between midnight Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday netted thieves approximately $336 worth of men's suits, police reported.

Police said the burglars gained entrance to Musman Clothing, 116 E. Cucharras St., by prying off a window screen and then breaking the window, located at the rear of the store. They then apparently crawled through the window opening, and unbolted the rear door to get the stolen articles out.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Snuggs said Wisemen had gone to the Knob Hill Trading Post, 3112 E. Highway 24, Monday afternoon with two other persons. Once inside, the three seperated.

According to the report, when they left and started toward the car, Wisemen was stopped by Jim Pezoldt of the store who found he had a set of guages and fittings worth $34.50 under his coat.

Pezoldt then went to the sheriff's office, signed a complaint and Wisemen was released to his parents.

Judge Gives Soldiers Jail Terms For Disturbance at Local USO Club

Two Ft. Carson soldiers were sentenced to 30 days in city jail Monday by Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher on signed complaints by Miss Elizabeth Dickey, director of the USO Club, 211 Colorado Ave.

The two, Ervin Anthony, 24, and J. G. Cook, 20, were found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Miss Dickey testified that the night of Feb. 27, she saw the two soldiers "kicking something" in front of the USO Club.

"I went outside to see what it was," she said, "and it was a white man in the gutter. His face was a mass of blood."

"I talked to him," she said, pointing to Anthony, "and he said the white man was a friend, that they were taking care of him."

Miss Dickey pointed to Cook and said, "Then he went back and kicked the man again."

She said she re-entered the club, rounded up several men, and they took out after the two soldiers.

Robert Lowe, a young Carson soldier, testified he followed "right behind Miss Dickey," he identified Anthony as one of the two who was kicking the man. He said he couldn't positively identify Cook. He said he continued after the two and spotted them in a place east of the Honey Bucket, then entered the Honey Bucket and called police.

Anthony and Cook denied the accusations. Both said they were no where near the USO Club that night.

Mary Green, 28, 1336 Market St., was found guilty of disorderly conduct and was fined $50. The complaining witness, Marvin Anderson, owner of the Silver Spur, said Mrs. Green and her husband came to his establishment Feb. 13, and she started two fights by hitting Chuck Williams and Bill Dailey over their heads with her handbag.

Anderson said this started a fight between Williams and Dailey and one between Mrs. Green and her husband.

"I meant to hit my husband," Mrs. Green testified, "but I hit Chuck Williams."

David Henderson, 18, 1206 Harrison Rd., and Daniel Bartholomew, 20, 36 Elm Ave., Broadmoor, were found guilty of breach of the peace and were each fined $25. Henderson was fined $15 on his guilty plea to drunkenness. The complaining witness was Benny Avila, 18, also of Stratton Meadows. The charges arose out of a teen-age fight Feb. 27 in front of Carpenters Hall.

Osborne Jones, 24, 425 S. Weber St., was fined $50 on a guilty finding of riotous conduct.

Bob Fry, 26, 510 S. Prospect St., changed his plea to guilty to disorderly conduct and was fined $25.

The case of Clarence Miller, 36, 2320 N. Walnut St., on a drunk charge, was continued until next Monday.

Charges of disorderly conduct, riotous conduct, breach of peace and drunkenness against Gerald Thomas, 51, 1629 N. Weber St., were dismissed on a request by the man's fiancee.

Ronald McGinn, 29, Cascade Hotel, was found guilty of riotous conduct and was fined $50.

The charge had been brought against McGinn by John Rivera, 1201 E. Las Animas St., following a free-for-all Feb. 17 at the 119 Taproom.

Rivera, a guitarist, said he led a group at the Taproom. "We found a better job and gave a 10-day notice," he said. "Bill Nelson (Taproom manager) got angry. McGinn hit me, the boys in the band tried to break it up, but Nelson wouldn't let them."

John Price, his drummer, backed up his story, as did Rudy Gomez, 1531 E. Fountain St., who testified that before the fight broke out, he saw McGinn sitting with Nelson.

Nelson said Rivera and his group were late beginning to play that night, and he fired the band. "Rivera's got the hottest temper in town," he said. "next to mine, and he couldn't whip McGinn because he's a professional boxer."

McGinn claimed he got up from his table to go to the men's room, that Rivera came along and said something to him, and they got into a "wrestle," but no punches were thrown.

Judge Asher said he couldn't believe Rivera started the fight, and found McGinn guilty of riotous conduct, dismissing a breach of peace charge.

Vigil Sentenced To 18-Month County Jail Term

Henry Fillimone Vigil was sentenced to 18 months in county jail Monday by District Judge G. Russell Miller for accessory after the fact of aggravated robbery.

Judge Miller said the defendant was "charged with a minimum charge and it really isn't enough." The judge also added that one of Vigil's co-defendants was now serving 30 to 40 years in the state penitentiary for the stickup.

Vigil, 22, 609 S. Sierra Madre St., was first accused of aggravated robbery and alleged to have robbed the Self Service Drug Store, 506 W. Colorado Ave., March 17 when a quantity of narcotics was stolen. The second count alleged he conspired with Henry Eddie Maestas, 28, now serving 15 to 24 years in the state penitentiary for his part in the stickup, and Bennie Thomas Martinez, 30, who is doing 30 to 40 years in the penitentiary.

The aggravated robbery and conspiracy counts against the defendant were dismissed by Judge Miller Monday at the request of Deputy District Attorney Cuba Hollaway.

In denying Vigil's request for probation the judge said he had "a pretty long, serious record" and added "It's hard for me to believe he did not know where he was going and that these boys (Maestas and Martinez) had guns."

The defendant while admitting he was the driver of the car used in the holdup, maintained he was unaware his two companions had robbed the store until they told him as they were driving off. He also claimed he was unaware they were both armed.

State Muslim Unit Seeks Better Understanding

The Colorado Muslim Society has been organized to help correct the misunderstanding of the Islamic Religion developing in America today.

The explanation was given by Muhammad Lebbady, a student at Colorado College. Lebbady, a native of Morocco, has been in the United States since September on an American government grant. He is a political science major. When he speaks of the recent misunderstanding, his 20-year-old face becomes very serious. Asked about the Black Muslims who have received a great deal of notoriety in the past few months, Lebbady hesitated a moment before expalining.

"Islam and Christianity are not different religions," he began. "One is merely an extension of the other. The Koran, a Muslim's Bible, does not teach violence." The Koran says don't fight until someone threatens you. Islam is not an organized religion. We have no churches, no clergy, but simply allow each person to worship as a untiy in himself.

"As far as the Black Muslims are concerned, I don't really appreciate the way they are doing business. Before I came to this country, I thought they had some relation to the real Muslims. Now I find they have only assumed the name. There is much more than that required of a Muslim. A Muslim must not drink alcohol, he must read and study the Koran. He must pray five times a day, fast from sunrise to sunset and meet many other requirements.

"The Black Muslims' leaders preach absurdities about talking to God on the telephone and about how the Islamic Religion was created only for Negro people.

"I think Malcolm X was turning toward the real Islam when he was killed. He went to the Arab World. He saw Mecca and saw the people of all colors worshipping there. He had started to study the Koran and realized that it did not preach violence. He realized how the Black Muslims were corrupting the religion and, because of that, he pulled away from them.

"The Colorado Muslim Society is being organized more as an intellectual than as a religious group."

The society has been formed by Muslim professors and foreign students at various Colorado universities and colleges. President of the board of directors is Dr. Sami Ahmen, Ph.D. at Denver University. The society's center is at 1712 high St., Denver. It will be open from 7 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Fridays, from 1:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Saturdays and from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays. Programs will include religious classes and classes in Arabic and Persian. Muslim books and publications will be available. The center reports it is prepared to send speakers to groups throughout the state to speak on Islam, the problems of the Muslim World and any of the Muslim countries.

The society is planning a Pilgrimage Festival at 7:30 p.m. April 16 in the International House, Denver. Tickets may be purchased here through Muhammad Lebbady.

Persons interested in joining the new society may contact Lebbady at Arthur House, Colorado College, at 473-2233, Ext 354.

Robbery Case Dismissed in District Court

A charge of simple robbery against David Leadrue Jones was dismissed in District Court Monday by Judge G. Russell Miller.

According to the district attorney's office which was represented by Cuba Hollaway, the prosecuting witness Delmar Chenoweth, "having previously identified the defendant as the person who robbed him, and the district attorney's office is unable to proceed on the grounds of insufficient evidence."

Jones, 25, Denver, was accused of stealing $40 from Chenoweth, an employee at the Allright Parking Inc., 18 S. Tejon St., Oct. 9.

The defendant created quite a stir in District Court when he appeared, one of many appearances, on Nov. 27 and Judge David W. Ecoch threatened him with jail for arguing with the court saying "If you were not in jail already you would be there now."

The judge's remark came after Jones had flatly refused to be represented by a court appointed attorney muttering all the while that he "knew his rights." The matter arose after Jones' arraignment had been continued several times. The defendant said he was represented by a Denver lawyer "Mr. Epstein" who never materialized.

Judge Enoch said the matter had dragged on long enough and to expedite the case would appoint an attorney for him and that the court counsel would then withdraw when Epstein entered his appearance.

Jones replief belligerently that he did not want an attorney appointed by the court, and after listening patiently to the defendant's rambling argument Judge Enoch said sharply "You just keep your mouth shut. Whether you like it or not you are going to have a court appointed attorney."

Street Work In City Shows Increase

The city's increased street mileage due to annexations and the growth of Colorado Springs has sharply increased such activities of the street department as ice and snow control and street sweeping.

In his 1964 annual report, Street Superintendent Don Lawrie shows that more than three times as many truckloads of sand were dumped on snowy streets last year compared with 1963.

There was more snow in 1964 than the previous year, but during last year the city added 46.6 miles of streets to bring the total to 376.2 miles. Street mileage to start 1964 was 329.66 miles.

In addition to the need for more sand to combat icy conditions, manhours for street sweeping also increased. Part of this was due to the fact that the sand had to be removed from the streets.

But the hefty increase in street mileage increased the maintenance responsibility of the street department. Last year's increase alone represents a stretch farther than from Colorado Springs to Pueblo.

Lawrie said there were more than six million square yards of paved streets in the city to start this year.

Because of increased street mileage, Lawrie said, his department last year also noted increases in the manhours spent on street patching, street dressing and planing, leaf removal, crackfilling and other miscellaneous work.

A Clothing store burglary between midnight Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday netted thieves approximately $336 worth of men's suits, police reported.

Police said the burglars gained entrance to Musman Clothing, 116 E. Cucharras St., by prying off a window screen and then breaking the window, located at the rear of the store. They then apparently crawled through the window opening, and unbolted the rear door to get the stolen articles out.

What a Way to Go

"Downtown Colorado Springs is dying" and another corporation endowed with more money than brains is building yet one more lasting monument to the glory that WAS "downtown" before its untimely demise.

The latest company to announce plans for a million dollar "monument" is the Western Federal Savings which expects to have an elegant three story building up and ready for opening by mid-1966. It will be built on the corner of Kiowa and Cascade, across from Neusteter's beautiful "monument" to the "dead" downtown area.

The buildings that will be razed to make room for the new monument have been there for a long time. But they were built more for utility than handsomeness and it cannot be said they have added much to the beauty of the scene. We are not saying, however, that they were ugly. They were the type of business buildings found in most small towns and they fulfilled their purpose remarkably well — for a small town.

But, all joking aside, the Springs is growing in case you hadn't noticed, and, with few exceptions, the bigger, the better, the more handsome and the more expensive buildings are going up in the downtown area. We extend a hearty welcome to the Western Federal Savings into the downtown section of the city. And we believe the company will not lose in business or prestige by joining the select company of hardy entrepreneurs who, in spite of the prophets of doom, are keeping the downtown area very much alive and handsomer than ever.

While we are on the subject of new buildings, we are happy to learn that the Odd Fellows Lodge has finally won its long fight with the planning commission and the City Council and will be allowed to build its contemplated high-rise apartment building on its property located at Eastlake Blvd. and Airport Road.

In order to win the approval of the powers that be, however, the IOOF was compelled to compromise and reduce their building from a proposed 180 units to 145. What difference the extra 35 units would have made, except to furnish more needed housing and perhaps a little more profit for the Lodge is not easy to understand.

But the inscrutable minds of the planners are beyond the fathoming of all but other planners.

But one thing is certain, another 35 units would have meant the expenditure of considerable more money and would have furnished jobs for a longer period and would, in the long run, have meant a great deal more taxes for the city dads, who are always dreaming up new schemes for taxing us.

Other buildings mentioned recently in the news are two more Furr Food Stores, another Miller's Supermarket and the Cox office building at 308 W. Fillmore, a new Westland Theatre on Highway 24 and many, many new homes.

It has been noted by the Denver papers that the Springs is growing at a much faster clip than the mile-high city and they are wondering why. Could it be because the Springs has not yet passed a sales tax or further burdened business with new forms of taxes? If so, the city fathers should think twice before mortgaging the entire city up to 10 per cent of its worth. A good tax climate is a precious commodity to any community.

Voice of the Crowd

The applause and admiration by the masses for our politicians actually deludes them into believing they are really statesmen.

Those Who Shape the Future

Ever since last November, there has been a detectable increase in political disenchantment. And that is all to the good.

Only six months or so ago, many of the people who felt that conditions were far from desirable in this country, held to the belief that by means of political action the matter could be remedied. This was, of course, illusionary.

The decisive drubbing of the rebels cleared the air. Many stalwart champions of freedom, smaller government, free market practices and so on, are taking another look at the national scene. They are beginning to see that political methods will not solve the problem, precisely because a mass voting procedure will invariably influence the men in government to take ever larger and more important actions. And if the aim is to reduce government and government spending, then increased reliance upon government, even in this area, is self-defeating.

We have attempted to point this out from time to time during the past several years. More often than not, our argument fell on deaf ears. Hope springs eternal and so long as hope seemed to be justified that by some quick and virtually painless process (an election) our drift into socialism could be halted, there were many who refused to consider the illogic of that procedure.

Since November, there has been a radical shift in thinking among the foremost of the opponents to big government. There are probably scores of schismatic groups emerging but in the main there are four major ones. These appear to be: 1) The persistent; 2) the defeated; 3) the religionists; and 4) the practical.

The persistent are those who have learned nothing by the defeat and propose to continue to try to win their objective by political means. This group readily divides into idealists and practical politicians. The idealists take comfort in the fact that more than 27 million people voted for Mr. Goldwater, who, to his credit, gave them more of a choice than they had had in any election within recent memory. They propose to retain control of the GOP and to make all possible efforts to increase the numbers of persons who will vote for reform next time.

Then there are the practical politicians who say, with some realism, that the GOP is going to have to get back toward the middle of the road in order to attract back into the fold those who bolted as a result of the successful propaganda aimed against Goldwater in the campaign. The lack of realism here is that with each millimeter of shift toward the center, those on the right will drop away.

However, if the middle is more densely populated than the far right (and it is), there would be a net voting gain were this shift to occur.

However, it is unlikely that such a shift would accomplish much in the way of reform. Even if successful, a remodeled GOP would offer little that the powerful Democratic machine will not think of offering.

Next, consider the "defeated." There is a surprising number of them. They feel that the cause is now hopeless. And they propose from here on in to do nothing more. What they have not yet grasped is that the cause has never before been so favorably situated. It is not the cause of liberty that has lost; it is a false method in pursuit of liberty that has suffered. If the "defeated" can learn that it is the method used and not the end sought that must be abandoned, some of these people can be re-inspired and will continue to move in the right direction.

The third group is what we call the religionists. This is essentially a branch of those who believe they are defeated. But instead of taking a hopeless look, they are resorting to prayer. They believe, and apparently are quite firm in their belief, that divine intervention will come and that the matter is entirely up to such an intermediary. Since both victors and vanquished pray to the same God and since each believes his cause is correct, it is doubtful if this particular group will exercise much of a decisive influence on the future.

The final group we have labeled the practical ones. These are they who now recognize that educational methods may produce favorable results in the distant future and regardless of the distance are now buckling down to provide for the right kind of education.

We are greatly encouraged when we discover how very large and how rapidly growing this final segment appears to be. In point of fact, this has been the practical avenue of approach from the beginning.

Men who know the truth from a broad base of understanding, are not apt to be swayed one way or another by phony political sloganeering. They are willing to understand that the journey is a long one, but that it can be undertaken, and with perseverance can lead to the desired goals.

It is along educational lines that true progress can occur. And when enough people understand the nature both of the market place and the political mechanism, a reliance on the compulsion of an election will not be necessary to bring about the desired shift in direction.

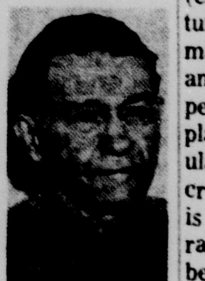
It Won't Be Easy

By RUFUS L. PORTER



What with the population explosion and the general influx of new residents into the area, the years ahead are going to be filled with many problems and the more people we have thinking up solutions to these problems, the better it will be for all concerned. The more freedom each individual has to work out his own problems, the less apt he is to become a problem for others.

This being true it seems strange that the trend lies in the opposite direction — away from individual responsibility and toward more and more control over the people by political groups. Now, the average man has trouble enough planning his own life and getting his children started out on the paths he hopes they will follow, because he knows from experience they will find some measure of success and happiness and, above all else, self respect and the respect of their fellow men, if they continue in the direction he has pointed out to them.

He, the average man, knows full well that he has no right and no business trying to plan for his friends or neighbors. And, since no two people have the same aspirations and ambitions, he knows he would be incapable of planning for them. The average man, left to his own devices, is content to do his own planning and let his neighbors do theirs. Thus, in a city of 2,000 or 300,000 or 20 million, there would naturally be as many planners as there are people, or at least heads of households.

It stands to reason that the greater number of intelligent people who are working on solutions to millions of individual problems, the more solutions are going to be found and the community will be enriched by the knowledge and the wisdom of the many. And this would be the case but for one thing. That things is politics. Politicians are a breed apart from the rest of mankind. They believe they can solve everybody's problems, although they are notoriously unable to solve their own.

The United States started out with each citizen doing his own planning, and no system has ever worked better for the benefit of all the people. So long as the head of each family was his own planner and had total responsibility of taking care of his own we had millions of planners and they planned remarkably well.

But there is a strange quirk (call it a paradox) about maturing nations that has been remarked many times in history, and that is a tendency of the people to let others do their planning for them. As the population and the wealth increases, the number of planners is reduced, seemingly in direct radio to the increases. People become preoccupied with mundane affairs and leave the planning to the politicians who promise them all manner of wonders from new parks and recreation grounds, swimming pools, golf courses, tennis courts, etc., to a "Great Society" where everybody is rich and nobody has to work or plan or bother their pretty heads about anything but having fun.

We can see, by looking back a few years, that we have fewer planners now than we had when the population was much smaller. Eventually each community will have only a small group or perhaps one man doing all its planning. Soon it will be one planner for a whole state and before too long after that, one planner for an entire nation. Where millions of sets of plans are needed, he will have a single set and will force everybody to abide by them.

The trend toward larger populations and fewer planners is clearly apparent in our own state and our own city, and it is looming ever larger on the national scene. Dictators never last any great length of time, excepting, it seems, in Russia where one is traded for another, but they can bring a nation to ruin before the people realize what is happening.

The only way to prevent the final catastrophe is for each and every citizen to refuse to listen to the blandishments of the politicians and to insist upon doing his own planning. Many ask, "But what can I do? One person is helpless against the entrenched power of an overgrown government." But he is not helpless if he opposes with all his strength and sets an example for others to do the same.

There is no miraculous way to win back our lost liberties overnight. Reform starts with the individual. And as the individuals reform themselves, so do the communities, the towns, the cities, the states and finally the nation. Let's get started here at home, why wait for someone else to set the example?

The way to start is to quit expecting, or asking, the various branches of government to do things for us and start doing them ourselves.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 660: "What belief, convictions in man's relation to man causes most of our discord and conflicts?"

Answer: It seems that most of our trouble comes from most people believing that the government or the state has a right to do something that no individual has a moral right to do. This applies also to the city, county, state, and nation.

When people believe that the state, or a subdivision of the state, has a right to do something that no individual has a right to do, then they believe in a double standard of right. And a double standard of right, morals and ethics is no standard.

As the late Isabel Paterson said, "Most of our trouble comes from good and sincere people." We are not questioning their sincerity, but we are questioning their logic and their ability to recognize a contradicton.

As an illustration, one individual who is an editor of what is supposed to be a Christian magazine contends that governments under certain circumstances have a right to manufacture weapons of war and to wage war where no individual has such a right, or no other group has such a right. In that case the Declaration of Independence is junk, because it says, "But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them (the citizens) under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security."

This same individual says, "Likewise governments may properly set up and maintain a monetary system."

Would he contend that no individual had the right to coin money, and stamp its weight and fineness and put his own stamp on it, and distribute it and let anyone accept it who wanted to accept it? Would not each individual have such a moral right? Of course, the individual doesn't have the right to force the man to accept, nor does the government have the moral right to force a man to take paper money instead of whatever he regarded as better money.

It might be summed up by saying that all these things that this individual has no right to do, the state has no moral right to do. It is only a legal right, but not a moral right. You cannot make an immoral act beneficial to mankind by making it legal. Most people are confused by what is legal instead of what is ethical and moral and in harmony with the Commandment, "Thou Shalt Not Steal."

If men didn't steal, they wouldn't murder, they wouldn't commit adultery nor neglect their parents when they were in need.

Another thing this man contends is that in case of epidemics or other crises the government may properly take certain measures which an individual could not take.

Certainly the individual or any group of individuals has a right to protect themselves from the spead of diseases. They can do this simply by preventing the individual who is spreading a disease from trespassing on others' property. They could do it individually or collectively. It would probably be more economical to do it collectively but voluntarily.

Then the man contends that the state has a right to place immigration restrictions which the individual does not have a right to do.

We know of no man who has a moral right to prevent anyone from coming on to his neighbor's property which the neighbor thinks will be beneficial to him and to the immigrant. If a man has no right to prevent his neighbor from employing an immigrant, how can he authorize the state to do something which is unethical, immoral and a violation of the Stealing Commandment when done by any man? When the government does it, it is still stealing.

If there is any person who has an idea of what the state has a right to do that no individual has a moral right to do, that does not violate the Stealing Commandment we would like to have our beliefs in a single universal standard of right corrected.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the wellbeing of all mankind on this earth.

JOB KILLERS

To the Editor:

A Colorado State legislator is very much distrubed because one of his customers threatens to take $60,000.00 worth of business away from him for supporting anti-billboard legislation. And now the whole legislature threatens to make a law, to prevent the business man from spending his money as he pleases.

I wonder how concerned the legislator is about the jobs that will be done away with because of the anti-billboard legislation. And the income it will take away from farmers and land owners.

While our legislature is voting to do away with some men's jobs and others' incomes, they are also voting to give themselves a big fat raise and raise all our taxes.

It's too bad we can't all be legislators and just vote ourselves a big nice raise, every time our taxes go up a bit.

UNBELIEVERS

To the Editor:

For over four years I have been watching and studying cancer cases, in fact, have decided the cause of cancer. In the 11 chapter and 7th & 8th verses of Leviticus God told the people not to eat the swine, as it is unclean. In the 2nd. chapter of Genesis he told Adam and Eve they could eat freely of every tree in the garden except the tree of knowledge of good and evil, ye shall not eat. In both cases they failed to do as told. They were put out of the garden in the first case and they developed cancer in the second case. The Jews did not get cancer until they began eating pork. The Gentiles did not believe God meant what he said, so they gobble pork, like pigs gobble slop. The people are so saturated with eating pork that even the children get cancer. Seventy five percent of the church members do not study their bibles, they may read some, but they do not study it.

In the eleventh chapter of Acts Peter told of having a vision of a great sheet let down from heaven with all kinds of animals and beasts of prey and reptiles. God said take and eat. That was God's way of telling Peter that he was to accept men of all nations color and creed. Most people really thought he was to eat anything he wished, but it was God's way of telling Peter that all nations were God's people and they were to be saved as well as the Jews.

It is surprising how few people believe God meant what he said, in laying down the laws to the people. Very few churches believe what Paul said in Colossians 2d. 12th verse. They do it the easy way which I would be afraid to follow.

GOLDEN RULE

To the Editor:

The Golden Rule does not come under the works of the law. It is not something that any human brought into this world or manufactured. It is a gift, it is life that Christ purchased for us. There are many scriptures that clarify this. A very substantial one is the 3rd and 4th chapters of John. There can be no doubt that Nickodemus was as good as a human can be without God's gift of love, his grace in their heart. As we are told, Nickodemus was a ruler no doubt an expounder, a teacher of the ceremonial law. But he did not know the way of salvation. He very evidently knew the ceremonial law including the Ten Commandments, which was written on tables of stone, and Jesus said when one comes to him for forgiveness of their sins accepts him, they receive spiritual life. The commandments are written on or in their hearts, and when Satan causes them to break one of them which is casual, they are sorry for the offense and go to Christ, their advocate, for forgiveness. He said in another book those who come to him, he does not turn away. We find in John 12th to the 21st verses that when one goes to him for forgiveness, they receive remission of their sins, light and the gift of His love. In verse 27 John says in effect no one can receive forgiveness and the gift of divine love except it be given to him of God. We find in 11 Cor. 3:13 that Christ fulfilled the written letters of commandments, with his gift of love to and for us, and when we receive Him they are in our hearts through our love for Him we keep them. Saint Paul goes on to say that those Ten Commandments were a glorious teacher to those who would be taught to bring us to receive Christ's gift of love. God's people do not need a carnal teacher or laws to say thou shalt not do that or thou shalt do this. Space is too limited for me to do other than barely touch upon the subject. If you will read this short chapter, you should be able to understand the difference between law and grace, which is love. There has always been some kind of human code, or moral law to hold carnal people in check. God's people are not under these laws, they do not need them they have accepted God's gift of love that was purchased on the cross for them. The editor is correct in saying that the Golden Rule is not one of the Ten Commandments. It was not in existence until Jesus brought it, wrote it on the fleshly heart of His children. John 21:25 said if all the things Jesus did were written in a book, the world could not contain the books. The Golden Rule is life in activation John 20:31. Jesus is so infinite. We are so finite. He is so perfect. We are so imperfect. The Golden Rule is Holy because He spoke it. His word is the pearl of great price. In view of what He said in Matt., I do not wish to discuss the Golden Rule any further.

ASK THE INDIANS

To the Editor:

The U. S. government has had all kinds of experience over the years fighting wars against poverty and disease. In the battles of the war on poverty we've known nothing but defeats. Ask any American Indian, for whose people the government has been waging war against poverty, without any victories.

Now the Great Society is escalating this war up to a national scale, without any assurance we won't all end up as bad off as the American Indians.

THE BETTER WAY

To the Editor:

Mr. Blaisdell has been well answered by the Editor up to "We Must Find a Better Way" and there he stops. I thought we had been shown a better way, in fact I thought a Guide Book had been provided, a book that reportedly outsells all others—or am I laboring under a delusion?

From experiences I have had it seems ridiculous to call them delusions. In this "Guide Book"—the "Good Book"—are repeated assurances of "protection"—the only dependable protection there is, provided one is obedient to the rules qualifying one for this divine protection.

Therefore may I suggest substituting "We Must ACCEPT the Better Way" by obedience to God's Law.—the individual right to "Choose ye this day whom ye shall serve". This protection requires NO TAXES, NO Police force, NO courts, NO bails, NO GOVERNMENT EXCEPT God's government of SELF government, the only place we can see it expressed in humanity.

"Clear as mud?" No doubt, until one starts a search in the Guide Book and makes a sincere effort to be obedient and thus to qualify for the benefits of universal, ever-present divine Power.

Wit and Whimsy

Waters on the rampage have made headlines in various parts of the country of late. One of your correspondents reports this warning observance at the edge of a stream in a Western state: "NOTICE: When this sign is out of sight, it is unsafe to cross the river."

The cub real-estate salesman asked his boss if he could refund the money of an irate customers who discovered the lot he had bought was under water.

Boss: "What kind of a salesman are you. Go out there and sell him a motor boat."

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Why is the statement of the proposed receipts and expenditures of the country called its budget?

A— The word budget means a bag or pouch and was applied to the leather bag in which the English chancellor of the exchequer carried his statements of accounts to Parliament. Thus he "opened his budget" to discover the financial condition of the country.

Q—Did George Eliot write any historical novels?

A—Only one, Romola, in which she told a story of Italian life during the time of Savonarola.

Q—What animal lives the longest?

A.—Probably the Galapagos Island tortoise, estimated to live 200 years.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

What a Way to Go

"Downtown Colorado Springs is dying" and another corporation endowed with more money than brains is building yet one more lasting monument to the glory that WAS "downtown" before its untimely demise.

The latest company to announce plans for a million dollar "monument" is the Western Federal Savings which expects to have an elegant three story building up and ready for opening by mid-1966. It will be built on the corner of Kiowa and Cascade, across from Neusteter's beautiful "monument" to the "dead" downtown area.

The buildings that will be razed to make room for the new monument have been there for a long time. But they were built more for utility than handsomeness and it cannot be said they have added much to the beauty of the scene. We are not saying, however, that they were ugly. They were the type of business buildings found in most small towns and they fulfilled their purpose remarkably well — for a small town.

But, all joking aside, the Springs is growing in case you hadn't noticed, and, with few exceptions, the bigger, the better, the more handsome and the more expensive buildings are going up in the downtown area. We extend a hearty welcome to the Western Federal Savings into the downtown section of the city. And we believe the company will not lose in business or prestige by joining the select company of hardy entrepreneurs who, in spite of the prophets of doom, are keeping the downtown area very much alive and handsomer than ever.

While we are on the subject of new buildings, we are happy to learn that the Odd Fellows Lodge has finally won its long fight with the planning commission and the City Council and will be allowed to build its contemplated high-rise apartment building on its property located at Eastlake Blvd. and Airport Road.

In order to win the approval of the powers that be, however, the IOOF was compelled to compromise and reduce their building from a proposed 180 units to 145. What difference the extra 35 units would have made, except to furnish more needed housing and perhaps a little more profit for the Lodge is not easy to understand.

But the inscrutable minds of the planners are beyond the fathoming of all but other planners.

But one thing is certain, another 35 units would have meant the expenditure of considerable more money and would have furnished jobs for a longer period and would, in the long run, have meant a great deal more taxes for the city dads, who are always dreaming up new schemes for taxing us.

Other buildings mentioned recently in the news are two more Furr Food Stores, another Miller's Supermarket and the Cox office building at 308 W. Fillmore, a new Westland Theatre on Highway 24 and many, many new homes.

It has been noted by the Denver papers that the Springs is growing at a much faster clip than the mile-high city and they are wondering why. Could it be because the Springs has not yet passed a sales tax or further burdened business with new forms of taxes? If so, the city fathers should think twice before mortgaging the entire city up to 10 per cent of its worth. A good tax climate is a precious commodity to any community.

Voice of the Crowd

The applause and admiration by the masses for our politicians actually deludes them into believing they are really statesmen.

Those Who Shape the Future

Ever since last November, there has been a detectable increase in political disenchantment. And that is all to the good.

Only six months or so ago, many of the people who felt that conditions were far from desirable in this country, held to the belief that by means of political action the matter could be remedied. This was, of course, illusionary.

The decisive drubbing of the rebels cleared the air. Many stalwart champions of freedom, smaller government, free market practices and so on, are taking another look at the national scene. They are beginning to see that political methods will not solve the problem, precisely because a mass voting procedure will invariably influence the men in government to take ever larger and more important actions. And if the aim is to reduce government and government spending, then increased reliance upon government, even in this area, is self-defeating.

We have attempted to point this out from time to time during the past several years. More often than not, our argument fell on deaf ears. Hope springs eternal and so long as hope seemed to be justified that by some quick and virtually painless process (an election) our drift into socialism could be halted, there were many who refused to consider the illogic of that procedure.

Since November, there has been a radical shift in thinking among the foremost of the opponents to big government. There are probably scores of schismatic groups emerging but in the main there are four major ones. These appear to be: 1) The persistent; 2) the defeated; 3) the religionists; and 4) the practical.

The persistent are those who have learned nothing by the defeat and propose to continue to try to win their objective by political means. This group readily divides into idealists and practical politicians. The idealists take comfort in the fact that more than 27 million people voted for Mr. Goldwater, who, to his credit, gave them more of a choice than they had had in any election within recent memory. They propose to retain control of the GOP and to make all possible efforts to increase the numbers of persons who will vote for reform next time.

Then there are the practical politicians who say, with some realism, that the GOP is going to have to get back toward the middle of the road in order to attract back into the fold those who bolted as a result of the successful propaganda aimed against Goldwater in the campaign. The lack of realism here is that with each millimeter of shift toward the center, those on the right will drop away.

However, if the middle is more densely populated than the far right (and it is), there would be a net voting gain were this shift to occur.

However, it is unlikely that such a shift would accomplish much in the way of reform. Even if successful, a remodeled GOP would offer little that the powerful Democratic machine will not think of offering.

Next, consider the "defeated." There is a surprising number of them. They feel that the cause is now hopeless. And they propose from here on in to do nothing more. What they have not yet grasped is that the cause has never before been so favorably situated. It is not the cause of liberty that has lost; it is a false method in pursuit of liberty that has suffered. If the "defeated" can learn that it is the method used and not the end sought that must be abandoned, some of these people can be re-inspired and will continue to move in the right direction.

The third group is what we call the religionists. This is essentially a branch of those who believe they are defeated. But instead of taking a hopeless look, they are resorting to prayer. They believe, and apparently are quite firm in their belief, that divine intervention will come and that the matter is entirely up to such an intermediary. Since both victors and vanquished pray to the same God and since each believes his cause is correct, it is doubtful if this particular group will exercise much of a decisive influence on the future.

The final group we have labeled the practical ones. These are they who now recognize that educational methods may produce favorable results in the distant future and regardless of the distance are now buckling down to provide for the right kind of education.

We are greatly encouraged when we discover how very large and how rapidly growing this final segment appears to be. In point of fact, this has been the practical avenue of approach from the beginning.

Men who know the truth from a broad base of understanding, are not apt to be swayed one way or another by phony political sloganeering. They are willing to understand that the journey is a long one, but that it can be undertaken, and with perseverance can lead to the desired goals.

It is along educational lines that true progress can occur. And when enough people understand the nature both of the market place and the political mechanism, a reliance on the compulsion of an election will not be necessary to bring about the desired shift in direction.

It Won't Be Easy

By RUFUS L. PORTER

What with the population explosion and the general influx of new residents into the area, the years ahead are going to be filled with many problems and the more people we have thinking up solutions to these problems, the better it will be for all concerned. The more freedom each individual has to work out his own problems, the less apt he is to become a problem for others.

This being true it seems strange that the trend lies in the opposite direction — away from individual responsibility and toward more and more control over the people by political groups. Now, the average man has trouble enough planning his own life and getting his children started out on the paths he hopes they will follow, because he knows from experience they will find some measure of success and happiness and, above all else, self respect and the respect of their fellow men, if they continue in the direction he has pointed out to them.

He, the average man, knows full well that he has no right and no business trying to plan for his friends or neighbors. And, since no two people have the same aspirations and ambitions, he knows he would be incapable of planning for them. The average man, left to his own devices, is content to do his own planning and let his neighbors do theirs. Thus, in a city of 2,000 or 300,000 or 20 million, there would naturally be as many planners as there are people, or at least heads of households.

It stands to reason that the greater number of intelligent people who are working on solutions to millions of individual problems, the more solutions are going to be found and the community will be enriched by the knowledge and the wisdom of the many. And this would be the case but for one thing. That things is politics. Politicians are a breed apart from the rest of mankind. They believe they can solve everybody's problems, although they are notoriously unable to solve their own.

The United States started out with each citizen doing his own planning, and no system has ever worked better for the benefit of all the people. So long as the head of each family was his own planner and had total responsibility of taking care of his own we had millions of planners and they planned remarkably well.

But there is a strange quirk (call it a paradox) about maturing nations that has been remarked many times in history, and that is a tendency of the people to let others do their planning for them. As the population and the wealth increases, the number of planners is reduced, seemingly in direct radio to the increases. People become preoccupied with mundane affairs and leave the planning to the politicians who promise them all manner of wonders from new parks and recreation grounds, swimming pools, golf courses, tennis courts, etc., to a "Great Society" where everybody is rich and nobody has to work or plan or bother their pretty heads about anything but having fun.

We can see, by looking back a few years, that we have fewer planners now than we had when the population was much smaller. Eventually each community will have only a small group or perhaps one man doing all its planning. Soon it will be one planner for a whole state and before too long after that, one planner for an entire nation. Where millions of sets of plans are needed, he will have a single set and will force everybody to abide by them.

The trend toward larger populations and fewer planners is clearly apparent in our own state and our own city, and it is looming ever larger on the national scene. Dictators never last any great length of time, excepting, it seems, in Russia where one is traded for another, but they can bring a nation to ruin before the people realize what is happening.

The only way to prevent the final catastrophe is for each and every citizen to refuse to listen to the blandishments of the politicians and to insist upon doing his own planning. Many ask, "But what can I do? One person is helpless against the entrenched power of an overgrown government." But he is not helpless if he opposes with all his strength and sets an example for others to do the same.

There is no miraculous way to win back our lost liberties overnight. Reform starts with the individual. And as the individuals reform themselves, so do the communities, the towns, the cities, the states and finally the nation. Let's get started here at home, why wait for someone else to set the example?

The way to start is to quit expecting, or asking, the various branches of government to do things for us and start doing them ourselves.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 660: "What belief, convictions in man's relation to man causes most of our discord and conflicts?"

Answer: It seems that most of our trouble comes from most people believing that the government or the state has a right to do something that no individual has a moral right to do. This applies also to the city, county, state, and nation.

When people believe that the state, or a subdivision of the state, has a right to do something that no individual has a right to do, then they believe in a double standard of right. And a double standard of right, morals and ethics is no standard.

As the late Isabel Paterson said, "Most of our trouble comes from good and sincere people." We are not questioning their sincerity, but we are questioning their logic and their ability to recognize a contradiction.

As an illustration, one individual who is an editor of what is supposed to be a Christian magazine contends that governments under certain circumstances have a right to manufacture weapons of war and to wage war where no individual has such a right, or no other group has such a right. In that case the Declaration of Independence is junk, because it says, "But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them (the citizens) under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security."

This same individual says, "Likewise governments may properly set up and maintain a monetary system."

Would he contend that no individual had the right to coin money, and stamp its weight and fineness and put his own stamp on it, and distribute it and let anyone accept it who wanted to accept it? Would not each individual have such a moral right? Of course, the individual doesn't have the right to force the man to accept, nor does the government have the moral right to force a man to take paper money instead of whatever he regarded as better money.

It might be summed up by saying that all these things that this individual has no right to do, the state has no moral right to do. It is only a legal right, but not a moral right. You cannot make an immoral act beneficial to mankind by making it legal. Most people are confused by what is legal instead of what is ethical and moral and in harmony with the Commandment, "Thou Shalt Not Steal."

If men didn't steal, they wouldn't murder, they wouldn't commit adultery nor neglect their parents when they were in need.

Another thing this man contends is that in case of epidemics or other crises the government may properly take certain measures which an individual could not take.

Certainly the individual or any group of individuals has a right to protect themselves from the spead of diseases. They can do this simply by preventing the individual who is spreading a disease from trespassing on others' property. They could do it individually or collectively. It would probably be more economical to do it collectively but voluntarily.

Then the man contends that the state has a right to place immigration restrictions which the individual does not have a right to do.

We know of no man who has a moral right to prevent anyone from coming on to his neighbor's property which the neighbor thinks will be beneficial to him and to the immigrant. If a man has no right to prevent his neighbor from employing an immigrant, how can he authorize the state to do something which is unethical, immoral and a violation of the Stealing Commandment when done by any man? When the government does it, it is still stealing.

If there is any person who has an idea of what the state has a right to do that no individual has a moral right to do, that does not violate the Stealing Commandment we would like to have our beliefs in a single universal standard of right corrected.

Quesitons are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

JOB KILLERS

To the Editor:

A Colorado State legislator is very much distrubed because one of his customers threatens to take $60,000.00 worth of business away from him for supporting anti-billboard legislation. And now the whole legislature threatens to make a law, to prevent the business man from spending his money as he pleases.

I wonder how concerned the legislator is about the jobs that will be done away with because of the anti-billboard legislation. And the income it will take away from farmers and land owners.

While our legislature is voting to do away with some men's jobs and others' incomes, they are also voting to give themselves a big fat raise and raise all our taxes.

It's too bad we can't all be legislators and just vote ourselves a big nice raise, every time our taxes go up a bit.

UNBELIEVERS

To the Editor:

For over four years I have been watching and studying cancer cases, in fact, have decided the cause of cancer. In the 11 chapter and 7th & 8th verses of Leviticus God told the people not to eat the swine, as it is unclean. In the 2nd. chapter of Genesis he told Adam and Eve they could eat freely of every tree in the garden except the tree of knowledge of good and evil, ye shall not eat. In both cases they failed to do as told. They were put out of the garden in the first case and they developed cancer in the second case. The Jews did not get cancer until they began eating pork. The Gentiles did not believe God meant what he said, so they gobble pork, like pigs gobble slop. The people are so saturated with eating pork that even the children get cancer. Seventy five percent of the church members do not study their bibles, they may read some, but they do not study it.

In the eleventh chapter of Acts Peter told of having a vison of a great sheet let down from heaven with all kinds of animals and beasts of prey and reptiles. God said take and eat. That was God's way of telling Peter that he was to accept men of all nations color and creed. Most people really thought he was to eat anything he wished, but it was God's way of telling Peter that all nations were God's people and they were to be saved as well as the Jews.

It is surprising how few people believe God meant what he said, in laying down the laws to the people. Very few churches believe what Paul said in Colossians 2d. 12th verse. They do it the easy way which I would be afraid to follow.

GOLDEN RULE

To the Editor:

The Golden Rule does not come under the works of the law. It is not something that any human brought into this world or manufactured. It is a gift, it is life that Christ purchased for us. There are many scriptures that clarify this. A very substantial one is the 3rd and 4th chapters of John. There can be no doubt that Nickodemus was as good as a human can be without God's gift of love, his grace in their heart. As we are told, Nickodemus was a ruler no doubt an expounder, a teacher of the ceremonial law. But he did not know the way of salvation. He very evidently knew the ceremonial law including the Ten Commandments, which was written on tables of stone, and Jesus said when one comes to him for forgiveness of their sins accepts him, they receive spiritual life. The commandments are written on or in their hearts, and when Satan causes them to break one of them which is casual, they are sorry for the offense and go to Christ, their advocate, for forgiveness. He said in another book those who come to him, he does not turn away. We find in John 12th to the 21st verses that when one goes to him for forgiveness, they receive remission of their sins, light and the gift of His love. In verse 27 John says in effect no one can receive forgiveness and the gift of divine love except it be given to him of God. We find in 11 Cor. 3:13 that Christ fulfilled the written letters of commandments, with his gift of love to and for us, and when we receive Him they are in our hearts through our love for Him we keep them. Saint Paul goes on to say that those Ten Commandments were a glorious teacher to those who would be taught to bring us to receive Christ's gift of love. God's people do not need a carnal teacher or laws to say thou shalt not do that or thou shalt do this. Space is too limited for me to do other than barely touch upon the subject. If you will read this short chapter, you should be able to understand the difference between law and grace, which is love. There has always been some kind of human code, or moral law to hold carnal people in check. God's people are not under these laws, they do not need them they have accepted God's gift of love that was purchased on the cross for them. The editor is correct in saying that the Golden Rule is not one of the Ten Commandments. It was not in existence until Jesus brought it, wrote it on the fleshly heart of His children. John 21:25 said if all the things Jesus did were written in a book, the world could not contain the books. The Golden Rule is life in activation John 20:31. Jesus is so infinite. We are so finite. He is so perfect. We are so imperfect. The Golden Rule is Holy because He spoke it. His word is the pearl of great price. In view of what He said in Matt., I do not wish to discuss the Golden Rule any further.

BUYING SHOVEL?

Foreign and domestic appeasers of the Soviet vermin have brought this world to the brink of nuclear extinction. Freedom is threatened on all fronts. ASK THE INDIANS

To the Editor:

The U. S. government has had all kinds of experience over the years fighting wars against poverty and disease. In the battles of the war on poverty we've known nothing but defeats. Ask any American Indian, for whose people the government has been waging war against poverty, without any victories.

Now the Great Society is escalating this war up to a national scale, without any assurance we won't all end up as bad off as the American Indians.

THE BETTER WAY

To the Editor:

Mr. Blaisdell has been well answered by the Editor up to "We Must Find a Better Way" and there he stops. I thought we had been shown a better way, in fact I thought a Guide Book has been provided, a book that reportedly outsells all others—or am I laboring under a delusion?

From experiences I have had it seems ridiculous to call them delusions. In this "Guide Book"—the "Good Book"—are repeated assurances of "protection"—the only dependable protection there is, provided one is obedient to the rules qualifying one for this divine protection.

Therefore may I suggest substituting "We Must ACCEPT the Better Way" by obedience to God's Law.—the individual right to "Choose ye this day whom ye shall serve". This protection requires NO TAXES, NO Police force, NO courts, NO bails, NO GOVERNMENT EXCEPT God's government of SELF government, the only place we can see it expressed in humanity.

"Clear as mud?" No doubt, until one starts a search in the Guide Book and makes a sincere effort to be obedient and thus to qualify for the benefits of universal, ever-present divine Power.

Wit and Whimsy

Waters on the rampage have made headlines in various parts of the country of late. One of your correspondents reports this warning observance at the edge of a stream in a Western state:

"NOTICE: When this sign is out of sight, it is unsafe to cross the river."

The cub real-estate salesman asked his boss if he could refund the money of an irate customers who discovered the lot he had bought was under water.

Boss: "What kind of a salesman are you. Go out there and sell him a motor boat."

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Why is the statement of the proposed receipts and expenditures of the country called its budget?

A— The word budget means a bag or pouch and was applied to the leather bag in which the English chancellor of the exchequer carried his statements of accounts to Parliament. Thus he "opened his budget" to discover the financial condition of the country.

Q—Did George Eliot write any historical novels?

A—Only one, Romola, in which she told a story of Italian life during the time of Savonarola.

Q—What animal lives the longest?

A.—Probably the Galapagos Island tortoise, estimated to live 200 years.

Kanin Ready To Return to Film Directing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Garson Kanin has long posed an enigma for the movie crowd: why would a man start a brilliant career as a film director, then abandon it?

Broadway-trained Kanin came to Hollywood in the late 1930s and dazzled the town by turning B pictures into minor classics, notably "A Man to Remember" and "The Great Man Votes." RKO graduated him to top productions and he directed such hit comedies as "Bachelor Mother" and "Tom, Dick and Harry," both starring Ginger Rogers.

Kanin was one of the first film figures to be drafted, and he spent five years in the Army. His most notable work during that period was the great documentary "The True Glory," which he and Carol Reed assembled from the footage of more than a thousand combat cameramen, 32 of whom were killed in action.

That was Kanin's last filmmaking. After the war he became enamored with writing, creating "Born Yesterday" and other plays, scores of short stories, a novel, and movie scripts "A Double Life," "Adam's Rib," etc., which he wrote with his wife, actress Ruth Gordon.

Back in town while his wife appears with Natalie Wood in "Inside Daisy Clover," Kanin disclosed he is ready to return to film directing.

"I'm actually prepared to start right away," he said. "MGM has bought my script, 'Roses Are Blue,' and I hope we will be able to start this spring. But we are running into the same problem that faces all producers nowadays: casting.

"The script calls for a girl who is clever, beautiful, sexy, emotional and young. Not many are around to fill these requirements, and those that do are all booked up.

Kanin said he couldn't explain his absence from screen direction, beyond the f[illegible] that he has been doing the things he likes to do. He admitted he may have been impelled toward a return by directing the initial segment of "Mr. Broadway," the short-lived television series based on some of his short stories.

He found the series "beneath contempt," CBS having junked his original ideas for the slam-bang type of television melodrama. But at least it put him behind a camera for the first time since "The True Glory."

"I suppose it was a case of smoke in the firehorse's nostrils," said Kanin, an electric individual whose conversation has the ease of play dialogue. "I hope now to maintain a schedule of one film a year, perhaps two, if I can ever cast them."

His casting will have to develop soon, because Kanin has a full Broadway schedule lined up. In August he begins direction of "A Very Rich Woman," starring Miss Gordon in the play she wrote — and sold to Ross Hunter for films. In October he will direct a new Norman Krasna play, "Naked Mary, Will You Come Out?" and in December his own play, "The Spitting Image."

Kanin Ready To Return to Film Directing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Garson Kanin has long posed an enigma for the movie crowd: why would a man start a brilliant career as a film director, then abandon it?

Broadway-trained Kanin came to Hollywood in the late 1930s and dazzled the town by turning B pictures into minor classics, notably "A Man to Remember" and "The Great Man Votes." RKO graduated him to top productions and he directed such hit comedies as "Bachelor Mother" and "Tom, Dick and Harry," both starring Ginger Rogers.

Kanin was one of the first film figures to be drafted, and he spent five years in the Army. His most notable work during that period was the great documentary "The True Glory," which he and Carol Reed assembled from the footage of more than a thousand combat cameramen, 32 of whom were killed in action.

That was Kanin's last filmmaking. After the war he became enamored with writing, creating "Born Yesterday" and other plays, scores of short stories, a novel, and movie scripts "A Double Life," "Adam's Rib," etc., which he wrote with his wife, actress Ruth Gordon.

Back in town while his wife appears with Natalie Wood in "Inside Daisy Clover," Kanin disclosed he is ready to return to film directing.

"I'm actually prepared to start right away," he said. "MGM has bought my script, 'Roses Are Blue,' and I hope we will be able to start this spring. But we are running into the same problem that faces all producers nowadays: casting.

"The script calls for a girl who is clever, beautiful, sexy, emotional and young. Not many are around to fill these requirements, and those that do are all booked up."

Kanin said he couldn't explain his absence from screen direction, beyond the fact that he has been doing the things he likes to do. He admitted he may have been impelled toward a return by directing the initial segment of "Mr. Broadway," the short-lived television series based on some of his short stories.

He found the series "beneath contempt," CBS having junked his original ideas for the slam-bang type of television melodrama. But at least it put him behind a camera for the first time since "The True Glory."

"I suppose it was a case of smoke in the firehorse's nostrils," said Kanin, an electric individual whose conversation has the ease of play dialogue. "I hope now to maintain a schedule of one film a year, perhaps two. If I can ever cast them."

His casting will have to develop soon, because Kanin has a full Broadway schedule lined up. In August he begins direction of "A Very Rich Woman," starring Miss Gordon in the play she wrote — and sold to Ross Hunter for films. In October he will direct a new Norman Krasna play, "Naked Mary, Will You Come Out?" and in December his own play, "The Spitting Image."

Denver Coaches May Leave Jobs

DENVER (AP) — Denver's public high school coaches voted Monday to walk off their jobs by the end of the week unless the case of resigned Thomas Jefferson baseball coach Myron (Mike) Willett is "resolved."

Earlier, Supt. of Schools Dr. Kenneth Oberholtzer had reprimanded Paul Coleman, head of the Denver Public School Coaches Association, for calling a meeting of coaches Monday afternoon instead of conducting regular practice sessions.

It was at the afternoon meeting that 73 of the city's 84 coaches voted to leave their positions Saturday.

Oberholtzer confronted Coleman, coach of East High School's state Class AAA basketball champions, Monday night at a public hearing called by the School Board to discuss Willett's case as well as teachers' rights in general.

At the time of the hearing Oberholtzer did not know of the coaches' action.

He asked Coleman, "Do you realize this (Monday coaches meeting) could have serious consequences?"

Coleman said, "Yes sir, we know it's a real serious thing."

Both Oberholtzer and members of the School Board said at the hearing that the resignation of Willet, who quit rather than permit a beer-drinking athlete on his baseball team, was not negotiable.

Sports Medicine Founder Suggests Olympic Team Should Train at AFA

HOUSTON (UPI)—Dr. Ernst Jokl thinks the best thing for American athletes to do to get ready for the cool mountain air of the Mexico Olympics in 1968 is to practice in Colorado Springs.

After all, that part of Colorado approximates the 7,500-foot altitude of Mexico that will be the athlete's biggest problem in the 1968 games, Jokl said.

Jokl spoke Monday to a Rice University audience on the physiological aspects of running the Olympics in Rome or Tokyo or Mexico. He is considered the founder of sports medicine in the United States, is a fellow of the American College of Cardiology and is a professor at the University of Kentucky.

Jokl was in charge of research at the 1952 games at Helsinki, the 1960 Olympics at Rome and last year's Tokyo's Olympics.

He said sprinters should find the higher altitudes of Mexico City just the thing to make record times, but distance runners will find the going a bit harder.

A person will have reduced air pressure at higher altitude, Jokl said. The athlete will run on what is known as "oxygen debt." The body produces energy by chemical processes by which the air a person breathes plays no part.

"It is like runing on a battery," Jokl explained. "It applies everywhere. But anything over 800 meters, or the extent to which you raise the body's oxygen intake, you will have a greater oxygen deficiency."

He said he considers three months' training at high altitude a good rule of thumb for proper fitness for the Mexico City Olympics.

The Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs would be a good place for members of the American Olympic team to train, he said, although no definite plan for the team's training has been announced.

Beattie Praises Vail Races

By FRANK PITMAN

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — The first American international ski races won by Austria's men and France's women "were a milestone in United States skiing," U.S. Alpine Coach Bob Beattie said today.

Although the United States finished last Monday in the three-day competition in downhill, slalom and giant slalom Beattie said, "These team races are going to be very big in the future of American skiing."

He said he will meet here the next two days with Sepp Sulzberger, head coach of the Austrians, and Honore Bonnet, chief coach of the French, to plan future team competition "with nation against nation," Beattie said.

Austria's men, largely because of their sweep of the first four places in downhill, won their team crown with 107 points to 94 for France and 50 for the United Statss. The French women grabbed their championship with 62 points to 38 for Austria and 28 for the United Statss.

Each nation was represented by six men and four women racers.

Frenchmen Jean Claude Killy turned in the top individual performance by winning the men's slalom and giant slalom races.

Marielle Goitschel, French Olympics champion, captured first in slalom and was tied for first in Monday's giant slalom by Jean Saubert of the United States.

Miss Saubert of McCall, Idaho, double winner in the 1964 Olympics, was the outstanding American skier. "This was a tremendous athletic achievement for Jean," Beattie said. "Her normal training routine was interrupted by teaching but she did a marvelous job here with little practice."

Beattie said, "The big value of this meet was the opportunity for our youngsters to compete against the European stars. They must have this experience if they are going to catch up with the Euroopeans. In time our young men and women will take their places right alongside the world's best in Alpine skiing."

An anti-climatic event today matched all the international competitors individually in the Val Trophy slalom race.

The women were to race twice down a 62-gate course set by J.R. Beranger, a French coach. The men were to compete on two separate courses, one set by Austrian Coach Pepi Stiegler with 58 gates and the other with 62 gates. All three courses are 2,000 feet long with a vertical drop of 600 feet.

Unusual Ball-Handling Features First NIT Action

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Villanova shouldn't have lost the ball but almost did. St. John's should have lost it but didn't.

Both teams converted the plays into field goals that turned the basketball games their way and enabled them to move into Thursday night's semifinals of the National Invitational Tournament.

Top-seeded Villanova edged stubborn Manhattan 73-71 and will meet the winner of tonight's Detroit-New York University contest. St. John's knocked off second-seeded New Mexico 61-54 and will battle the winner of the Army-Western Kentucky game.

Villanova, the nation's eighth-ranked team, trailed Manhattan 70-69 until Bill Melchionni threw in a jump shot with 2½ minutes remaining. That put the Wildcats ahead to stay after they had trailed for most of the second half.

Melchionni, however, nearly lost his chance to score the basket. His head turned away from the play, he bobbled a routine pass from Eric Erickson but got control of it and scored on a nine-foot shot.

In St. John's case, it was a ball that Jerry Houston saved from going out of bounds that was the difference.

"I heard Coach (Jack) Kraft say something," explained Melchionni, who was near the Villanova bench at the time. "I didn't know who he was talking to, but I turned around anyway just for a split second. Then the guys on the bench yelled, 'Heads up!'

"I must confess I didn't see the ball. I didn't know where it was. I just put up my hands in self defense. It was a reflex action. The ball hit me in the head. Anywhere else, a foot either way, and I would've missed it. It would have gone out of bounds.

"But it hit me in the head, and I grabbed it. (Manhattan's Len) Schnappauf lunged for it and I went the other way."

Kraft explained his words were meant for Melchionni, that he was telling him to move out and get the ball. Kraft, however, didn't intend for the play to work the way it did.

Melchionni sank a free throw a minute later, and Manhattan's hope for an upset was crushed. Spoiled also was the brilliant performance of the Jaspers' Larry Lembo, who scored 31 points, hitting 13 of 18 from the field.

En route to its victory, St. John's was leading 47-46 with about 6½ minutes to play. That's when Houston came up with the vital save.

"Bob Duerr took a terrible shot," Coach Joe Lapchick said, "and I thought, 'Oh heck, there it goes.' Then when I saw it again, we had the ball. I never saw Jerry grab it before it went out of bounds. The referee screened me from it."

Seconds later Ken Wirrell sank a jump shot and the Redmen were on their way to the semifinals. Ken McIntyre, top scorer in the game with 20 points, clinched the triumph with four straight free throws.

Lapchick said he had wanted to take McIntyre out of the game after he was shaken up on a foul. But to make sure he was all right, Lapchick added:

"I asked him what his name is, and he said, 'I'm Joe Lapchick's boy.' I knew he was okay."

In tonight's other quarter-final doubleheader, Army and New York hope to duplicate their feat of last year when they gained the semifinals. Neither team will have an easy time.

NYU must contend with Detroit's Lou Hyatt, who scored 31 points against LaSalle last Saturday, and 6-foot-8 Dorie Murrey, who sat out much of the game with personal foul problems.

"They're tough under the boards, especially Dorie," said NYU Coach Lou Rossini. "It will be a very tough game. Our team has had a problem. We come down to the end of a game, and it becomes a mental thing. We make mistakes. We can't afford to make mistakes. We've had to work a little on this."

Coach Bob Calihan of Detroit feels his team has a good chance of going all the way.

"We've got as much size as anybody. I certainly think we have a chance at it. We have strength, and strength can win for you in the fourth quarter. It wears down the other team. That's how Michigan wins. With strength."

Army, which finished third last year, will have its three big weapons from its Saturday upset of St. Louis. One is Dennis Shantz, who scored 19 points in the second half; two is John Ritch, who scored 15 and three is the cadet Rabble Rouser band with its big tuba.

"There's no doubt about it," Coach Tates Locke said. "That band and the cadets really kept us going."

Beattie Calls Win 'Milestone'

Mertes to Join Denver Gridders As New Coach

DENVER (UPI)—Bus Mertes, head football coach at Drake University, is scheduled to join the American Football League Denver Broncos as offensive backfield coach.

Mertes, 44, was expected to join the Broncos within the next two weeks. He will resign his post at the Des Moines, Iowa, institution.

Mertes coached five years at Drake and compiled a 27-19 record. He also coached Kansas State of the Big Eight from 1955 to 1959.

He graduated from the University of Iowa, where he starred in the backfield in 1941. He played three years with Iowa Preflight during World War II, then five years in the professional ranks with the Chicago Cardinals, Los Angeles Dons, Baltimore Colts, and New York Giants.

South Photoed Again

Down in Pueblo this week, Central's Wildcats must feel like they've just returned from a pickpockets' convention. Jim Ranson's fabulous Cats headed for Denver last Thursday with the anticipation of a quiniela-bettor approaching the payoff window. By late Saturday night they knew how it felt to be "photoed".

Central's overtime loss to East Denver in the finals of the AAA State Tournament was disappointing to fans, not only from Pueblo, but throughout this area of the state. Southern teams have been backhanded by their title-wealthy tormentors from the north since the days when a guy named Hitler had a team that was shooting at things other than baskets.

In addition to the Wildcats, Salida felt the sting this time out. Hobbled by illness and a flurry of fouls directed at 6-7 John Lantz, the Spartans yielded their AA crown to Brush, another upstart from north of Colorado's athletic Mason-Dixon line.

However, the pain of this latest misfortune cut most deeply into the South Central League where finals' defeats are becoming about as pleasantly monotonous as a visit to the dentist. Three times in the past five years SCL clubs have skirmished their way to the championship contest and then been killed off in the only battle that will win the war.

Of course, the above figure concerns only basketball. In addition, South Central League football teams have muscled their way into the playoff finals the past two seasons before dipping their helmets in surrender. Twice in the three most recent springs Wasson's baseballers carried the SCL banner into the state title contest and then caught acurve from their finals opponent. The only breakthrough since 1960 in this chain of frustration was in '61 when Central's football team was simply too good to be challenged by anyone outside its own league.

Saturday's experience was also the second in last minute larceny that the SCL has suffered through recently. Pueblo South's basketball team had buried the state's two most highly regarded qinitets under a barrage of points in 1961 but got kicked by mulish Denver Washington 70-69 in an overtime in the finals.

All championship opponents since had been able to settle their argument in the alloted four quarters until last Saturday. Central seemingly had ended the dispute within regulation time also, but an unfortunate mistake by the Cats and East's reluctance to release the crown into southern hands ate away a six point lead in the final two minutes and the Angels had the best of the extra session.

SCL contemporaries will find it difficult to sustain any period of mourning for Central's misfortunes, however. A glance at the Wildcat roster presented for the state's inspection last week is conducive to an immediate case of nausea among those who must wend their way to the tournament through the ranks of this conference in the near future.

Of the seven players who carried the load for Central in this most recent venture, five will return next winter. Only captain Dan Kochevar and guard Jim Wallace abdict. Returning are two of the most exciting sophomores in the state in 6-3 Eddie Smith and 6-0 Terry Snider, plus junior starter Rick Perryman (6-5) and a pair of junior reserves who were outstanding in Devner.

This final duo includes 6-3 Darrell Vaughn, who used gorilla strength on the backboards in the championship battle, and 6-2 Ken Johns, who gathered a lot of splinters in his trousers earlier in the campaign but was one of the really vital stars at the Coliseum last week.

Although Kochevar carried away the majority of the headlines with some magnificent clutch shooting during the recent three-day stint in Denver, it was the play of Smith and Snider that had college representatives and opposing coaches talking to themselves.

Smith, who stalks his prey on a pair of stems that resemble ostrich-wheels, has been in danger of doing a half - gainer through the net on numerous occasions this winter. The basketball, which is an awkward item for most of us to grasp in one paw, snuggles in a Smith hand lake a gal in a bubble bath. Eddie could offer most of you a legitamite handshake and scratch your elbow at the same time.

While Smith enjoys an unusual perspective of the goal from far above, Snider has established excellent communication with the same circle from a couple feet lower. The gaunt Central guard, who looks as though he might have wandered onto the basketball floor after being turned away from a bread line, has a rapid cure for all doubters. While opponents are wondering if Terry will have to rest between dribbles, the Wildcat soph spends his time proving that the bottom of nets and a basketball have something is common.

Most conference cocahes place next year's Central team and an income tax representative on about the same level of desirability as a host. Aside from the five returning veterans, the Cats will welcome sophomores from the two junior high schools that finished one-two in the Pueblo league this year.

Central hadn't confirmed any future reservations at their Denver Hilton home as of late Saturday, but there have been rumors that the Wildcats asked if they could have the same lookers at the Coliseum next winter. If the Pueblo team returns, it should be like "old home week". Denver East has six juniors on its 10 man squad who have developed an attachment for playing the Wildcats in the state finals. There is every chance they will get to renew old defensive assignments 12 months from now.

The great performance by Central's sophomores had virtually rended an old coaching theory which says that first year men cannot be depended upon under pressure. Critics of the youth movement still got in the last word when the Wildcats' Smith suddenly fired up an unwise shot from far out to the side with less than two minutes left and Central holding a fourpoint lead that was asking for some careful protection.

Smith's cast opened the door for the Angels, but it was no more responsible for the eventual outcome than any number of the memorable events that marked the progress of the two teams through one of Colorado's greatest AAA spectacles.

It was an unhappy ending for the Wildcats, Pueblo, and the southern part of the state. But as one of their more avid rooters suggested in the tournament post - mortem:

"Well, at least by now they know we're down here!"

Carson Cagers Repeat Victory In Army Tourney

The Ft. Carson Mountaineer basketball team won its second straight Fifth Army championship last weekend with an easy 85-70 victory over Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Despite the easy victory, it was a come from behind battle most of the way for the Mountaineers as they had to overcome first-half deficits in their first two games. Ft. Leonard Wood hosted the tournament.

Carson used a second-half rally to win their first game of the tournament over Leonard Wood, 106-91. In the second game they downed Ft. Riley, Kan., 96-87. This, too, was a come from behind victory.

Cornelius Freeman was the big gun for Carson in all the games. The 6-6 Freeman from Xavier University averaged 30.3 points in the three games played. Freeman's high game was 36 points against Ft. Wood.

Other consistent standouts during the tourney were Richard Smith, James Busby and John Strong. Carson played the entire tournament without Calvin Fowler who was chosen for the All-Army team and is presently in the Presidio of San Francisco.

Denver Coaches May Leave Jobs

DENVER (AP) — Denver's public high school coaches voted Monday to walk off their jobs by the end of the week unless the case of resigned Thomas Jefferson baseball coach Myron (Mike) Willett is "resolved."

Earlier, Supt. of Schools Dr. Kenneth Oberholtzer had reprimanded Paul Coleman, head of the Denver Public School Coaches Association, for calling a meeting of coaches Monday afternoon instead of conducting regular practice sessions.

It was at the afternoon meeting that 73 of the city's 84 coaches voted to leave their positions Saturday.

Oberholtzer confronted Coleman, coach of East High School's state Class AAA basketball champions, Monday night at a public hearing called by the School Board to discuss Willett's case as well as teachers' rights in general.

At the time of the hearing Oberholtzer did not know of the coaches' action.

He asked Coleman, "Do you realize this (Monday coaches meeting) could have serious consequences?"

Coleman said, "Yes sir, we know it's a real serious thing."

Both Oberholtzer and members of the School Board said at the hearing that the resignation of Willet, who quit rather than permit a beer-drinking athlete on his baseball team, was not negotiable.

Sports Medicine Founder Suggests Olympic Team Should Train at AFA

HOUSTON (UPI)—Dr. Ernst Jokl thinks the best thing for American athletes to do to get ready for the cool mountain air of the Mexico Olympics in 1968 is to practice in Colorado Springs.

After all, that part of Colorado approximates the 7,500-foot altitude of Mexico that will be the athlete's biggest problem in the 1968 games, Jokl said.

Jokl spoke Monday to a Rice University audience on the physiological aspects of running the Olympics in Rome or Tokyo or Mexico. He is considered the founder of sports medicine in the United States, is a fellow of the American College of Cardiology and is a professor at the University of Kentucky.

Jokl was in charge of research at the 1952 games at Helsinki, the 1960 Olympics at Rome and last year's Tokyo's Olympics.

He said sprinters should find the higher altitudes of Mexico City just the thing to make record times, but distance runners will find the going a bit harder.

A person will have reduced air pressure at higher altitude, Jokl said. The athlete will run on what is known as "oxygen debt." The body produces energy by chemical processes by which the air a person breathes plays no part.

"It is like runing on a battery," Jokl explained. "It applies everywhere. But anything over 800 meters, or the extent to which you raise the body's oxygen intake, you will have a greater oxygen deficiency."

He said he considers three months' training at high altitude a good rule of thumb for proper fitness for the Mexico City Olympics.

The Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs would be a good place for members of the American Olympic team to train, he said, although no definite plan for the team's training has been announced.

Beattie Praises Vail Races

By FRANK PITMAN

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — The first American international ski races won by Austria's men and France's women "were a milestone in United States skiing," U.S. Alpine Coach Bob Beattie said today.

Although the United States finished last Monday in the three-day competition in downhill, slalom and giant slalom Beattie said, "These team races are going to be very big in the future of American skiing."

He said he will meet here the next two days with Sepp Sulzberger, head coach of the Austrians, and Honore Bonnet, chief coach of the French, to plan future team competition "with nation against nation," Beattie said.

Austria's men, largely because of their sweep of the first four places in downhill, won their team crown with 107 points to 94 for France and 50 for the United Statss. The French women grabbed their championship with 62 points to 38 for Austria and 28 for the United Statss.

Each nation was represented by six men and four women racers.

Frenchmen Jean Claude Killy turned in the top individual performance by winning the men's slalom and giant slalom races.

Marielle Goitschel, French Olympics champion, captured first in slalom and was tied for first in Monday's giant slalom by Jean Saubert of the United States.

Miss Saubert of McCall, Idaho, double winner in the 1964 Olympics, was the outstanding American skier. "This was a tremendous athletic achievement for Jean," Beattie said. "Her normal training routine was interrupted by teaching but she did a marvelous job here with little practice."

Beattie said, "The big value of this meet was the opportunity for our youngsters to compete against the European stars. They must have this experience if they are going to catch up with the Euroopeans. In time our young men and women will take their places right alongside the world's best in Alpine skiing."

An anti-climatic event today matched all the international competitors individually in the Val Trophy slalom race.

The women were to race twice down a 62-gate course set by J.R. Beranger, a French coach. The men were to compete on two separate courses, one set by Austrian Coach Pepi Stiegler with 58 gates and the other with 62 gates. All three courses are 2,000 feet long with a vertical drop of 600 feet.

Beattie Calls Win 'Milestone'

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — The first American international ski races won by Austria's men and France's women "were a milestone in United States skiing," U.S. Alpine Co2c Bob Beattie said today.

Unusual Ball-Handling Features First NIT Action

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Villanova shouldn't have lost the ball but almost did. St. John's should have lost it but didn't.

Both teams converted the plays into field goals that turned the basketball games their way and enabled them to move into Thursday night's semifinals of the National Invitational Tournament.

Top-seeded Villanova edged stubborn Manhattan 73-71 and will meet the winner of tonight's Detroit-New York University contest. St. John's knocked off second-seeded New Mexico 61-54 and will battle the winner of the Army-Western Kentucky game.

Villanova, the nation's eighth-ranked team, trailed Manhattan 70-69 until Bill Melchionni threw in a jump shot with 2½ minutes remaining. That put the Wildcats ahead to stay after they had trailed for most of the second half.

Melchionni, however, nearly lost his chance to score the basket. His head turned away from the play, he bobbled a routine pass from Eric Erickson but got control of it and scored on a nine-foot shot.

In St. John's case, it was a ball that Jerry Houston saved from going out of bounds that was the difference.

"I heard Coach (Jack) Kraft say something," explained Melchionni, who was near the Villanova bench at the time. "I didn't know who he was talking to, but I turned around anyway just for a split second. Then the guys on the bench yelled, 'Heads up!'

"I must confess I didn't see the ball. I didn't know where it was. I just put up my hands in self defense. It was a reflex action. The ball hit me in the head. Anywhere else, a foot either way, and I would've missed it. It would have gone out of bounds.

"But it hit me in the head, and I grabbed it. (Manhattan's Len) Schnappauf lunged for it and I went the other way."

Kraft explained his words were meant for Melchionni, that he was telling him to move out and get the ball. Kraft, however, didn't intend for the play to work the way it did.

Melchionni sank a free throw a minute later, and Manhattan's hope for an upset was crushed. Spoiled also was the brilliant performance of the Jaspers' Larry Lembo, who scored 31 points, hitting 13 of 18 from the field.

En route to its victory, St. John's was leading 47-46 with about 6½ minutes to play. That's when Houston came up with the vital save.

"Bob Duerr took a terrible shot," Coach Joe Lapchick said, "and I thought, 'Oh heck, there it goes.' Then when I saw it again, we had the ball. I never saw Jerry grab it before it went out of bounds. The referee screened me from it."

Seconds later Ken Wirrell sank a jump shot and the Redmen were on their way to the semifinals. Ken McIntyre, top scorer in the game with 20 points, clinched the triumph with four straight free throws.

Lapchick said he had wanted to take McIntyre out of the game after he was shaken up on a foul. But to make sure he was all right, Lapchick added:

"I asked him what his name is, and he said, 'I'm Joe Lapchick's boy.' I knew he was okay."

In tonight's other quarter-final doubleheader, Army and New York hope to duplicate their feat of last year when they gained the semifinals. Neither team will have an easy time.

NYU must contend with Detroit's Lou Hyatt, who scored 31 points against LaSalle last Saturday, and 6-foot-8 Dorie Murrey, who sat out much of the game with personal foul problems.

"They're tough under the boards, especially Dorie," said NYU Coach Lou Rossini. "It will be a very tough game. Our team has had a problem. We come down to the end of a game, and it becomes a mental thing. We make mistakes. We can't afford to make mistakes. We've had to work a little on this."

Coach Bob Calihan of Detroit feels his team has a good chance of going all the way.

"We've got as much size as anybody. I certainly think we have a chance at it. We have strength, and strength can win for you in the fourth quarter. It wears down the other team. That's how Michigan wins. With strength."

Army, which finished third last year, will have its three big weapons from its Saturday upset of St. Louis. One is Dennis Shantz, who scored 19 points in the second half; two is John Ritch, who scored 15 and three is the cadet Rabble Rouser band with its big tuba.

"There's no doubt about it," Coach Tates Locke said. "That band and the cadets really kept us going."

South Photoed Again

Down in Pueblo this week, Central's Wildcats must feel like they've just returned from a pickpockets' convention. Jim Ranson's fabulous Cats headed for Denver last Thursday with the anticipation of a quiniela-bettor approaching the payoff window. By late Saturday night they knew how it felt to be "photoed".

JOHN LANTZ
Foul Problems

Central's overtime loss to East Denver in the finals of the AAA State Tournament was disappointing to fans, not only from Pueblo, but throughout this area of the state. Southern teams have been backhanded by their title-wealthy tormentors from the north since the days when a guy named Hitler had a team that was shooting at things other than baskets.

In addition to the Wildcats, Salida felt the sting this time out. Hobbled by illness and a flurry of fouls directed at 6-7 John Lantz, the Spartans yielded their AA crown to Brush, another upstart from north of Colorado's athletic Mason-Dixon line.

However, the pain of this latest misfortune cut most deeply into the South Central League where finals' defeats are becoming about as pleasantly monotonous as a visit to the dentist. Three times in the past five years SCL clubs have skirmished their way to the championship contest and then been killed off in the only battle that will win the war.

Of course, the above figure concerns only basketball. In addition, South Central League football teams have muscled their way into the playoff finals the past two seasons before dipping their helmets in surrender. Twice in the three most recent springs Wasson's baseballers carried the SCL banner into the state title contest and then caught acurve from their finals opponent. The only breakthrough since 1960 in this chain of frustration was in '61 when Central's football team was simply too good to be challenged by anyone outside its own league.

Saturday's experience was also the second in last minute larceny that the SCL has suffered through recently. Pueblo South's basketball team had buried the state's two most highly regarded qinitets under a barrage of points in 1961 but got kicked by mulish Denver Washington 70-69 in an overtime in the finals.

All championship opponents since had been able to settle their argument in the alloted four quarters until last Saturday. Central seemingly had ended the dispute within regulation time also, but an unfortunate mistake by the Cats and East's reluctance to release the crown into southern hands ate away a six point lead in the final two minutes and the Angels had the best of the extra session.

SCL contemporaries will find it difficult to sustain any period of mourning for Central's misfortunes, however. A glance at the Wildcat roster presented for the state's inspection last week is conducive to an immediate case of nausea among those who must wend their way to the tournament through the ranks of this conference in the near future.

Of the seven players who carried the load for Central in this most recent venture, five will return next winter. Only captain Dan Kochevar and guard Jim Wallace abdict. Returning are two of the most exciting sophomores in the state in 6-3 Eddie Smith and 6-0 Terry Snider, plus junior starter Rick Perryman (6-5) and a pair of junior reserves who were outstanding in Devner.

This final duo includes 6-3 Darrell Vaughn, who used gorilla strength on the backboards in the championship battle, and 6-2 Ken Johns, who gathered a lot of splinters in his trousers earlier in the campaign but was one of the really vital stars at the Coliseum last week.

Although Kochevar carried away the majority of the headlines with some magnificent clutch shooting during the recent three-day stint in Denver, it was the play of Smith and Snider that had college representatives and opposing coaches talking to themselves.

Smith, who stalks his prey on a pair of stems that resemble ostrich-wheels, has been in danger of doing a half-gainer through the net on numerous occasions this winter. The basketball, which is an awkward item for most of us to grasp in one paw, snuggles in a Smith hand lake a gal in a bubble bath. Eddie could offer most of you a legitamite handshake and scratch your elbow at the same time.

While Smith enjoys an unusual perspective of the goal from far above, Snider has established excellent communication with the same circle from a couple feet lower. The gaunt Central guard, who looks as though he might have wandered onto the basketball floor after being turned away from a bread line, has a rapid cure for all doubters. While opponents are wondering if Terry will have to rest between dribbles, the Wildcat soph spends his time proving that the bottom of nets and a basketball have something is common.

Most conference cocahes place next year's Central team and an income tax representative on about the same level of desirability as a host. Aside from the five returning veterans, the Cats will welcome sophomores from the two junior high schools that finished one-two in the Pueblo league this year.

Central hadn't confirmed any future reservations at their Denver Hilton home as of late Saturday, but there have been rumors that the Wildcats asked if they could have the same lookers at the Coliseum next winter. If the Pueblo team returns, it should be like "old home week". Denver East has six juniors on its 10 man squad who have developed an attachment for playing the Wildcats in the state finals. There is every chance they will get to renew old defensive assignments 12 months from now.

The great performance by Central's sophomores had virtually rendered an old coaching theory which says that first year men cannot be depended upon under pressure. Critics of the youth movement still got in the last word when the Wildcats' Smith suddenly fired up an unwise shot from far out to the side with less than two minutes left and Central holding a four-point lead that was asking for some careful protection.

Smith's cast opened the door for the Angels, but it was no more responsible for the eventual outcome than any number of the memorable events that marked the progress of the two teams through one of Colorado's greatest AAA spectacles.

It was an unhappy ending for the Wildcats, Pueblo, and the southern part of the state. But as one of their more avid rooters suggested in the tournament post-mortem:

"Well, at least by now they know we're down here!"

Carson Cagers Repeat Victory In Army Tourney

The Ft. Carson Mountaineer basketball team won its second straight Fifth Army championship last weekend with an easy 85-70 victory over Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Despite the easy victory, it was a come from behind battle most of the way for the Mountaineers as they had to overcome first-half deficits in their first two games. Ft. Leonard Wood hosted the tournament.

Carson used a second-half rally to win their first game of the tournament over Leonard Wood, 106-91. In the second game they downed Ft. Riley, Kan., 96-87. This, too, was a come from behind victory.

Cornelius Freeman was the big gun for Carson in all the games. The 6-6 Freeman from Xavier University averaged 30.3 points in the three games played. Freeman's high game was 36 points against Ft. Wood.

Other consistent standouts during the tourney were Richard Smith, James Busby and John Strong. Carson played the entire tournament without Calvin Fowler who was chosen for the All-Army team and is presently in the Presidio of San Francisco.

New Skate Queen Gives Her Views

OTTAWA (AP) — Petra Burka, the new queen of the world's figure skaters, advocates a change in the point system for figure skating.

The 18-year-old world champion from Toronto said Monday she favors the proposed "half and half" system of grading.

Presently figure skating is scored on a basis of 60 points for the compulsory school figures and 40 poins for the crowd-pleasing free skating.

The Dutch-born Canadian girl was backed by another world champion, Oleg Petropopov. The Russian, who won the world pairs title with his wife, Ljudmila, said:

"I would be personally in favor of 50 points for compulsory figures and 50 for the free skating. But I still think the compulsory figures are very important."

It's not just because Miss Burka and the Petropopovs are sensational free skaters. They also are standouts in the compulsory, of school figures.

Dr. L. Kimpel of Galt, Ont., president of the Canadian Amateur Figure Skating Association, said he and another Canadian delegate would support the change in the point system if it came up at the World Figure Skating Union's Congress at Vienna in June.

"This has been a matter of dispute for a number of years now and it could be brought up again in June," he said.

"Under the present system, a skater can rack up a terrific number of points in the compulsory figures, fall all over in the free skating, and still win," he added. "Naturally, crowds find this difficult to understand.

Miss Burka and the Russians are among a group of figure skaters making a North American and European tour following the recent world championships at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Sam Snead has won both the Masters and the PGA championship three times.

BOWLING

No Springtime Blues

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Usually, springtime in the Rockies means a decline in the Colorado Springs bowling industry as the keglers near the conclusion of the fall-winter leagues.

But the present corps of local bowlers are setting a new precedent by posting scores more in tune with mid-season scoring. With approximately six to eight weeks remaining before the majority of the local leagues conclude the 1964-65 season, last week's scoring was above par for this time of the year.

Circle Lanes produced some block-butsing scores with S. C. Hoskins making the headlines when he racked the tenpins for a 694 scratch series. Jim Pee followed with a 683 scratch set during last weekend's Men's Sweeper at Circle Lanes.

In the junior bowlers circuit, Steve Underdahl fired a $254 scratch game and a 606 set while bowling at Circle Lanes to outpace the other local junior keglers.

OTHER SCORES: Jim Elliott 654 (278), Jim Bonavich 648 Chet Card 268 and junior bowler Harold Ridgney 602 (Circle Lanes; Don Anderson 659, Jim Rumsey 259, James Miles 251, Marian Winkelbech 222 and junior bowlers Doris McGlothlin 230 and Mike Holst 212 (Classic Bowl); Jim Daughtery 669 258) and Jess Meyer 252 (Bowl-Mor Lanes); Jim Hair 278, Mickey Combs 254, Ruth Holtgrewe 235, Bonnie Medina and Helen Prescott 236, June Theodore 232 (Peak Bowl); Ted Bozick 267 and junior blowler Terry Allin 235 (Ute Lanes); Bill Chandler 632 (263), Eleanor Mundy 206, Mitch Banks 209, Joyce Harrington 200 (Trail Bowl).

JUNIOR LOOP — The Pikes Peak Region Junior - Major and Prep Traveling League finished its 1964-65 season with the Circle Lanes No. 1 team winning the Prep team division, while the Fountain Valley Bowl keglers captured the Junior - Major team division.

The youngsters will receive individual awards Saturday at the Hackney House.

The Fountain Valley Bowl team was composed of Mick Piotrowski, Diane DeSpain, Rick Anderson, Roxie Mann and Felix McCleary, The Circle Lanes squad includes Janet Rector, Bob Jeffords, Bob Shaver, Debbie Barrett and Terry Smith.

Scores from last week's final session, which was cnnducted at Circle Lanes: Junior - Major division — Margo Vandenberg 231, Sharon Towner 629, Randy Vance 626 and Don Prosser 234; Preps — Danny Denman 224 and a 394 two-game series, Lind Keese 339 two-game series and Debby Barrett 185.

The Junior City Tournament is scheduled for April 17 and April 24 at Bowl-Mor Lanes and Peak Bowl. Entries close April 7. The team events will be conducted at Bowl-Mor Lanes and the doubles and singles at Peak Bowl.

GALS TRAVELING TOURNEY — The Bowl - Mor Lanes team fired a 2972 to win the twice monthly Southern Colorado BPA Women's Traveling tournament last Sunday at Ute Lanes.

The Budweiser team finished second with 2884, followed by Ute Lanes with 2881. Joan Sitar fired a 245 single game to take individual honors. The next tournament is slated for March 28 at Peak Bowl.

PBA TOURNAY — Les Schissler of Denver placed in the money during last weekend's PBA Madison Open when the Mile High City pro kegler placed fourth among a field of over 100 professional bowlers at Madison, Wis. This was the second time Schissler placed in the money in the last two PBA tournaments.

Earl Johnson of Minneapolis won the Madison Open, with Nelson Burton of St. Louis second, Bob Strampe third and Schissler fourth. Schissler placed 11th during the Oklahoma City Open the previous weekend.

NATION'S TOP SCORERS — Jake Charter's whopping 834 three-game series is still tops this season and it looks as though the Poughkeepsie, N. Y. bowler won't be challenged this year.

Don Hooper of Anaheim, Calif., came the closest with an 832 along with 10 kegelrs posting magic "800" three-game series.

For the gals, Elizabeth Brooks of Detroit and Betty Ganter of Wilmington, Del., are tops with a 756 series each followed by Dorothy Layne of Pacific Palisades, Calif., with 754. There were nine other "700" series recorded this season by women bowlers.

Tribe Thinclads Lack Speed

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

If coach Bill Westbay's opinion is correct, Palmer's 1965 track team will have a lot of endurance and little speed.

The Terrors, South Central League's champions, open the new season Saturday in a triangular meet with Wasson at Alamosa in Wasson staduim.

Westbay lost both his district-winning relay teams and his top pole vaulter to graduation. He has also lost one of his better weightmen to a football injury. But his main concern is lack of speedsters for the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

"You can't win anything without sprinters," Westbay says. "And we haven't found anyone as yet."

Palmer lost its record-setting 880-yard relay team of Jim Glaskin, Dennis Rice, Dan Goldston and Bobby Joe Williams via the sheepskin route. The latter three also ran on the mile relay team with graduated Jim Jewett.

Bob McCoy set a district record in the pole vault last year and also graduated. Williams was the district high hurdles champion and placed fifth in the state meet.

Others lost to college were 440 runner Alan Snyder and Ralph Brown in the broad jump.

Westbay feels his distance squad may pose some trouble for future opponents. Included in this list are Karl Nelson, Jim Seitz, Jesse Martinez, Greg Borden and Jerry Cisneros.

"All these kids have the potential to do a fine job," Westbay says. "They just need to get some work in." The team has only about two weeks of good weather to work out winter kinks going into its first meet.

A new event in state competition is the triple jump. Westbay notes his is trying to find thinclads to compete in the event. "I guess what I should do is find kids who can count to three and start from there," the Terror mentor grins.

He already has found David Paul and Dennis Bair who have shown early talent at the new jump.

Paul also figures to be Palmer's top pole vaulter, along with Larry Albin. Bair doubles in the hurdles and broad jump.

In the hurdles the Terrors will have, besides Bair, Larry Francisco and Jeff Jewett. Martinez and Mike Tracy will join Bair and Paul in the broad jump. Jim Hekers and Claude Spear are early high jump enthusiasts.

Some of the winter sports athletes have not suited up for outdoor work as yet and Westbay still is uncertain just what form his team will take through the early weeks.

John Van Druff, top Terror guard in last year's football season, broke his hand during the Pueblo South scoreless tie, but the injury was not discovered until a few weeks before the end of the basketball season. Van Druff, who was figured for the shot and discus events, is wearing a cast on the right hand and will not be able to compete this spring.

Gary Stockdale is the leading contender for top spot in the weight events. Another possible is Ron Smith, who picked track in favor of baseball this year. Smith, however, injured a leg recently and is not at top form.

Palmer will host Boulder March 30 in its first dual meet.

It will compete in the Centennial Invitational April 10 at Pueblo, bypassing the much larger Aurora Relays. The two state - wide meets fall on the same day this year.

The Terors wili defend their Colorado State University Relays crown on May 1 and their South Central League title the following week at Pueblo.

Kansas City Fighters Win Six Golden Gloves Bouts

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City fighters won six straight, four by knockouts, and defending featherweight champ Marcus Anderson of Louisville scored a sharp victory, spicing the opening night of the 38th National Golden Gloves Boxing Tournament.

A crowd of about 4,000 in 10,000-seat Municipal Auditorium watched 18 knockouts on the 67-bout card. Anderson was the only defending titlist in action. It completed the first two rounds of the four lightest classes.

Fighters in the four heaviest classes will battle tonight, and welterweight John Cobb of St Louis will be the only defending champ.

The Kansas City team moved all four men into Wednesday's quarter-finals, Los Angeles, Fort Worth and Minneapolis advanced three each and St. Louis, Buffalo, Lafayette, La., and Roswell, N.M., two each.

Marcus Anderson drew a first-round bye, then chopped down Wayne Steiner of Minneapolis on a third-round TKO with a furious barrage of body punches.

Fred Garcia of the Fort Worth team, the 1963 national flyweight champ, scored two TKO victories. Lightweight Ron Lyke of Minneapolis also had two knockouts.

Allan Lattimore, 24-year-old Kansas City flyweight, was a crowd favorite with his buzzsaw attack good for two victories, one a knockout. Lattimore, a 1963 semifinalist in the nationals, is listed at 4-foot-11 but insists he has taken stretching exercises and is now 5-foot tall.

Marcus Anderson will have at least two good challengers. One is James Anderson of St. Louis, the 1961 national featerweight champ who stopped Tony Gonzales of Denver, a 1964 semifinalist. Another is Kansas City's Donald Parker.

Impressive in the lightweight class were Frankie Anderson, 17-year-old Kansas City high school student, and Perry Bennett of Streator, Ill., the 1963 national titlist.

Jesse Avelos of the Fort Worth team, who reached the tourney by whipping the '64 national bantamweight champ, Manuel Naverro, scored a first-round victory on a reversed decision, then lost in the second roun.

Lightweight Pete Torres of Denver, a two-time national semifinalist, was forced to quit when Omaha's Tony Drake opened a cut under his right eye.

West's Icers Favored in NCAA Hockey Tourney

By BOB HOOBING

PROVIDENCE, R.I., (AP) — Boston College and Brown, hopeful one of the mcan break the West's 10-year stranglehold on the championship, are definite underdogs entering the 18th NCAA Hockey Tournament opening Thursday.

The site is Meehan Auditorium where the event was scheduled as part of Brown University's 200th anniversary celebration.

BC, 23-6, the Eastern champion, has drawn North Dakota, 27-4, as its foe in the opening semifinal Thursday night.

The Brown Ivy league titlists, 21-7, will be confronted by Michigan Tech, 22-5-2, Friday night.

A consolation contest is set for Saturday afternoon and the championship game that night.

John (Snooks) Kelley, BC coach for 29 years, was asked which Western team he'd rather oppose. 'That's like asking a football coach if he'd prefer to play Notre Dame or Texas," Kelley said.

The last Eastern champion was RPI, which edged Minnesota 5-4 in 1954. The only other time in 17 years the East has captured national honors came when BC topped Dartmouth 4-3 in 1949.

North Dakota has appeared in three NCAA tournaments previously with a remarkable showing of two crowns — the most recent on BC ice two years ago — and one second-place finish.

Nevertheless, there is no defeatist attitude in these parts.

"This might be the year both BC and Brown do some business," Kelley says. "I don't mean to infer the Western teams have slacked off. But Eastern teams are improving and closing the gap. We're not kidding ourselves into thinking it's going to be easy."

"Our team has worked the entire season for this and we'll do our best to give a good account of ourselves," says Brown's Jim Fullerton.

U.S. Falters in Curling Tourney

PERTH, Scotland (AP) — Scotland defeated the United States, 11-5 and Canada's defending champions beat Sweden 8-6 in opening competition of the unofficial world curling championshp for the Scotch Cup Monday night.

In a third match, Switzerland defeated Norway 11-8.

The six teams are competing The final between the first and second teams will be decided Thursday.

The United States is represented by a rink from Superior, Wis., skipped by Raymond Somerville.

Westbay feels his distance squad may pose some trouble for future opponents. Included in this list are Karl Nelson, Jim Seitz, Jesse Martinez, Greg Borden and Jerry Cisneros.

"All these kids have the potential to do a fine job," Westbay says. "They just need to get some work in." The team has only about two weeks of good weather to work out winter kinks going into its first meet.

A new event in state competition is the triple jump. Westbay notes his is trying to find thinclads to compete in the event. "I guess what I should do is find kids who can count to three and start from there," the Terror mentor grins.

He already has found David Paul and Dennis Bair who have shown early talent at the new jump.

Paul also figures to be Palmer's top pole vaulter, along with Larry Albin. Bair doubles in the hurdles and broad jump.

In the hurdles the Terrors will have, besides Bair, Larry Francisco and Jeff Jewett. Martinez and Mike Tracy will join Bair and Paul in the broad jump. Jim Hekers and Claude Spear are early high jump enthusiasts.

Some of the winter sports athletes have not suited up for outdoor work as yet and Westbay still is uncertain just what form his team will take through the early weeks.

John Van Druff, top Terror guard in last year's football season, broke his hand during the Pueblo South scoreless tie, but the injury was not discovered until a few weeks before the end of the basketball season. Van Druff, who was figured for the shot and discus events, is wearing a cast on the right hand and will not be able to compete this spring.

Gary Stockdale is the leading contender for top spot in the weight events. Another possible is Ron Smith, who picked track in favor of baseball this year. Smith, however, injured a leg recently and is not at top form.

Palmer will host Boulder March 30 in its first dual meet.

It will compete in the Centennial Invitational April 10 at Pueblo, bypassing the much larger Aurora Relays. The two state - wide meets fall on the same day this year.

The Terors wili defend their Colorado State University Relays crown on May 1 and their South Central League title the following week at Pueblo.

Kansas City Fighters Win Six Golden Gloves Bouts

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City fighters won six straight, four by knockouts, and defending featherweight champ Marcus Anderson of Louisville scored a sharp victory, spicing the opening night of the 38th National Golden Gloves Boxing Tournament.

A crowd of about 4,000 in 10,000-seat Municipal Auditorium watched 18 knockouts on the 67-bout card. Anderson was the only defending titlist in action. It completed the first two rounds of the four lightest classes.

Fighters in the four heaviest classes will battle tonight, and welterweight John Cobb of St. Louis will be the only defending champ.

The Kansas City team moved all four men into Wednesday's quarter-finals, Los Angeles, Fort Worth and Minneapolis advanced three each and St. Louis, Buffalo, Lafayette, La., and Roswell, N.M., two each.

Marcus Anderson drew a first-round bye, then chopped down Wayne Steiner of Minneapolis on a third-round TKO with a furious barrage of body punches.

Fred Garcia of the Fort Worth team, the 1963 national flyweight champ, scored two TKO victories. Lightweight Ron Lyke of Minneapolis also had two knockouts.

Allan Lattimore, 24-year-old Kansas City flyweight, was a crowd favorite with his buzz-saw attack good for two victories, one a knockout. Lattimore, a 1963 semifinalist in the nationals, is listed at 4-foot-11 but insists he has taken stretching exercises and is now 5-foot tall.

Marcus Anderson will have at least two good challengers. One is James Anderson of St. Louis, the 1961 national featerweight champ who stopped Tony Gonzales of Denver, a 1964 semifinalist. Another is Kansas City's Donald Parker.

Impressive in the lightweight class were Frankie Anderson, 17-year-old Kansas City high school student, and Perry Bennett of Streator, Ill., the 1963 national titlist.

Jesse Avelos of the Fort Worth team, who reached the tourney by whipping the '64 national bantamweight champ, Manuel Naverro, scored a first-round victory on a reversed decision, then lost in the second roun.

Lightweight Pete Torres of Denver, a two-time national semifinalist, was forced to quit when Omaha's Tony Drake opened a cut under his right eye.

West's Icers Favored in NCAA Hockey Tourney

By BOB HOOBING

PROVIDENCE, R.I., (AP) — Boston College and Brown, hopeful one of the mcan break the West's 10-year stranglehold on the championship, are definite underdogs entering the 18th NCAA Hockey Tournament opening Thursday.

The site is Meehan Auditorium where the event was scheduled as part of Brown University's 200th anniversary celebration.

BC, 23-6, the Eastern champion, has drawn North Dakota, 27-4, as its foe in the opening semifinal Thursday night.

The Brown Ivy league titlists, 21-7, will be confronted by Michigan Tech, 22-5-2, Friday night.

A consolation contest is set for Saturday afternoon and the championship game that night.

John (Snooks) Kelley, BC coach for 29 years, was asked which Western team he'd rather oppose. 'That's like asking a football coach if he'd prefer to play Notre Dame or Texas," Kelley said.

The last Eastern champion was RPI, which edged Minnesota 5-4 in 1954. The only other time in 17 years the East has captured national honors came when BC topped Dartmouth 4-3 in 1949.

North Dakota has appeared in three NCAA tournaments previously with a remarkable showing of two crowns — the most recent on BC ice two years ago — and one second-place finish.

Nevertheless, there is no defeatist attitude in these parts.

"This might be the year both BC and Brown do some business," Kelley says. "I don't mean to infer the Western teams have slacked off. But Eastern teams are improving and closing the gap. We're not kidding ourselves into thinking it's going to be easy."

"Our team has worked the entire season for this and we'll do our best to give a good account of ourselves," says Brown's Jim Fullerton.

Brother Act Misses Try At Four Minute Mile

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A brother act has been added to track with 18-year-old Bob Camien sacrificing himself as a rabbit to help older John crack the mile's four-minute barrier.

Bob, a freshman at Emporia, Kan., State, and John, a 21-year-old senior, narrowly missed their goal in an initial attempt Monday night in the 14th annual Journal Games, designated a third straight year as the U.S. Track and Field Federation Indoor Championships.

John, who passed up the NCAA meet at Detroit last Saturday to concentrate on a sub-four minute mile here, won by some 20 yards in his second 4:01.7 effort of the season, the fastest of the winter board circuit. Bob set the pace for a half mile, then let big brother do his own work.

"We've run together, but we never attempted anything like this before," John said. "We'll work together quite a bit from now on. Bob is far more advanced than I was at 18 and he's going to be real tough in a year or two."

John frankly admitted he was shooting for under four minutes, explaining, "I know I'm capable of it." His top time has been 4:00.7, which he ran twice outdoors in California.

"I would like to have beaten four minutes here and thought I could after I won the Milwaukee mile in 4:02.7 last year," John said. "I planned on it and think I would have done it if I hadn't trained so hard.

"I worked too hard and spent too much time on my speed just last Saturday. I felt very strong, but I didn't have any zip in the second half."

Kid brother Bob hit the quarter in :58.3 and the half mile in two minutes flat. He then faded, finally dropping out. John opened up a sizable lead, but his time at the three-quarter mark was 3:01.4. Despite the cheers of 8,384 fans, he was unable to mount a finishing kick and had to settle for a USTFF record.

Chris Johnson of Southern California was second in 4:06 and Ed Dean of Notre Dame third in 4:09.8.

NCAA champion Robin Lingle of Missouri turned in the fastest 1,000 of the indoor season by winning his specialty for the third straight year in Milwaukee in 2:07.3.

Aaron, Marichal Injured Crandall Boosts Buc Hopes

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

For Hank Aaron, there's an operation. For Juan Marichal, there's irritation. But for Del Crandall, there's rejuvenation.

The Pittsburgh Pirates undoubtedly were the most elated of the three teams involved in that linescore Monday. In fact, the other two teams — Milwaukee and San Francisco — were far from elated.

While the Braves learned that Aaron will have to undergo surgery on his left ankle and the Giants' Marichal suffered a hamstring muscle pull in his right leg. Crandall ignited a 14-run Pirate inning with a single and followed with two more in his five-inning workout.

OUT OF WATER FOR GOOD—Bette Hushla, the only female member of the West Virginia University varsity swimming team, climbs out of the WVU practice pool. Commissioner Lloyd P. Jordan said that she won't be allowed to swim in the Southern Conference competition. (AP Wirephoto)

Aaron planned to fly to Milwaukee today when he will have the operation Wednesday. After doctors remove an area of calcification in the tendon, the Braves' ace slugger will have to rest for two or three weeks before rejoining the team.

Aaron finished third in National League hitting last season with a .328 average despite missing the last several weeks because of the ankle injury. He clouted 24 homers and drove in 95 runs.

Marichal, who missed nearly a month last year because of a back ailment en route to a 21-8 record, was running in the outfield when he hurt his leg. Trainer Frank Bowman applied ice to it for an hour and said the injury did not appear to be serious.

"He'll be slowed for a couple of days, though," Bowman added.

The 35-year-old Crandall, acquired by the Pirates from the Giants for protection behind the plate, erupted in a rash of singles as Pittsburgh bombed the Chicago White Sox 17-4 for its third straight exhibition triumph.

The 15-year veteran, who batted only .201 and .231 the past two seasons, rapped the first of 12 Pirate hits in the seventh inning. He added another single later in the inning and belted a third in the two-run eighth.

The Pirates lead the National League while the New York Yankees top the American with four consecutive victories. They were scheduled to clash today, insuring one less unbeaten record in exhibition play.

The Yankees edged Minnesota 4-3 Monday with Tom Tresh's two-run homer a key blow. Philadelphia finally scored a run, nipping the New York Mets 1-0 on Johnny Callison's run-scoring double.

Tommy Davis tripled across two runs in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 4-1 victory over Houston while Tony Conigliaro drove in five runs, three on a homer, leading Boston to a 9-4 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels.

Cincinnati stopped St. Louis 8-6 behind homers by Frank Robinson and Tony Perez, Milwaukee defeated Baltimore 4-2 on Mack Jones' two-run homer in the ninth inning and Kansas City nipped Detroit 5-4 as Ken Harrelson clouted a two-run homer in the eighth.

Cleveland scored two runs off Sterling Slaughter in the 11th for a 5-3 triumph over the Chicago Cubs, and homers by Bob Rodgers and Gino Cimoli led another Angels' squad to a 5-2 decision over Monterrey in Mexico.

Leaders Scorch NBA Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, Bill Russell and Oscar Robertson, the National Basketball Association's reigning triumverate in scoring, rebounding and playmaking, are setting a torrid late-season pace while their teams await the upcoming playoffs.

Chamberlain boosted his league-leading point average to 35-per-game last week, according to latest NBA figures. The Philadelphia 76ers' pivot, whose high game for the week was a 53-point effort against Baltimore, increased his point total to 2,450 in 70 games.

Boston's Russell set a season-high mark of 49 rebounds against Detroit last Thursday and had 41 caroms Sunday at San Francisco, giving him 1,825 for the year, a per-game average of 24.

Robertson continued to push ahead in the assists department, with 40 in three games last week for a total of 818. The Cincinnati ace is averaging 11.4 setups per-game.

Jerry West of Los Angeles trails Chamberlain in the scoring race with 2,268 points for a 31.1 average. Robertson is third with 2,199 and 30.5 while Sam Jones of the Celtics holds the fourth spot with a 25.9 mark.

Jones, with 2,023 points, is the first player in Boston history to go over the 2,000 level in one season.

Chamberlain and teammate Larry Costello are the leaders in field goal and free throw accuracy, respectively. Wilt raised his floor percentage to .508, passing Walt Bellamy of Baltimore, who has a .507 mark.

Costello, currently sidelined with a leg injury, has converted 243 of 277 free throws for an .877 percentage. Robertson, with an .841 mark, is second.

South Africa Has Integration Problems Also

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — White and non-whites no longer will be allowed to attend the same sporting events under a strict new policy in this already racially segregated country.

The new restrictions, issued Monday by two cabinet ministers, apply to all public places of recreation.

Non Whites will be excluded from soccer games, boxing shows and other sports events in predominantly white areas, as defined by South African zoning laws, and whites will be prohibited from attending competition in non-white districts.

Attendance declined sharply at two major soccer games last weekend in Johannesburg when non-white fans were turned away. Non-whites accounted for an estimated one-fourth of the 2,000,000 spectators at White-only National League soccer games last season.

Mikita Piling Up Points, Penalties in NHL Race

MONTREAL (AP) — Stan Mikita, Chicago's temperamental scoring terror, continues to pile up goals, assists — and penalties — on the way to a second straight National Hockey League point championship.

The Black Hawks star added five points last week, latest NHL statistics reveal, for a 15-point lead over teammate Bobby Hull and Detroit's Norm Ullman. Mikita also boosted his penalty total to 150 minutes, a record for NHL centers.

Mikita has 28 goals and his 56 assists are two short of the season mark shared by Andy Bathgate of Toronto and Montreal's Jean Beliveau.

The hottest trio in the league belongs to the first place Red Wings. Centers Ullman and Alex Delvecchio have combined with right wing Gordie Howe for 51 points in Detroit's last 11 games.

Howe is fourth in the scoring race, with 64 points, and Delvecchio is seventh, with 55. Claude Provost of Montreal trails Howe by three points while sixth-place Pierre Pilote of the Black Hawks needs only two points to establish the single-season mark for defenseman.

Pilote has 56 points in 64 games. Babe Pratt set the mark of 57 during a 50-game schedule in 1943-44.

Brother Act Misses Try At Four Minute Mile

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A brother act has been added to track with 18-year-old Bob Camien sacrificing himself as a rabbit to help older John crack the mile's four-minute barrier.

Bob, a freshman at Emporia, Kan., State, and John, a 21-year-old senior, narrowly missed their goal in an initial attempt Monday night in the 14th annual Journal Games, designated a third straight year as the U.S. Track and Field Federation Indoor Championships.

John, who passed up the NCAA meet at Detroit last Saturday to concentrate on a sub-four minute mile here, won by some 20 yards in his second 4:01.7 effort of the season, the fastest of the winter board circuit. Bob set the pace for a half mile, then let big brother do his own work.

"We've run together, but we never attempted anything like this before," John said. "We'll work together quite a bit from now on. Bob is far more advanced than I was at 18 and he's going to be real tough in a year or two."

John frankly admitted he was shooting for under four minutes, explaining, "I know I'm capable of it." His top time has been 4:00.7, which he ran twice outdoors in California.

"I would like to have beaten four minutes here and thought I could after I won the Milwaukee mile in 4:02.7 last year," John said. "I planned on it and think I would have done it if I hadn't trained so hard.

"I worked too hard and spent too much time on my speed just last Saturday. I felt very strong, but I didn't have any zip in the second half."

Kid brother Bob hit the quarter in :58.3 and the half mile in two minutes flat. He then faded, finally dropping out. John opened up a sizable lead, but his time at the three-quarter mark was 3:01.4. Despite the cheers of 8,384 fans, he was unable to mount a finishing kick and had to settle for a USTFF record.

Chris Johnson of Southern California was second in 4:06 and Ed Dean of Notre Dame third in 4:09.8.

NCAA champion Robin Lingle of Missouri turned in the fastest 1,000 of the indoor season by winning his specialty for the third straight year in Milwaukee in 2:07.3.

Aaron, Marichal Injured Crandall Boosts Buc Hopes

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

For Hank Aaron, there's an operation. For Juan Marichal, there's irritation. But for Del Crandall, there's rejuvenation.

The Pittsburgh Pirates undoubtedly were the most elated of the three teams involved in that linescore Monday. In fact, the other two teams — Milwaukee and San Francisco — were far from elated.

While the Braves learned that Aaron will have to undergo surgery on his left ankle and the Giants' Marichal suffered a hamstring muscle pull in his right leg. Crandall ignited a 14-run Pirate inning with a single and followed with two more in his five-inning workout.

Aaron planned to fly to Milwaukee today when he will have the operation Wednesday. After doctors remove an area of calcification in the tendon, the Braves' ace slugger will have to rest for two or three weeks before rejoining the team.

Aaron finished third in National League hitting last season with a .328 average despite missing the last several weeks because of the ankle injury. He clouted 24 homers and drove in 95 runs.

Marichal, who missed nearly a month last year because of a back ailment en route to a 21-8 record, was running in the outfield when he hurt his leg. Trainer Frank Bowman applied ice to it for an hour and said the injury did not appear to be serious.

"He'll be slowed for a couple of days, though," Bowman added.

The 35-year-old Crandall, acquired by the Pirates from the Giants for protection behind the plate, erupted in a rash of singles as Pittsburgh bombed the Chicago White Sox 17-4 for its third straight exhibition triumph.

The 15-year veteran, who batted only .201 and .231 the past two seasons, rapped the first of 12 Pirate hits in the seventh inning. He added another single later in the inning and belted a third in the two-run eighth.

The Pirates lead the National League while the New York Yankees top the American with four consecutive victories. They were scheduled to clash today, insuring one less unbeaten record in exhibition play.

The Yankees edged Minnesota 4-3 Monday with Tom Tresh's two-run homer a key blow. Philadelphia finally scored a run, nipping the New York Mets 1-0 on Johnny Callison's run-scoring double.

Tommy Davis tripled across two runs in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 4-1 victory over Houston while Tony Conigliaro drove in five runs, three on a homer, leading Boston to a 9-4 triumph over the Los Angeles Angels.

Cincinnati stopped St. Louis 8-6 behind homers by Frank Robinson and Tony Perez, Milwaukee defeated Baltimore 4-2 on Mack Jones' two-run homer in the ninth inning and Kansas City nipped Detroit 5-4 as Ken Harrelson clouted a two-run homer in the eighth.

Cleveland scored two runs off Sterling Slaughter in the 11th for a 5-3 triumph over the Chicago Cubs, and homers by Bob Rodgers and Gino Cimoli led another Angels' squad to a 5-2 decision over Monterrey in Mexico.

Leaders Scorch NBA Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, Bill Russell and Oscar Robertson, the National Basketball Association's reigning triumverate in scoring, rebounding and playmaking, are setting a torrid late-season pace while their teams await the upcoming playoffs.

Chamberlain boosted his league-leading point average to 35-per-game last week, according to latest NBA figures. The Philadelphia 76ers' pivot, whose high game for the week was a 53-point effort against Baltimore, increased his point total to 2,450 in 70 games.

Boston's Russell set a season-high mark of 49 rebounds against Detroit last Thursday and had 41 caroms Sunday at San Francisco, giving him 1,825 for the year, a per-game average of 24.

Robertson continued to push ahead in the assists department, with 40 in three games last week for a total of 818. The Cincinnati ace is averaging 11.4 set-ups per-game.

Jerry West of Los Angeles trails Chamberlain in the scoring race with 2,268 points for a 31.1 average. Robertson is third with 2,199 and 30.5 while Sam Jones of the Celtics holds the fourth spot with a 25.9 mark.

Jones, with 2,023 points, is the first player in Boston history to go over the 2,000 level in one season.

Chamberlain and teammate Larry Costello are the leaders in field goal and free throw accuracy, respectively. Wilt raised his floor percentage to .508, passing Walt Bellamy of Baltimore, who has a .507 mark.

Costello, currently sidelined with a leg injury, has converted 243 of 277 free throws for an .877 percentage. Robertson, with an .841 mark, is second.

Bronco Sales Nearing Goal Of 20,000

DENVER (UPI)—The Denver Broncos' ticket offices opened today with a record 16,434 season tickets sold so far.

The American Football League team sold 301 tickets Monday. It was a month to the day from when millionaire brothers Gerald and Allan Phipps bought control of the Broncos and said they would keep the team in Denver.

Bronco officials said 1,522 renewals of season tickets remained to be picked up. They said the goal of 20,000 is within reach.

Denver Mayor Tom Currigan Monday urged city employes to buy Bronco season tickets under a payroll deduction plan. Currigan said a minimum of 200 employes must buy tickets to make the plan feasible.

Gerald Phipps and Bronco head coach Mac Speedie were to speak today (at 11:45 a.m.) at the opening meeting of the Aurora Bronco Club.

South Africa Has Integration Problems Also

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — White and non-whites no longer will be allowed to attend the same sporting events under a strict new policy in this already racially segregated country.

The new restrictions, issued Monday by two cabinet ministers, apply to all public places of recreation.

Non Whites will be excluded from soccer games, boxing shows and other sports events in predominantly white areas, as defined by South African zoning laws, and whites will be prohibited from attending competition in non-white districts.

Attendance declined sharply at two major soccer games last weekend in Johannesburg when non-white fans were turned away. Non-whites accounted for an estimated one-fourth of the 2,000,000 spectators at White-only National League soccer games last season.

Mikita Piling Up Points, Penalties in NHL Race

MONTREAL (AP) — Stan Mikita, Chicago's temperamental scoring terror, continues to pile up goals, assists — and penalties — on the way to a second straight National Hockey League point championship.

The Black Hawks star added five points last week, latest NHL statistics reveal, for a 15-point lead over teammate Bobby Hull and Detroit's Norm Ullman. Mikita also boosted his penalty total to 150 minutes, a record for NHL centers.

Mikita has 28 goals and his 56 assists are two short of the season mark shared by Andy Bathgate of Toronto and Montreal's Jean Beliveau.

The hottest trio in the league belongs to the first place Red Wings. Centers Ullman and Alex Delvecchio have combined with right wing Gordie Howe for 51 points in Detroit's last 11 games.

Howe is fourth in the scoring race, with 64 points, and Delvecchio is seventh, with 55. Claude Provost of Montreal trails Howe by three points while sixth-place Pierre Pilote of the Black Hawks needs only two points to establish the single-season mark for defenseman.

Pilote has 56 points in 64 games. Babe Pratt set the mark of 57 during a 50-game schedule in 1943-44.

Rookie Roger Crozier of Detroit holds a narrow edge in the goalie race. The little left-hander has yielded an average of 2.39 goals per-game.

The leading scorers:

	G	A	Pts.
1. Mikita, Chicago	28	56	84
2. Hull, Chicago	38	31	69
Ullman, Detroit	34	35	69
4. Howe, Detroit	24	40	64
5. Provost, Montreal	26	35	61
6. Pilote, Chicago	14	42	56

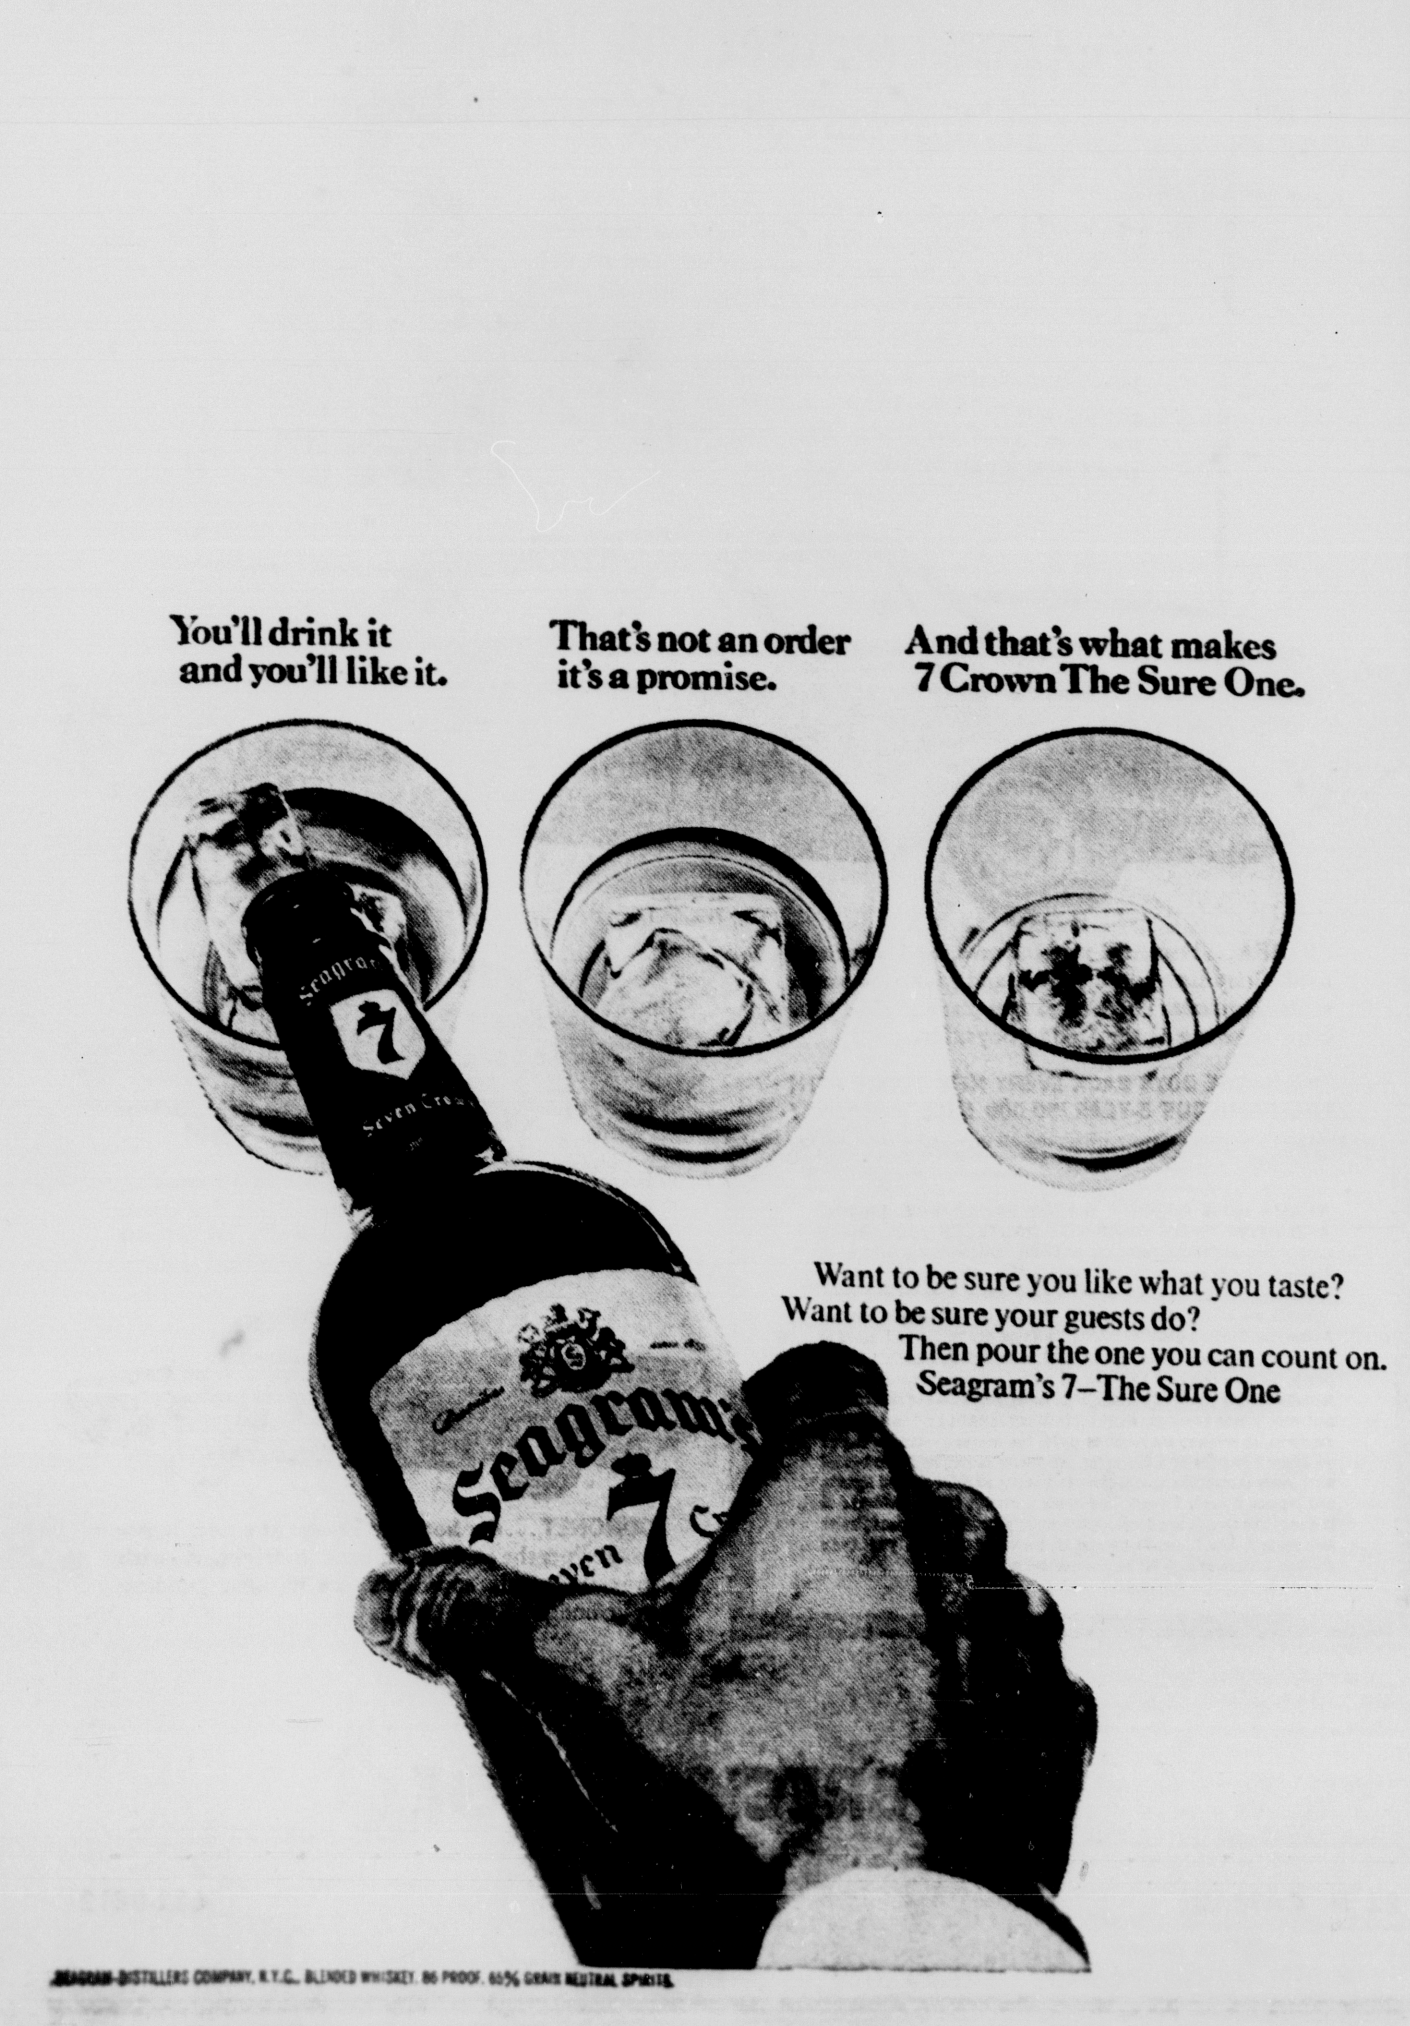
Italian Contender To Face American

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Italy's Salvatore Burrini will box Belgium's Joseph Horny Thursday night in a 10-round tune-up for his coming title bout with world champion Pone Kingpetch of Thailand.

Burruni is scheduled to meet the champion in Rome April 23.

"It will be a public show of the physical preparedness of Burruni to fight Kingpetch for the world title," a Burruni spokesman said Monday night.



You'll drink it and you'll like it.
That's not an order it's a promise.
And that's what makes 7 Crown The Sure One.
Want to be sure you like what you taste?
Want to be sure your guests do?
Then pour the one you can count on.

Police Will Protect Washington Embassies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington police have set up special details at several foreign embassies in Washington.

The State Department and the embassies involved said the special protection was not requested.

A police department spokesman said the details were assigned to see that "nothing unforeseen" takes place. Last Sunday, a group of Cuban refugees tossed pop bottles filled with black liquid at the Russian Embassy.

Clifton Explains White House Bugging Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Chester Clifton was reported today to have labeled as highly inaccurate a published account of a speech in which he was quoted as saying bugging devices are a security problem at the White House.

White House press secretary George E. Reedy relayed this word to newsmen.

Reedy said he had talked to Clifton, President Johnson's military aide, and Clifton "insists that the published report is a highly inaccurate account of what he said."

The Texas Tech newspaper, the Toreador, said Friday Clifton told the Southwestern Journalism Congress at the school that the electronic listening devices were planted by possible foreign agents and by visitors to pick up conversations.

"A piped music system plays throughout the White House 24 hours a day because we have found that it interferes with the operation of these bugging devices," the paper quoted Clifton as saying.

Clifton is still in Texas where Reedy contacted him by phone.

Newsmen covering the White House have no knowledge of any piped music being played there around the clock or even for lengthy intervals.

However, other knowledgeable sources say high frequency sound waves are piped into all sensitive White House offices to guard against any form of electronic eavesdropping.

Such sound waves would be inaudible to the human ear, and the sources say music is occasionally played through the system to test it.

The Texas Tech account gave these additional details:

Pope to Say Mass on Steps of St. Peter's

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI will break with tradition to say Easter Mass outdoors on the steps of St. Peter's Basilica.

The Vatican announcement Friday said that following the Mass the Pope will deliver his annual Easter message to the world at noon. Then he will give his traditional blessing from the loggia above the basilica entrance looking over St. Peter's Square.

Pope Paul's coronation ceremony on June 30, 1963, also was held in front of the basilica instead of inside.

PAN AM SUMMER SERVICE BOOST

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways will offer 258 Jet Clipper flights across the Atlantic every week this summer. Willis G. Lipscomb, Senior Vice President-Traffic and Sales, said this would set new airline industry peaks for frequency, lift and number of nonstop and direct services.

The trans-Atlantic airlift will have capacity for more than 36,000 passengers a week, 17 per cent more than in the previous record-breaking summer. The increases will be implemented in two phases, the first on April 25 and the second on June 1, when peak scheduled capacity will be offered.

Britons in Bahrein Must Stay Indoors

BAHRAIN (AP) — British servicemen and their famileis were ordered today to stay indoors following a weekend of violent riots set off by a student demonstration and an oil workers' strike. An oil worker was killed.

The ruler of this British island protectorate in the Persian Gulf, Sheik Isa Bin Sulman Al Khalifa, appealed to the workers to return to their jobs. There was no immediate response.

A broadcast over an emergency radio transmitter said food and water supplies were low and special food distribution centers were being set up.

In the British protectorate of Aden, on the southern coast of the Arabian Peninsula, three grenades were thrown at the British petroleum refinery Sunday night. A British soldier was killed and two others seriously wounded.

The seven dollar misunderstanding

The misunderstanding has to do with Chrysler and prices. Let's clear it up together.

This year, a full-sized Chrysler Newport 2-Door Hardtop is priced less than $7 a month more than the most popular smaller cars.

And when you compare a Chrysler with cars that are even smaller than Ford and Chevrolet, you're really in for a surprise. Their names are the only thing big about them.

Every car compared below is a 2-door hardtop. They all have V-8 engines, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio and heater. There is only one meaningful difference: Chrysler is the only big one.

So why not see your Chrysler dealer today? Move up to Chrysler... it's easy!

Make	Wheelbase	Overall Length	V-8 Engine Cubic Inch Displacement	Base Monthly Payments	Difference Per Month	Basis of comparison
CHRYSLER NEWPORT	124"	218.2"	383	$65.67	—	All models are 2-door hardtops equipped with V-8 engine, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio and heater. Monthly payments have been computed on manufacturers' suggested retail price, one-third down and 36 monthly payments. Not included are the extras you pay for on practically any new car: whitewall tires, deluxe wheel covers, destination charges, state and local taxes, interest, insurance and licensing fees.

Clifton Explains White House Bugging Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Chester Clifton was reported today to have labeled as highly inaccurate a published account of a speech in which he was quoted as saying bugging devices are a security problem at the White House.

White House press secretary George E. Reedy relayed this word to newsmen.

Reedy said he had talked to Clifton, President Johnson's military aide, and Clifton "insists that the published report is a highly inaccurate account of what he said."

The Texas Tech newspaper, the Toreador, said Friday Clifton told the Southwestern Journalism Congress at the school that the electronic listening devices were planted by possible foreign agents and by visitors to pick up conversations.

"A piped music system plays throughout the White House 24 hours a day because we have found that it interferes with the operation of these bugging devices," the paper quoted Clifton as saying.

Clifton is still in Texas where Reedy contacted him by phone.

Newsmen covering the White House have no knowledge of any piped music being played there around the clock or even for lengthy intervals.

However, other knowledgeable sources say high frequency sound waves are piped into all sensitive White House offices to guard against any form of electronic eavesdropping.

Such sound waves would be inaudible to the human ear, and the sources say music is occasionally played through the system to test it.

The Texas Tech account gave these additional details:

Pope to Say Mass on Steps of St. Peter's

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI will break with tradition to say Easter Mass outdoors on the steps of St. Peter's Basilica.

The Vatican announcement Friday said that following the Mass the Pope will deliver his annual Easter message to the world at noon. Then he will give his traditional blessing from the loggia above the basilica entrance looking over St. Peter's Square.

Pope Paul's coronation ceremony on June 30, 1963, also was held in front of the basilica instead of inside.

PAN AM SUMMER SERVICE BOOST

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways will offer 258 Jet Clipper flights across the Atlantic every week this summer. Willis G. Lipscomb, Senior Vice President-Traffic and Sales, said this would set new airline industry peaks for frequency, lift and number of nonstop and direct services.

The trans-Atlantic airlift will have capacity for more than 36,000 passengers a week, 17 per cent more than in the previous record-breaking summer. The increases will be implemented in two phases, the first on April 25 and the second on June 1, when peak scheduled capacity will be offered.

Britons in Bahrein Must Stay Indoors

BAHRAIN (AP) — British servicemen and their famileis were ordered today to stay indoors following a weekend of violent riots set off by a student demonstration and an oil workers' strike. An oil worker was killed.

The ruler of this British island protectorate in the Persian Gulf, Sheik Isa Bin Sulman Al Khalifa, appealed to the workers to return to their jobs. There was no immediate response.

A broadcast over an emergency radio transmitter said food and water supplies were low and special food distribution centers were being set up.

In the British protectorate of Aden, on the southern coast of the Arabian Peninsula, three grenades were thrown at the British petroleum refinery Sunday night. A British soldier was killed and two others seriously wounded.

The seven dollar misunderstanding

The misunderstanding has to do with Chrysler and prices. Let's clear it up together.

This year, a full-sized Chrysler Newport 2-Door Hardtop is priced less than $7 a month more than the most popular smaller cars.

And when you compare a Chrysler with cars that are even smaller than Ford and Chevrolet, you're really in for a surprise. Their names are the only thing big about them.

Every car compared below is a 2-door hardtop. They all have V-8 engines, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio and heater. There is only one meaningful difference: Chrysler is the only big one.

So why not see your Chrysler dealer today? Move up to Chrysler . . . it's easy!

CHRYSLER NEWPORT	124"	218.2"	383	$65.67	—	All models are 2-door hardtops equipped with V-8 engine, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio and heater. Monthly payments have been computed on manufacturers' suggested retail price, one-third down and 36 monthly payments. Not included are the extras you pay for on practically any new car: whitewall tires, deluxe wheel covers, destination charges, state and local taxes, interest, insurance and licensing fees.
